Premier Says Only Saigon Qualified To Decide Destiny

DRESSED FOR THE OCCASION

When Michael Slattery dropped by today to pick up fellow College of Marin student Devon Renick for a Saturday spin, he was dressed the way most people have been around Marin recently. She, however, took a happy look at the long-absent sunshine and made the most of it. The sun burned off early morning fog to provide clear skies. The Weather Bureau said it will be fair and warmer tomorrow. Slattery and Miss Renick both live in San Rafael. (Independent-Journal photo by Jim Kean)

U. S. Envoys Seek To Assure Calm

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk and roving Ambassador W. Averell Harriman conferred today with South Viet Nam's top leaders, then met again tonight with Premier Nguyen Cao Ky at dinner.

Diplomatic informants said Rusk and Harriman sought to assure Ky that U.S. peace efforts in Viet Nam would not jeopardise military government.

The conferences came off against a background of rumors in Saigon of a possible power play by some Vietnamese generals who are reported to fear a sellout by Ky to the Viet Cong.

The rumors got a momentary boost tonight with a report that South Vietnamese troops had rolled through a police checkpoint south of the capital and refused to stop.

But later an authoritative South Vietnamese informant said troops of South Viet Nam's 4th marine battalion entered the city only to "increase security." He did not explain why there was a need to bolster the guard in the city.

Earlier in the day, Ky closed the second Armed Forces' Day congress with a speech declaring that whatever peace moves are generated, "no other nation is qualified and able to decide our destiny, independently of our own will."

AIDE LEAVES

When Ky's speech ended, Lt. Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu, South Viet Nam's chief of state, left abruptly in the middle of the applause and those who saw him said he appeared agitated. Efforts to reach Thieu for comment were unsuccessful.

Rusk and Harriman met briefly with Thieu before they saw Ky this afternoon.

"We had very interesting talks," Rusk said, but he declined to say what subjects were discussed. Diplomatic informants said, however, Rusk's mission was to assure Ky that President Johnson's diplomatic effort to end the war would not pull the rug from under Ky's regime.

Rusk also met with U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and other American officials.

AT DINNER

Then Rusk, Harriman and Lodge were Ky's guests at a dinner at the premier's residence. Ky later went to Lodge's residence where Rusk and Harriman are staying, presumably to continue their talks.

At the military congress, Ky hailed peace efforts and had a special word of praise for Pope Paul VI. But he warned against any deals being made without the approval of his government.

"We have accepted and are grateful for the moral and material, military and economic assistance from the friendly countries," he said. "But never can we tolerate any interference harmful to our nation's sovereignty or any decision at variance with our people's aspirations."

Declaring "we are determined not to be Communist," Ky said his war cabinet has

Brezhnev Says Peace Attempt Is 'Maneuver'

MOSCOW (UPI) — Communist party leader Leonid Brezhnev today denounced President Johnson's peace offensive as a "maneuver" to cover up widening of "aggression" against Viet Nam.

The Kremlin leader declared in a speech in Ulan Bator, capital of Outer Mongolia, that "if the American leaders actually want an end to the war in Viet Nam then who prevents them from recognizing the justness of the Vietnamese peoples' demands and thus opening the road to peace?"

FRIENDSHIP TREATY

The official news agency Tass made public the contents of a speech Brezhnev delivered in the Mongolian capital to mark the signing of a new friendship treaty, putting that nation more solidly in the Soviet camp.

Brezhnev, according to Tass, declared that "the American imperialists, being aware of the hopelessness of their venture, are trying to maneuver. While extending their aggression, they profess at the same time a desire for peace talks."

FIRST REACTION

Brezhnev's denunciation represented the first top level and authoritative public Kremlin reaction to the Johnson peace offensive.

The speech came as Premier Alexei Kosygin returned to Moscow from New Delhi where he met with Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

STATE COMMISSION

Redwoods Plan 'Not Qualified'

SANTA BARBARA (UPI) — An assemblyman yesterday urged the California Parks Commission to seek legislative approval of a one cent per gallon special gasoline tax to finance parks and recreation projects.

Winfield Shoemaker, assemblyman from Lompoc, said the levy would be imposed only during summer months and would raise an estimated $10 million per year. It would be necessary to enact a constitutional amendment to allow imposition of the tax.

The commission, meeting here, did not act on Shoemaker's proposal, but did recommend the Legislature allow $2 million for acquisition of a six block San Diego area to be developed as an historical unit that is part of the State Parks System.

Also, the commission approved the recommendations of its redwood committee which took exception to some aspects involved in creating a national redwood park.

Among other things, the commission agreed with its committee that the state must be compensated for any state park that might have to be sequestered.

The commission also suggested the federal government consider leasing rather than outright purchase of cutover redwood land that might be required for campground purposes.

It was also proposed the Prairie Creek Redwood State Park not be a part of any national park, unless the national program materially expanded the present area held by the state.

Pointedly, the commission saw no advantage to changing the name from a state to national park for no other reason than the name change.

It urged the government give full consideration to the local economic impact of any national park plans, and said it did not regard the Kings Range between Humboldt Redwood Park and the ocean qualified as a national redwood park.

Illegal Entry Held Possible In Meters Case

San Rafael parking meter collector Charles R. Herren's home may have been entered illegally when district attorney's investigators found bags of coins they say were stolen from parking meters, defense attorney William B. Wolfson charged yesterday.

The claim was made during a preliminary hearing on the embezzlement charge against Herren, 61, of 3 Bayview Street, San Rafael, and 18-year employee of the city.

When the hearing wound up late yesterday, Judge Peter Allen Smith of Marin Municipal Court delayed a decision on binding Herren over to superior court for trial until he ruled on Wolfson's claim. The ruling was set for Wednesday.

City Mgr. Dan E. Andersen of San Rafael testified earlier in the day Herren admitted to him he had been looting "between $6 and $7 a day" from collections.

He said the collector at first denied any theft, but soon after confessed, "I've got some of it." Herren, he said, then produced several bags full of coins, along with other money in cigar boxes.

Andersen said the admission came while he, Police Chief Charles J. Chiesa and Don Midyett, investigator for the district attorney's office, confronted Herren at his home Dec. 2.

MOSCOW (UPI) — The temperature fell to 22 degrees below zero here today in the coldest weather so far this winter.

Negroes Start Drive For California Office

BAKERSFIELD (AP) — A Negro action group began enlisting California's restless minorities today in a campaign to put a Negro on the ballot and elect him to statewide office for the first time.

Unhappy because Democrats have turned aside their pleas in the past, delegates to the Negro Political Action Assn. of California convention prepared to endorse a Negro tomorrow for the Democratic nomination for Secretary of State.

William J. Williams, field secretary for Rep. Augustus Hawkins, D-Calif., said the association has been accused of "segregation in reverse."

"Why are we working segregation in reverse?" he asked. "We're working it because that's the only way we'll get something done.

"Every time we've come up with a candidate there is a reaction — that there might be white backlash. There'll always be white backlash."

Delegates recalled Negro Edward Brooke's election as attorney general of Massachusetts. They predicted that an additional 100,000 minority group members will register to vote for the November general election if the Democrats nominate a Negro in the June primary.

Secretary of State Frank M. Jordan has said he will seek re-election as the Republican candidate.

Williams said there are about 600,000 Negroes registered to vote in California and 550,000 of them are Democrats.

To these, leaders of the organization hope to add Californians of Mexican descent.

The campaign comes just half a year after Negroes rioted in Los Angeles — an outburst their leaders say was triggered, in part, by prejudice and lack of economic opportunity.

And it is less than two years after the voters approved a constitutional amendment that nullified a state anti-discrimination housing law.

Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown evpected to run again, declared his neutrality yesterday. He said: "I am not supporting any candidate for the office of Secretary of State."

In a telegram to the 1,000 delegates attending the convention, Brown said, "the attempt of NPAAC and its supporting groups to develop a consensus

Hoover Says He's Target Of Russian Smear Campaign

WASHINGTON (UPI) — FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover says he is the target of a Russian smear campaign which attempts to link him with former White House aide Walter Jenkins.

Hoover told Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, in a letter that an element of the Soviet KGB secret police was conducting the campaign.

Hickenlooper yesterday said he had received a copy of a letter over a forged Hoover signature which was purported to be a personal note from Hoover to Jenkins.

Jenkins resigned as President Johnson's top personal aide in 1964 after it was revealed he had been arrested twice on morals charges.

Hickenlooper sent the letter to Hoover, who wrote back that it was not the first encounter with such a letter. Hickenlooper said he had no intention of relating the letter's contents.

The Senator said, "It was an obvious forgery done by a rather crude person."

"They (the letters) are part of a concerted Communist smear cumpaign which was launched a year ago," Hoover told Hickenlooper.

Nine Injured In Flash Fire

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Nine men were injured, one critically, when a flash fire touched off an explosion yesterday that ripped through a section of the Western Piping and Engineering Co.

No one was working in the the section of the block-square plant where the fire started, officials said. The flames caused a lacquer barrel to explode, knocking a huge hole in the corrugated siding of the building and injuring nearby workers.

In critical condition with severe burns over 50 per cent of his face and body was Ralph Arias, 24, San Francisco.

Russ Rocket Designer Dies

MOSCOW (UPI) — Sergei Korolev, the space scientist who designed Russia's moon rockets and space ships, died Friday at the age of 59, the official press agency Tass reported today.

Tass said Korolev died of a heart attack following an operation for the removal of a malignant tumor.

He will be given a hero's funeral Tuesday and be buried in the Kremlin Wall.

Leaflet Distributors Caught In Radar Net

OAKLAND (AP) — Police using two radar stations and an air patrol arrested four men they said dropped anti-Viet Nam war leaflets last night from a small airplane.

Leaflets were dropped on Oakland, the Oakland Army Base, San Francisco and Moffett Navy Air Base, said Sgt. Carl Dahl of the Oakland police intelligence section.

Unsigned, the leaflets were similar to those dropped Jan. 9 on Oakland and Jan. 1 on Disneyland in Southern California. They showed a photograph of charred bodies and a message protesting the war and describing the picture as that of a woman and child killed by American napalm bombs.

Sgt. Dahl said the four men, arrested at San Carlos Airport on the other side of San Francisco Bay, were being held for investigation of a conspiracy charge. He did not specify the nature of the conspiracy but said he would consult today with the Alameda County district attorney and Federal Aviation Agency.

Sgt. Dahl said witnesses on the ground saw the plane flying at 1,500 feet without lights. He said he also would consult on littering charges.

Radio stations that tracked the plane to San Carlos Airport were at Oakland Airport and Moffett Field. Sgt. Dahl said the Alameda County Air Patrol also had a plane aloft but that the plane did not follow the quartet.

Oakland police assumed jurisdiction because the leaflets fell there, Sgt. Dahl added. He did not mention police action by any other city. Leaflets were reported found on Market Street and in the North Beach area of San Francisco.

None of the four areasted by San Carlos police for Dahl had any connection with other groups that had protested U.S. participation in the Viet Nam conflict, the sergeant said.

The plane used by the four was a four-passenger, red and silver Cessna 180.

Those arrested were Anthony E. Broskley, 28, Palo Alto, an unemployed heavy equipment operator; Raymond P. Tiernan, 23, also Palo Alto, a graduate student at Stanford University; Glen D. Fowler, 21, of San Jose, a San Jose State College student, and James Henry Petrie, 56, of Campbell, the pilot. Petrie said he was a student but did not say where.

Sgt. Dahl said his department had a tip the plane would fly last night and he noted that such a prediction was made in a San Francisco newspaper column.

The radar stations were ready to track the plane, he said, and gave time for the San Carlos police to be on hand to make the arrests.

Life-Saving Medal Given In Rescues

Robert F. Lange of 55 Woodland Drive, Fairfax, was awarded a silver life-saving medal by the Coast Guard yesterday for helping to save the lives of two Air Forces officers stranded on Bodega Rock in Sonoma County March 25.

Lange and two guardsmen swam 30 yards through heavy surf to help the two men whose 18-foot outboard motorboat capsized. The ceremonies were in Alameda.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Church Lashed

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Communist Poland has again lashed out against Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski and other Roman Catholic officials for disagreeing with government policy. "Let the church conduct its activities which belong to it," Communist party Chief Wladyslaw Gomulka said last night, "but we demand that it maintain a loyal policy toward the state if it wants to deal in politics."

Harney Estate

Victims Sought

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — Disaster workers waded through mud and the debris of wrecked homes today in a search for additional victims of week-long rains and landslides. The latest figures available to officials put the number of known dead in Rio and adjacent cities at 347. Another 1,814 persons were hospitalized with injuries.

Nigeria Government Overthrown

LONDON (AP)—An army coup has overthrown Nigeria's federal government, according to unconfirmed reports reaching London today.

Balewa

Prime Minister Sir Abubakar Tafewa Balewa, who presided only a week ago over a British Commonwealth meeting at Lagos discussing rebellious Rhodesia, was reported under house arrest.

There were other reports that similar coups have been carried out in Nigeria's northern and western regions, which have semi-autonomous governments.

Communications from Britain to Lagos were cut off early this morning and there was no immediate confirmation of these reports.

Mental Patient Fires Shot

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A fugitive from a New York mental hospital who fired a rifle into the air near the White House to attract the President today underwent psychiatric testing at St. Elizabeth's hospital.

Torres

Instead of attracting the President, Raul Rodriguez Torres, 35, attracted police yesterday. They said he wanted to turn the President's attention to his unsuccessful efforts to qualify for welfare assistance.

Torres was reported as an escapee from the Harlem Valley State Mental hospital at Wingdale, N.Y. last August. A spokesman for the New York State Mental Hygiene Department said he thought Torres was out of the country.

Torres, who listed Yonkers, N.Y. as his home, fired the shot into the air about a half block from the White House.

Moments after the shot was fired, Torres, his wife, Carmen, and an 8-year-old daughter were found near a bank on Pennsylvania Ave.

Six Survive

Nimitz Better

OAKLAND (UPI)—Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz' condition is "stabilized and continuing to improve slowly," according to the latest medical report from the Oak Knoll Naval Hospital.

Novelist Sick

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Kathleen Norris, who has written nearly 80 novels, is very ill with a circulatory ailment, her son said last night. She is 85. The son, Dr. Frank Norris, said his mother was in a semi-coma at his home and that "we are quite apprehensive."

RUSS BOOTY FROM RIVER

51 Die, 10 Survive In Colombia Crash

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — A Colombian airliner with 61 persons on board plunged into shark-infested waters off the coast last night. Officials reported 51 persons were killed and 10 survived.

The four - engine, propeller-driven DC-4, broke in two and its rear section sank in heavy seas. The plane crashed about five minutes after taking off from the Caribbean port of Cartagena for a 20-minute flight to Barranquilla.

Frogmen from the Cartagena naval base vainly tried to rescue an estimated 40 passengers trapped in the rear section of the plane.

About 50 Colombian navy boats, 20 fishing vessels and a U.S. amphibious plane joined the search but rescue efforts were suspended early today due to the rough seas and the danger from sharks.

The Avianca airliner carried a crew of five. Most of the passengers were Colombian, authorities said.

Three-fifths of Peru is covered by little-explored jungle.

Floggings Alleged At Klan Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — House investigators have reported links between the Ku Klux Klan, the murders of two Mississippi Negroes and even savage night beatings of fellow Klansmen.

Centering on the Natchez, Miss., area, investigators of the House Committee on Un-American Activities said yesterday a number of Natchez policemen were Klansmen and the two sons of Mayor Nosser were identified as Klansmen by an admitted member.

The same man, James K. Greer, was quoted in reports of the Mississippi Highway Patrol and the FBI as saying a Klansman got drunk one night and shot up the Klan headquarters in Natchez at 3 a.m. Greer refused to answer any committee questions about his statement to the authorities.

The story of the murders and floggings was told by chief investigator Donald T. Appell, relying on the highway patrol and FBI reports.

Here is Appell's description of the body of Earl Hodges, who he said was a Klansman who fell out with Exalted Cyclops Clyde Seale of Meadville, Miss.:

"He had walked to a well, apparently to wash off the blood. His body was covered with elts from the bottom of his feet to the top of his head. There was a hole in the top of his head. His face was split from his nose to the corner of his eye and the split was so deep you could see the roof of his mouth."

Yet, Appell said, a medical examination showed Hodges died of a heart attack as he stood at the well.

Appell asked Clyde Seale, 64, a farmer with a ninth grade country school education, if he had helped beat Hodges. Seale refused to answer, invoking the Fifth and other constitutional Amendments.

Sarnoff Honored

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Concert Artists Guild announced last night it has selected Brig. Gen. David Sarnoff (Ret.), chairman of the board of the Radio Corporation of America, to receive its 1966 award for helping to establish the musical heritage of the nation.

Saga Of Figures In Kidnap Plot

BEVERLY HILLS (AP) — William C. Bailey was in trouble with police as a juvenile, served prison terms as a young man and then appeared to be well on the road to becoming a responsible citizen.

George H. Scalla was a model pupil in high school, played football, earned good grades and aspired to a military career. Then four years ago he was arrested for drunkenness, later for burglary.

Just when the paths of Bailey, 45, and Scalla, 28, first crossed is uncertain. They died together, shot to death by police as they entered industrialist Leonard K. Firestone's home Thursday night in a kidnap plot.

"It's unbelievable," said Bailey's pretty dark-haired widow, Angela. "It just isn't possible that he could have done such a foolish thing."

Mrs. Bailey, 34, a mother of four, described her husband as a man of "many moods, impulsive and with a very violent nature".

Officials said Bailey apparently never finished high school but had an IQ that marked him as a genius. He got into trouble for auto theft in Austin, Tex., as a youngster, was sentenced to three years in prison in Lubbock Tex., on a similar charge a year later.

Then in 1950, he came to Los Angeles, registered as an ex-felon and appeared to begin a different life. He met and married Angela Plesuk of Detroit, Mich., and went to work for a construction company, rising from laborer to estimator. He stayed with the firm until 1961, then reportedly concentrated on a string of business interests. His career flourished.

It was Scalla, police said, who masterminded the plot to abduct Firestone — and then informed police of it.

Scalla, after leaving high school, tried to join the Air Force, but was turned down because of a knee injured playing football. He was also rejected by the Army, and rejected again when he tried to become a peace officer.

"This constant rejection," Scalla's father, George, told a probation officer, "seemed to have affected his attitude, and perhaps led to the opposite extreme of antisocial behavior."

His mother said, that her son had changed noticeably after a traffic accident in which one of his friends was killed.

"He was dropped by former friends and his girl friend married another boy," Mrs. Scalla said.

Officers said he may have been involved in more than 100 burglaries.

Although Scalla was vowing to go straight and was cooperating with police on the kidnap attempt, officers said, he had made the vow before.

This defendant did have a great potential," a deputy probation officer reported. "But he is headstrong and he does not profit from counseling.

"The extent of his activities is such that he does appear to pose a serious threat to society and to the community," the officer said.

Cold Wave Bears Down On Plains

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

A storm slammed out of the gulf into northwest Florida today as a Canadian cold wave bore down on Great Plains.

Rain with temperatures in the 30s and 40s spread from Louisiana into the Carolinas and freezing rain and sleet were forecast for eastern North Carolina. Heavy snow warnings were issued for the mountains of western North Carolina and eastern Tennessee.

Thunderstorms broke out in milder air along the Gulf Coast through southeast Alabama and the Florida Panhandle and an inch and a third of rain drenched Dothan, Ala., in six hours.

Rough weather developed in portions of northern Florida, southern Georgia and extreme southeast Alabama.

As a new wave of Arctic cold surged toward the Great Plains, cold wave warnings continued for portions of the western Dakotas and central Nebraska. Temperatures were expected to reach 20 below zero in northern border areas by Sunday morning.

Cold weather also prevailed in northern New England and light snow fell in the area.

Patrick Sets Valley Drive

William Penn Patrick of Tiburon, who seeks the GOP gubernatorial nomination, planned to carry his campaign into San Joaquin Valley today.

In a speech prepared for delivery tonight at the San Joaquin Valley Yacht Club near Antioch, Patrick criticized Governor Edmund G. Brown for "indecision" and exhibiting "political expediency."

"Brown, in attempting to be politically expedient, was indecisive in what to do concerning the braceros," Patrick charged.

"It seems that he tested the political waters and came out in favor of eliminating the program. . .

"If I ran my business the way Pat Brown runs our state government, I would have gone under long ago."

Patrick, 35, heads a cosmetics manufacturing firm, Holiday Magic Inc., with headquarters in San Rafael.

Convention leaders said Brown's telegram disproved reports that the governor was backing Real Estate Commissioner Milton Gordon of Los Angeles who is white. Democrat Gordon has already announced his candidacy.

NCAAP leaders generally expressed pleasure with Brown's telegram, although Williams said "we'd like more positive support."

Guilty Plea In Attack Case

Guy H. Cooper, 43, pleaded guilty in Marin Municipal Court yesterday to assault with intent to rape a 19-year-old San Francisco girl last Saturday.

The change of plea came at time scheduled for a preliminary hearing on the complaint. An information on the charge will be filed in Marin Superior Court at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday, according to Jerry Herman, deputy district attorney.

Cooper assaulted the girl at his apartment, 206 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, San Anselmo, after holding her at knifepoint and forcing her to disrobe, San Anselmo police said.

attained some political stability and as this grows, the machinery will be created for democracy, which he said is the only force that can destroy communism.

He promised that "real democratic elections" will be held in 1967.

"The armed forces have assumed power, not with the intention of clinging to it, but to create the necessary conditions for setting up a genuine democracy," he said.

Ky said his government planned to create a "democracy building council" after the lunar New Year which will hold seminars throughout the country on a proposed new constitution. Points raised in the seminars will be incorporated into the document and it will be put to a referendum next October, he said.

Past constitutions have died with a whimper because they came from the top down, he said.

"This government has made up its mind to proceed with democratization slowly but determinedly by training people for their responsibilities," the premier added.

He also promised that new civilian cadres will bolster towns and villages as they are cleared of the Viet Cong. It is in these rural areas, he said, that victory will be achieved.

He said thanks to friendly nations—such as the United States—South Viet Nam can survive its economic upheavals and has sufficient gold reserves for reconstruction, if and when peace is restored.

Lodge sat in a seat of honor during the colorful ceremonies.

The Defense Ministry today confirmed that it would honor a 78-hour truce during the lunar New Year—from noon Jan. 20 to 6 p.m. Jan. 23.

Air America, the private air line under contract to the U.S. government, announced today the identities of the pilot and copilot who were shot to death in the plane's cabin yesterday after the plane crash-landed when it was hit by Viet Cong fire.

They were identified as pilot as W. R. Pruner of Oklahoma City and copilot Chang Yong-ho, a Vietnamese. The fate of a third crewman. Nguyen Ban Thai, also a Vietnamese, was not known.

In the field, U.S. and Australian troops closed out two major operations against the Viet Cong today.

An American-Australian operation on the western edge of the Iron Triangle, 25 miles northwest of Saigon, recorded an official bag of 151 Viet Cong killed and 91 captured in the two-week search and destroy mission.

American casualties were listed as light in relation to the size of the 8,000-man force.

The Australians lost eight dead and 29 wounded, mostly in fierce combat in the sector containing a vast maze of tunnels and caves. The Australians captured an arsenal of 20,000 rounds of ammunition, 50 weapons, 200 hand grenades and tons of miscellaneous clothing, medical supplies and food.

The 1st Brigade of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division terminated Operation Quick Kick after four days around Phuoc Vinh, 35 miles northeast of Saigon. The insurgents kept a healthy distance from the Big Red One but this cost them dearly in supplies.

The U.S. troops scooped up more than 1,000 tons of rice, destroyed half of it and are evacuating the remainder.

U.S. Marines on Operation Mallard, which is drawing to a pause after a week of steady plugging 16 miles southwest of Da Nang, started reaping a similar harvest. A helicopter fleet evacuated more than 30 tons of rice and other supplies. The Leathernecks said Vietnamese farmers helped them in pinpointing Viet Cong storage areas and also led them to a huge rice milling machine firmly set in concrete.

Stereo Tape Taken From Automobile

The left wing vent window had been smashed by the thief, officers reported.

Banker Silverthorne May Take The Stand

The government's case against Don C. Silverthorne, president of the defunct San Francisco National Bank, was concluded yesterday and the 61-year-old banker may take the stand next week to answer the charges of fraud leveled against him and broker William Bennett.

A bank examiner, the final prosecution witness in the Federal trial, said Bennett got more than $600,000 for arranging loans from the bank.

The government contended yesterday that about $400,000 of that was returned to the bank but that much of the money went into Silverthorne's personal account.

While on the stand, Alan R. Miller, bank examiner for the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, pieced together scores of documents covering 13 loan transactions.

Some indication of the line Bennett's defense will take was given when Miller was cross-examined by Bennett's attorney, James Martin MacInnis.

"Do you conclude Bennett was in the business of guaranteeing loans for profit?" asked MacInnis. "Yes," replied Miller.

"And you're not against the profit system?" said the attorney. "Not in our country," said Miller.

Before the trial, Silverthorne contended fees for loans were not illegal. Both he and Bennett have denied any wrongdoing.

The trial will resume Monday in San Francisco with various defense motions and arguments in the absence of the jury.

Student Club For Synanon

A club designed to create and aid interaction between College of Marin students and Synanon and promote understanding of the Synanon organization in the community has been officially recognized on the Kentfield campus.

Called Action, the club was approved this week by the student interclub council and executive council. Its officers are sophomore Brian Lawrence, president; freshman Luisa Sofaer, vice president and Christine Lytle, interclub council representative.

Lawrence said the idea for the club grew out of an appearance by Synanon representatives on the campus last month. Club adviser is Paul Miller, a journalism instructor.

Lawrence said club members will visit Synanon houses around the bay area and talk with organization representatives, gaining an understanding of the purpose of the houses for rehabilitating drug addicts.

Chief activity of the club, Lawrence said, will be participation in Synanon's "square games," which he described as "a sort of a verbal street fight."

They involve discussion of the activities and character of different persons in the group.

Similar games will be organized by Synanon representatives from Marshall, for club members on the Kentfield campus, Lawrence said.

Cycle Accident Knocks Out Driver

Marvin Allan Giambastiani, 19, of Point Reyes Station, was knocked unconsious about 11:45 p.m. yesterday when the motorcycle he was riding hit a chain at the edge of the parking area of a service station at Fourth Street and Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael.

The youth was treated at San Rafael General Hospital. Police said he had borrowed the cycle from its owner, Gladys I. Potter, of 43 Marquard Street, San Rafael.

Military Information Week Is Scheduled

The week of Jan. 31 will be "military information week" at Terra Linda High School. Students will be able to interview representatives of the armed services during lunch recesses.

The schedule is: Navy on Monday, Coast Guard on Tuesday, Marines on Wednesday, Air Force on Thursday and Army on Friday.

Escaped Felon Still At Large

William J. Dellinger, 36-year-old San Quentin escapee, was still at large today and prison officials were assuming the convicted killer was clear of the area, reported Associate Warden Raymond L. Wham.

He said the authorities had checked out a number of rumors which had proved false, among them reports Dellinger had been seen in the Sn Anselmo area.

Dellinger, convicted for the 1958 slaying of his stepfather, got away in the fog early yesterday by climbing the 20-foot-high north wall with a ladder.

In his position of trust as factory night watchman, he had access to the ladder although it was under lock and key. He was serving a life sentence.

Brothers Hurt As Car Hits Rail

Two San Rafael brothers were injured last night when the car in which they were riding smashed into the center guard rail of Highway 101 north of the San Quentin Wye.

Louis a Langlamet Jr., 18, and his passenger, Joseph B. Langlamet, 16, both of 17 Latham Street, San Rafael, were going north on the highway at 10 p.m. when their car began to lurch violently from side to side and hit the rail, Louis Langlamet told the California Highway Patrol.

The patrol said the car's brakes may have failed.

The brothers were taken to San Rafael General Hospital where Louis was treated for a cut right knee. Joseph suffered a broken right arm and was scheduled to undergo surgery for it at the hospital today.

Dentist Hears Films Charge

Dr. Charles Frederick Tobin, 41, Fairfax dentist, was arraigned in Marin Municipal Court yesterday on a charge of distributing of lewd movies.

Judge Leonard A. Thomas continued plea entry until 1:30 p.m. Jan. 25. Tobin, represented by Jack Miller, San Francisco attorney, did not appear. He is free on $1,100 bail.

The dentist of 101 San Gabriel Drive, is accused of trying to sell a 22-year-old Corte Madera divorcee a can of film for $32. A second misdemeanor charge, dispensing dangerous drugs without proper labeling, also was filed against him after he allegedly gave her 38 pep pills and barbituate pills.

Curriculum Reports

Sausalito School District trustees will hear a series of curriculum reports, including one on the physical education testing program, at a meeting at 8 p.m. today in the district office. A film on activities of Richardson Bay School will be shown and a preview of the teachers' institute scheduled for Jan. 28 will be presented, according to Supt. Charles Lavaroni.

Toll Rise To Finance Second Deck?

An increase in the Golden Gate Bridge toll may be necessary if a second deck is to be added to the span, directors of the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District indicated yesterday.

The directors asked district engineer Arthur C. Jenkins to make estimates on revenue, based on present and increased tolls.

"Present tolls are bringing in about five and one-half million dollars a year," said director Lowell Edington of Napa. "I want Mr. Jenkins to find out if, with a moderate toll increase, we can go it ourselves," instead of floating bonds.

A proposed lower deck on the bridge would provide four or five additional traffic lanes. Two engineering firms have presented preliminary reports showing that a second deck is feasible. Directors are awaiting more detailed reports.

Marin's two directors on the board, Thomas D. Hardcastle and George H. Ludy, agreed that a "modest increase" in bridge toll may be necessary.

Hardcastle and Ludy said they do not foresee any big jump in toll from the present 25 cents, but thought a "10 per cent increase" is possible.

Terra Linda Ready For Vote

Students at Terra Linda High School will vote Thursday for next semester's officers for the junior and senior classes.

Officers for the other classes serve through the year.

Senior class candidates are Lee Bright, Brian Duthie and Sam Osborne for president: Tom Nelson and Chris Sloman for vice president; Connie Carter and Pam Posers for secretary, and Rick Laubscher and Karen Murphy for treasurer.

Junior class candidates are Dan Cooley, Shand Stevens and Marsha Zitella for president; Steve Semorile and Dave Stapp for vice president, Sherryl Kinchla, Jan Lechlikner and Cathie Wright for secretary, and Jeff Brody and Mike Weber for treasurer.

Cranston Talk Set March 10

State Controller Alan Cranston will speak on the financial problems of small, special taxing districts at the Marin County Civic Center at 8 p.m. March 16.

Directors of small districts throughout the county will be invited as special guests by the county Local Agency Formation Commission which is sponsoring the session, Asst. County Administrator John F. Barrows said.

The 1965 grand jury in its annual report was particularly critical of small districts and their failure to do the job.

MOUNT TAMALPAIS CEMETERY

Natural Marin Beauty

for those who've loved our county

The beauty of Mount Tamalpais Cemetery is typically Marin. Here in a setting of soft, rolling hills and lovely vistas are Marin's native trees and shrubs, accented by beautiful lawns and flowers.

For over 90 years leading Marin families have chosen Mount Tamalpais as a final resting place. One good reason is the substantial endowment fund which assures the care and maintenance of this cemetery in the years ahead.

We invite your inspection of this peaceful site. Our staff is always ready to answer your questions and describe Mount Tamalpais facilities.

OBITUARIES

Vincent Leonesio Dies At 63

Vincent Joseph (Toots) Leonesio of 20 Ida Street, San Rafael, a retired house painter, died yesterday in a local hospital after a short illness. He was 63 years old.

A native of Jackson, Amador County, Leonesio lived in Marin since he was three years old. He was a member of Marin County Painters Local No. 83 and of the Independent Order of Redmen.

He is survived by his wife, Doris Leonesio of San Rafael; a brother, John Leonesio of Fairfax, and a sister, Mrs. Katherine McClure of Corte Madera. He was brother-in-law of retired Fairfax City Clerk Alice Leonesio.

A Requiem Mass will be offered at 9:30 a.m. Monday at St. Raphael's Church, San Rafael. Burial will be at Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael. Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

San Quentin Convict Is Stabbed

A trail of blood on the concrete floor of a San Quentin cell block about 10 a.m. today led officers to a convict who had been stabbed minutes before but who was walking away from the area where he had been attacked.

The victim, Harry S. Luckett, 39, who first came to the prison in 1948 from Alameda County for forgery, was in good condition later at the prison hospital with a stab wound in his back on the left side and with a cut over his left eye.

Luckett would not tell who stabbed him, or where, but duty officer Leo F. Shepherd said officials believed the incident occurred in the east housing unit, where the trail of blood was first found. Shepherd said there were, as yet, no suspects and no weapon was found.

Luckett, after first going to the prison, had three subsequent commitments, two for destruction of prison property and one for possession of a weapon.

Utilities Plan Asked By Club

The Black Point Improvement Club last night voted to ask the Marin County Planning Commission to require underground utility wiring in the Hidden Harbor subdivision.

"This will be the first subdivision we've had on this side of the hill and we wanted to be sure it was done right," explained Mrs. Richard DuFault, secretary.

The club also recommended that the county planning commission grant a use permit to Ronald Darnell of Crest Drive for a 16-dog kennel. It will not be for commercial use, said Mrs. DuFault.

Redwood High Sets Run-Off Election

A close contest for president in Redwood High School student body elections yesterday will result in a run-off election Friday. Candidates will be Randy Homrig of Corte Madera and Bill Niccolls of Ross.

Eugenie Yaryan of Kentfield was elected secretary; Dave Strathairn of Ross, vice president; and Dave Pautsch of Corte Madera, assistant commissioner of finance.

LEE TANFORAN

Lee Ross Tanforan of 38 East Crescent Drive, San Rafael, a member of a family who were among the early pioneers of the area, died yesterday in a local hospital after a short illness. He was 51.

He was a grandson of Turibio Tanforan, the captain of a Chilean ship, who settled and married in the area when his crew mutinied in San Francisco during the gold-rush days of 1850.

The grandfather bought a ranch in San Bruno and founded the race track there which bears the family name. The Tanforan family was closely associated with the pioneering Pacheco family of Ignacio.

His father, Frank Tanforan, who died in 1948, was in the dairy business in Marin and Sonoma counties.

Born in Novato, Tanforan was formerly in the service station business in San Rafael and Ignacio and for the past 15 years had been a mechanic with Rossi's Garages, Inc., San Rafael.

He was a member of Machinists Union Local 238, San Rafael and the Marin Rod and Gun Club.

Survivors are his wife, Dora P. Tanforan; a son, James P. Tanforan; a sister, Mrs. Evelyn Allison of San Rafael; and a brother, Frank Tanforan of Petaluma.

Requiem Mass will be offered Tuesday at 9:30 a.m. in St. Raphael's Church. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael.

Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. Monday in the chapel of Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

EDITH HAX

Edith J. Hax, 90, died yesterday at her home, 2501 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Fairfax.

A native of California, Mrs. Hax lived in Palo Alto most of her life before coming to Marin County about five years ago. Her husband, the late Edward J. Hax, was a musician.

Funeral will be held Monday at 10 a.m. at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael. Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery, Colma.

Rosary will be recited tomorrow at 8 p.m. in Keaton's chapel.

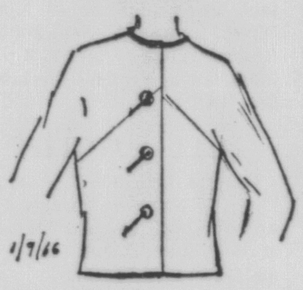
Use Ordinary Construction Unless Working With Knits

By EUNICE FARMER

How can I change a skirt pattern with a waist band and a zipper to one that has an elastic band with no zipper?

Mrs. M. L.



Dear Mrs. M. L.:

Although you didn't mention it, I think you are trying to copy the type of waistband used on knits. The fact that knits have an elasticity that can stretch as much as the elastic waistband, makes it possible to use this type of construction. This would be impossible to do with a skirt made of ordinary fabric because it would be much too full at the waist for a smooth appearance. Better stick to the ordinary construction unless you are working with knits.

Mrs. R. L. Erickson, Salina, Kan., wins a Tailor Trix Pressing Board for the following idea.

"My little girl was given a dress that fit her perfectly, except that it was about 1½ inches too short-waisted. Not wanting to spend a lot of time taking the dress apart and inserting a sash, I ran two gathering threads below the waistline; one ¾ inch below the original gathering and one 1½ inches below.

"I gathered the fullness, making the new waistline the correct length. Then I sewed tiny white baby ric-rac over my gathering threads and the effect was that of hand-smocking which is so popular in ready-made garments at this time. It's darling, right in style, and took only a short time to do."

If you want additional information on the new plastic foam dress form I talked about a few weeks ago, please send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope and I will send you all the facts in detail. Mail your inquiry to Eunice Farmer, in care of the Independent-Journal.

You asked teen-agers to write you, so here is my question. My turtleneck dickeys always stretch out of shape. Is there a way to fix them?

Chris

Dear Chris:

This can be helped by getting the elastic thread in the notion department, carefully hand-sew it to the edge of the turtleneck with a tiny running stitch. You can pull it up enough to retain the original shape, however don't make it too tight to pull over your head. You can prevent this from happening by using this elastic thread before your garment has become stretched. This thread can be used at the neckline of all sweaters. You'll love the way they get that new look again!

I saw a beautiful suit in a fashion magazine, but I can't find a pattern like it. It had a diagonal line extending from the side seam to about 4 inches below the neckline. The buttonholes were put on an angle also. Can I do this without a pattern?

Mrs. V. G.

Dear Mrs. V. G.:

With a basic knowledge of sewing and good common sense, you can change almost any fashion detail. Just remember, wherever you cut your pattern, you must add the ⅝ inch seamline to each side of the cut edge. In this case, the buttonhole will follow the diagonal line. Just leave the space open for the correct width of the buttonhole and secure well at each end. You don't make a bound buttonhole when the buttonhole appears in a seam. Mark the other buttonholes at the same angle as your slanted seam. They aren't any more difficult to make than buttonholes made on a straight line. Try them!

You may also want to make the jacket in contrasting colors. Be different and original, that's the fun of sewing.

If you haven't received my leaflet "Bound Buttonholes," send for your free copy today. Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Sew Simple in care of the Independent-Journal.

Miss Storms Is Bride Of Don Harvell

In a double ring ceremony on Dec. 18 in the Reorganized Church of the Latter Day Saints in Richmond, Mo., Donald Lee Harvell claimed Angela Fay Storms as his bride.

The bride is the daughter of Sgt. Maj. and Mrs. Kenneth A. Storms of Ft. Benning, Ga., and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Harvell of Petaluma, formerly of San Rafael.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length gown of white bouquet taffeta accented with seed pearls and Alencon lace. The skirt formed a chapel train.

Preceding the bride to the altar in a full length gown of pale blue satin was Gale Shirkey as maid of honor.

Bridesmaids Annette Shirkey and Linda Eslinger wore full length gowns of royal blue satin.

David Storms of Independence, Mo., served the bridegroom as best man and groomsmen were Randy Lane and Kenneth Derstler. Ushering guests to their seats were William D. Ferguson and Douglas Kirk.

A reception followed the ceremony at the church.

The bride was graduated from high school in Columbus, Ga.

The bridegroom attended San Rafael High School and served with the U.S. Army.

Following a wedding trip to Excelsior Springs, the couple will make their home in Liberty, Mo.

Club Gives Honorary Award

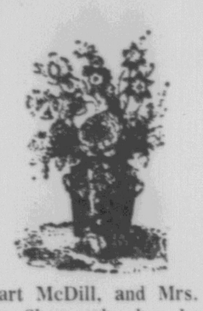
By MOLLY MARIN

A surprise highlight of Thursday's Outdoor Art Club meeting in Mill Valley was the award of an honorary membership to Mrs. Delmar Smith Clinton.

A member of the club for almost 50 years, Helen, as she is known to everyone, was president in 1927-28 and has been a leader in the club throughout these years.

Presenting the award was past president Mrs. F. J. Connelly, who commented on Mrs. Clinton's many outstanding services to the club and recalled some of the highlights of her presidency from a rare 1927-28 yearbook she happened to have.

Among longtime members and friends seated at a special luncheon table preceding the meeting were three women who had served on Mrs. Clinton's executive board, past president Mrs. Richard Cederberg, Mrs. Robert Bowie and Mrs. Stewart Bostwick. Special guests coming from San Francisco for the occasion as a surprise were Mrs. Clinton's only daughter, Mrs. Alexander



Stuart McDill, and Mrs. William Shea, who has been a friend of Helen Clinton's since they were 10 years old and classmates at the Pacific Heights School in San Francisco.

Born on Christmas Day, 1880, she has lived most of her life in Mill Valley and has been a leader in Marin social and music circles. She was one of the founders of the Marin Music Chest and Marin Art and Garden Center and has been a honorary member of the Symphony Guild of Marin since its inception. She was also a founder of the former Outdoor Art Club-sponsored Mill Valley concert series and served as president of its executive board for 12 years. She is an honorary sponsor of the Marin Debutant Ball.

ON A wedding trip in Lake Tahoe are Dr. and Mrs. William M. Edwards Jr., who were married on Jan. 2 at Trinity Lutheran Church in Minden, Nev. The bride is the former Jean Taaffe of San Rafael. Dr. Edwards, son of the former San Rafael physician and surgeon, Dr. William M. Edwards Sr., recently give up his practice in San Rafael to return to the U.S. Navy as a medical officer.

MRS. MARY RUBEY, daughter of the George W. Franzmans of San Rafael, was assistant violinist in a performance of Vivaldi's "Concerto Grosso for Two Violins and Violoncello Obligato" by the University Symphony at University of California in Santa Barbara on Saturday. Mary plans to teach in San Rafael after her graduation in music later this month.

Reservations Being Taken By Creative Dance Group

Registrations are now being taken for a few vacancies in dance classes sponsored by the Creative Dance Group in Mill Valley, San Anselmo, Terra Linda and Novato.

For young children there are preschool and kindergarten classes and for older children a variety of classes to meet varying skills as they develop and mature. A special class in jazz for teen-agers has been added on Saturday mornings.

For adults there are exercise, ballet (beginning and advanced) and advanced modern dance classes, all during evening hours.

A special Thursday evening group in tumbling and dance techniques is available for boys.

Further information may be obtained from Mill Valley coordinator Mrs. Weld Wilkie or Novato coordinator Mrs. Harry Magill.

Prevent Poisoning

Don't use galvanized pots and tubs for preparing or storing food. Zinc food poisoning can result.

TaMar Chapter Will Hear Talk

The TaMar Chapter of B'nai B'rith Women will hear Mrs. Fred Kirshner speak on "Dolls for Democracy." The meeting will be held at the Terra Linda Recreation Center in Terra Linda at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

MUSEUM ASSN. HOSTS

Mrs. Edward B. Hayden, president, Marin Museum Assn., admired watercolors with Peter H. Behr, center, Marin County board of supervisors, and Dr. Abbot Kaplan, chairman, California Art Commission, after she gave the welcome at yesterday's luncheon. The Association hosted the luncheon at Peacock Gap for the California Arts Commission which met in Marin yesterday. Afterwards, several prominent Marinites reported to the commission on various arts projects in the county. (Independent-Journal photo)

Entertainment Label Decried For Fine Arts

The fine arts are erroneously looked upon as a form of entertainment and therefore presumed to be self-supporting, the chairman of the California Art Commission told 160 Marin residents gathered at Peacock Gap Country Club in San Rafael yesterday.

Dr. Abbott Kaplan declared that never in history have the fine arts been self-supporting. He said despite the tremendous growth in interest in the arts recently, there must be financial support if high levels of professional art are to be sustained.

"It is rather absurd that here in the wealthiest country in the world we have only limited support of the arts," Dr. Kaplan said.

He said about 600 top opera singers working in Europe are United States citizens who could not find employment in their own country. In postwar Germany, about 100 new theaters have been built and 70 per cent are supported by the state or national government, he declared.

Much of the growth in art has been on an amateur level, which is fine in improving the appreciation of fine arts by these amateurs. But the amateurs that try to reach professional level too soon, by exhibiting paintings or other efforts after little training, can lower the general level of appreciation by exposing the public to "pedestrian performances," claimed Kaplan.

He was the final speaker at the luncheon sponsored by the Marin Museum Assn. which honored members of the state art commission. The commission held its monthly meeting at the Marin County Civic Center, for the first time.

Several representatives of Marin art, music and dance groups spoke, telling the histories of their organizations their aims and needs.

Ann S. Halprin of the Dancers Workshop Company told of her group's recent tour of Europe. Her statements supported Kaplan's description of the high interest and monetary support for arts on the continent.

Others who spoke were Mrs. Florence Archibald of the Marin Music Chest, Mrs. Doris Morrison of the Marin Society of Artists. Jiri Herrmann of the Festival Theater, and Mrs. Ursula McCarthy, who read a statement from Mrs. Marcelle McCoy, director of the county fair, who was ill.

Supervisor Peter H. Behr made a short welcoming statement.

Mrs. Nancy Hayden, president of the Marin Museum Assn., was mistress of ceremonies and spoke on the plans of her group.

Sausalito Family In The Swim

Sausalito skipper Bruce Martens will soon be "free of the land" and have his toes in the "world's largest swimming pool," the ocean.

He left yesterday with his wife, Fern, and 16-year-old son, Bruce T. Martens, for Ensenada, Mexico, where they will board, and he will captain, the schooner Pilgrim on a six-week cruise to Jamaica.

Sailing along will be 14 other persons who will pay $500 each to sail to the Caribbean. Two are from Sausalito.

Folk singer Glenn Yarbrough, who will join the ship somewhere en route from Ensenada, is the ship's owner. Peter Witcosky is the other Sausalitan.

The Martens will be away from their home port of Sausalito about 18 months, said Martens. They plan to run cruises on the 85-foot vessel from Jamaica where Yarbrough has a small banana and orange plantation. Next summer they will run up the east coast.

The ship was built in 1932 and was used in a television series, "Adventures in Paradise," when called the Tiki.

Martens, who lives at 20 Crescent Avenue, is a former merchant marine skipper and a teacher of celestial navigation. Dick Miller of Bauman Bros. and Dick Miller Associates, Sausalito, is assisting him in getting participants for the voyage which begins Jan. 25.

"I'm anxious to get free of this land and get out in the blue ocean," said Martens. "Where the ocean's blue, I will have a swimming pool that's thousands of miles in diameter."

Video Star On Cancer Fund List

Allan Sherman, star of television, movies, records and nightclubs, will be a special guest at the American Cancer Society's Project Victory dinner held by the Marin chapter, Monday at 7:30 p.m. at Sabella's of Marin, Alto.

Other celebrities at the $10-a-head dinner will be movie star Dennis Morgan, broadcaster Carter B. Smith, organist Bob Stewart and football players Kermit Alexander and Clark Miller of the San Francisco 49ers.

All proceeds will go to the cancer fund, and restaurant owner Angelo Sabella will donate the expense of the dinner and his employees, their services and time to the society.

Kennedys Arrive

MUSIC REVIEW

Evening Of Opera Is Very Good Work

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

More of the good work being done in the College of Marin's opera workshop was shown last night in Olney Hall in an "evening of opera highlights." It consisted of 11 scenes from 10 operas.

A large part of the credit is due to the talented young people, but they owe much to their dynamic young music and stage director, Dr. Peggy Donovan. Her direction from one of two pianos used as accompaniment kept everything moving and under admirable control.

From the standpoint of the audience probably too much was attempted, though it is understandable that a considerable variety of roles is needed to show each student's capacities.

By far the most impressive excerpt was the scene and aria from Puccini's "Sister Angelica" with soprano Sydney Peterzon as Sister Angelica and mezzo soprano Margaret Lee as the aunt. Both have beautiful, expressive voices, and their acting had real dramatic impact.

The best comedy scene was the one from Menotti's "The Old Maid and the Thief," thanks to Marie Goff's flare for comedy, which was seen also in her role as Marcellina in Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro." This is definitely her forte. Carolyn Wiswell as Miss Todd in the Menotti's work and as Papagena in the excerpt from Mozart's "The Magic Flute," also showed some of this kind of talent as well as pleasing voice.

Soprano Martha Ward as Mimi in two scenes from Puccini's "La Boheme" revealed considerable talent, and Thomas Brennan was better in the tenor role of Rodolfo in one scene than Donald Neely in the second one.

Tenor Kenneth Rowland always makes a handsome and energetic lead but needs to learn to relax and not force his essentially good voice as he did both as Lt. Pinkerton in Puccini's "Madame Butterfly" and the Duke of Mantua in Verdi's "Rigoletto."

Versatility and grace as an actress were the strong points of soprano Ann Secrist in scenes from four operas, and Leslie Retallick's soprano voice was notable for its pure, youthful sweetness in two scenes.

Soprano Joan Smith's voice was flexible and pleasing, especially as Cio Cio San in "Madame Butterfly," but she needs further training in expressive body motion and gesture.

Others singing their roles well were Wyn Brown, Ruth Derksen, Richard Riddell and Chew Pah Lim.

Costumes by William Nelson and sets by Mike Nail were effective within the framework of necessary economy and rapid change.

Assistant music director Larry Snyder in the first half of the program and Phyllis Murphy in the second half did their usual splendid work at the second piano.

The performance will be repeated tonight with a change of cast in some scenes.

Tam Planning Six Dramas

Tamalpais High School's drama department will present six one-act plays next Friday and Saturday at 8:30 p.m. in Ruby Scott Auditorium.

Produced by drama director Daniel Caldwell, they are:

"Ringing in the Groom," directed by student Bob Meier; "Thursday Evening," directed by student Chris Minto, and "The Undercurrent," directed by Caldwell. 8hese three will be given Friday.

Saturday's productions are "The Sandbox," directed by student Fran Moitoza; "The Women Folk," directed by student Sandy Sarvis, and "Opening Night," directed by student Janey Clark. The three directors for Saturday are students.

Rehearsals Slated For 'The Creation'

Weekly rehearsals will start at 8 p.m. Feb. 1 in the game room of the Drake's Arms, Inverness, for the Inverness Festival Chorus production of Haydn's "The creation."

Performance date has not yet been set, but probably will be in spring or early summer in the Inverness area, according to Mrs. Robert L. Stommel, wife of the director.

Council Votes Funds For Cast To Travel

College of Marin's student executive council voted Thursday to appropriate $700 to help send the cast of the drama department production "Servant of Two Masters" to the Northwest Drama Conference at the University of Oregon Feb. 10, 11 and 12.

Drama department head James Dunn said the money will pay half the cost of the trip. The remainder of the needed funds will be collected during three benefit performances of the play in the college's little theater Feb. 3, 4 and 5 at 8:30 p.m., Dunn said.

SOCKING IN THE NEW LITTER

Duchess Anita Ali of St. Petersburg, Fla., apparently has found the answer for any wandering puppies. This litter of seven Chihuahua pups has been socked in. They're owned by Mr. and Mrs. Angie Aliprantis. (UPI Telephoto)

Prenatal Care Linked To Birth Defects

(The following article was supplied by the Marin Chapter of the National Foundation, March of Dimes.)

By ROBERT E. HALL, M.D.
(Associate Professor of Obstetrics and Gynecology, Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons.)

CONSULTING—Dr. Robert E. Hall, associate professor of obstetrics and gynecology at Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons, consults with a patient. He has been involved in measuring the influence of prenatal care upon the number of infants born with birth defects.

Until now medical scientists have been unable to measure the direct influence of prenatal care upon the incidence of infants born with serious birth defects, which in the United States total about 250,000 a year. But scientists do know that the two are associated in some way.

For example, we know that:

Faulty prenatal development is the principal cause of stillbirth, of babies handicapped by birth defects, and of infant deaths.

The cause of some infant deaths and defects are known and safeguards can be taken against them.

Defects that kill or cripple are especially common among premature babies.

Some mothers run a greater risk than others of having stillbirths or premature babies. These women can often be identified early in pregancy and appropriate steps taken to protect them and their infants.

Medical supervision, especially in the early months of pregnancy, can minimize risks, save lives and reduce disability. Good prenatal care, for instance, does reduce the incidence of prematurity.

Fortunately, we can say today that the chances are about 15 to 1 that every time a baby is born in this country, happiness reigns; the parents can say, thankfully, "our baby is normal."

Problems of providing prenatal care are twofold:

First problem is the lack of existing prenatal centers. There are not enough public clinics for prenatal care, particularly in the urban centers, and where they do exist they are usually overcrowded and understaffed.

The second problem involves attitudes of women for whom these clinics are provided. In the lower income groups is found most of the indifference (and sometimes hostility) to prenatal clinics. The reasons range from those of the woman who scoffs, "Why should I go to a clinic? I'm pregnant, not sick"; to the woman who complains, "The clinic is too far away and I can't afford a babysitter"; to the woman who cries, "I have to wait too long—and I see a different doctor every time."

All too often these complaints are justifiable. The woman who says she is pregnant but not sick is usually correct. But she does need medical supervision during her pregnancy to catch unexpected complications that might make her sick or harm her baby. As in every other area of medicine, obstetricians are primarily interested in prevention.

It is greatly encouraging to know that The National Foundation — March of Dimes has launched a national program in which volunteers will seek to arouse public concern about defective prenatal development and then stimulate community action toward more and better prenatal care.

This project is only one part of the basic program of the March of Dimes organization which, in 1958, shortly after its conquest of polio, began supporting research for the prevention of birth defects and financed facilities for treatment of infants born with these afflictions.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Human Tongue Is Surrounded By Irritants, Bacteria, Smoke

VAN DELLEN

Burning, stinging and soreness of the tongue are common. The remedy is easy when the cause is known, but such cases are the exception rather than the rule. All too often there are no demonstrable lesions and treatment is by trial and error.

The tongue, located in one of the most strategic areas in the body, is subject to mechanical irritation from foods, condiments, smoking, jagged teeth, and pyorrhea. The mouth also teems with bacteria, yet it is amazing how well the tongue fares in this environment.

THE ORGAN also is influenced by internal conditions and has been used as an indicator of general health and disease for years. It becomes dry when the body is dehydrated and beefy red in anemia and deficiency diseases.

The structure is one of the first to suffer from a vitamin shortage. It also is involved when the stomach is affected by indigestion or lack of ferments, including hydrochloric acid. Occasionally, soreness is referred pain from infected tonsils or an abscessed tooth.

But the problem is difficult when all these possibilities have been considered or remedied and pain persists. This situation is not uncommon among menopausal women and those who are nervous or emotionally upset. Many fear cancer.

MORE THAN 15 years ago a from Columbia University demonstrated the difficulties in helping these individuals. There were 60 persons with a variety of tongue complaints such as dryness, pain, burning, stinging, or soreness.

Two dozen or more of the usual medical and dental remedies were tried, but nothing really helped. The fact that narcotics and anesthetic ointments failed to offer relief suggests that the source of distress was not of local, but of nervous origin.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

MUSCLE TUMORS

A. M. T. writes: What do fibroid tumors feed on? I have heard that women with this condition usually feel tired.

REPLY

Fibroids are muscle tumors of the wall of the uterus. They require the same nourishment as normal tissue, and the tumor would die if the blood supply to the lesion was clamped off. The only relationship between fatigue and fibroids stems from an anemia resulting from loss of blood.

LARYNX SPASM

D. D. writes: Is croup considered an allergic disease?

REPLY

No. It is spasm of the larynx that occurs in tots between the ages of 2 and 4 years. Many of the afflicted youngsters are of a nervous disposition and the condition tends to run in families. It is most likely to develop at night in a cold bedroom or when the child is suffering from a mild respiratory infection.

FLORIDA FRECKLES

J. M. writes: I just returned from Florida with face and arms full of freckles. Is there anything I can do to get rid of them?

REPLY

This is the penalty some people pay for a winter vacation in a sunny climate. Stay out of the sun and your freckles will disappear spontaneously. Meanwhile, camouflage them with make-up.

SMOKING AND TB

John writes: If a person with tuberculosis continues to smoke, will this slow down the progress of recovery?

REPLY

I would judge so, because smoking will irritate rather than soothe the diseased lungs.

Today's Health Hint — Avoid overexposure to cleaning solvents.

Ross To Ask County, Cities For Funds

The Independent-Journal yesterday incorrectly stated that the Ross Town Council Thursday decided to ask Fairfax and San Anselmo for $9,000 in county urban thoroughfares funds to assist in widening of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

The Ross council will ask for a total of $39,000: $16,000 from San Anselmo and $14,000 from Fairfax in urban thoroughfares funds, which the cities reportedly will not be able to use this year for lack of matching funds, and $9,000 extra from Marin County.

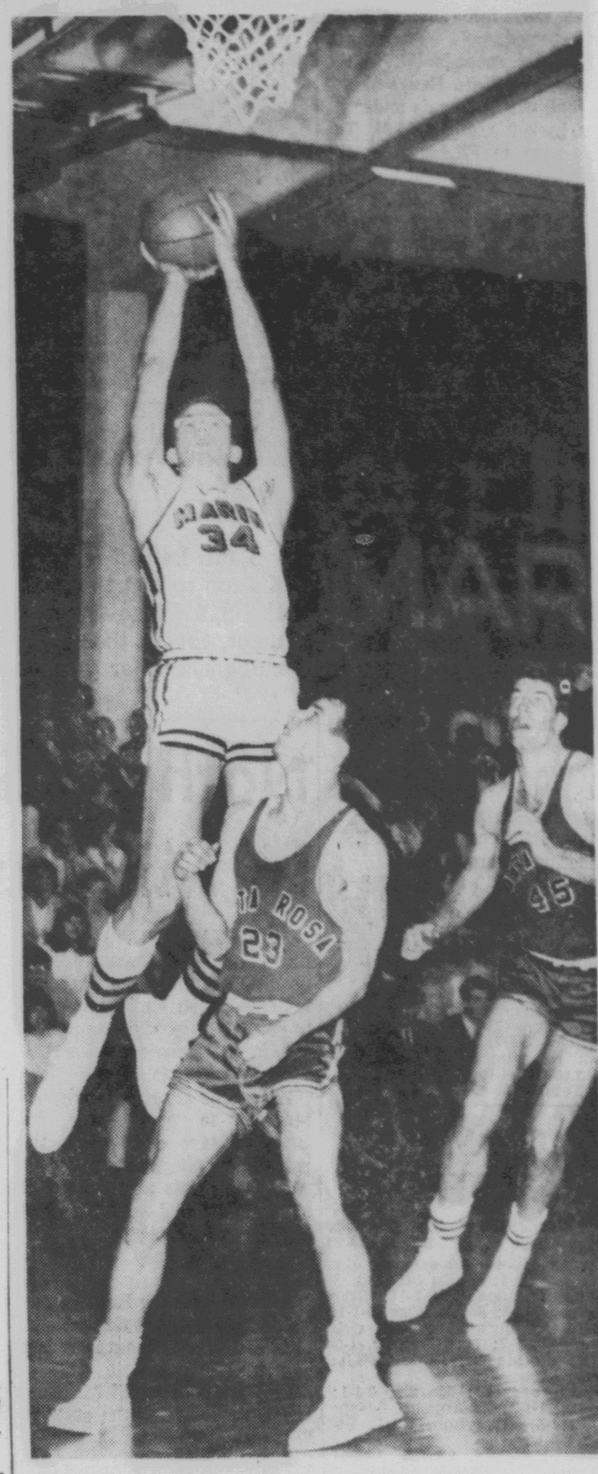
Dazzling Mariners Clobber Santa Rosa, 88-76

LOSE SOMETHING?—College of Marin physical education instructor Robert Justice does some antics on trampoline during halftime show at Marin-Santa Rosa game in Kentfield last night. (Independent-Journal photos)



UP AND IN—Marin star Fred Arnold leaps high over Santa Rosa defenders Jerry Bonfigli (23) and John Karlin (45) to sink basket in last half of last night's Golden Valley Conference game at Kentfield. Marin won, 88-76.

6 Tars Hit In Double Figures

By RALPH CHATOIAN

If College of Marin's basketball team plays in Rocklin tonight like it did last night in Kentfield, the Sierra Junior College cagers are going to be in for a shock.

The Santa Rosa Bear Cubs were the ones who got the shock last night in Kentfield when the Tars from Marin came back from a five-point deficit at half to overwhelm the visitors 88-76.

"They all were great," were the words of a happy Marin coach, Cal Riemcke. To single out any players in last night's game would be quite a chore, but Larry Wolfe, normally not a member of the starting unit, deserves a lot of credit. He started last night because of his defensive ability and did a great job under the boards both offensively and defensively.

Marin's big men in the front line, Jim Halm and Fred Arnold, were really big last night. Halm led the Tars' scoring assault with 20 points and Arnold came through with 15 more, and both of the 6-7 stars showed their muscles under the boards, repeatedly coming down with rebounds. They were two big reasons Marin outrebounded the Bear Cubs 33-26.

Riemcke's boys again showed a balanced scoring attack, with all helping to wallop Santa Rosa in the second half. Wolfe ended up with 13 points, Rod Monti came off the bench to tally 15 points, Lorry Galassi added 12 more, and Don Hanson notched 11.

That's six men in double figures for Marin. Wow!

SCORING HONORS

John Karlin, Santa Rosa's 6-5 center, tied Halm for game high scoring honors with 20 points and guard Bob Butler tallied 18.

The first half of the game was really a scrap, the lead changing hands five times before the Bear Cubs rallied late in the half to spurt out to that five-point lead at intermission, 42-37. Marin's pressing defense forced Santa Rosa to shoot from outside during most of that half, but then Butler, that former prep great from Montgomery High in Santa Rosa, found his way through the key and started hitting on layups. Then Karlin scored four points on free tosses late in the half and added a bucket to push his team to the fore.

But then came intermission—dances from song girls, a show on a trampoline, and what must have been a heck of a locker room discussion between Riemcke and his cagers.

Less than two minutes into the second half Marin erased that Santa Rosa lead and went ahead 45-44 on a basket underneath by Arnold. From there, the Tars never looked back.

IT'S A ROUT

In the first 14 minutes of the second half, Marin outscored Santa Rosa 35-12. By then, Marin was in front 72-55. What had started out as a toughie turned into a rout!

Monti scored 12 of his 15 points in that second half.

The Tars finished the game without Arnold, who fouled out with 5:12 left in the game, and Bill Pandiani, the little fireplug guard, who played a good defensive game before fouling out with 3:26 left. Karlin, Santa Rosa's big man, and Galassi finished the game playing with four fouls against them.

To illustrate the team win for Marin, one time in the second half the scoring went like this: Arnold, basket; Galassi, two free throws; Halm, a free throw; Hanson, a jump shot, and Wolfe, a free throw, as one by one, all players were hitting for points. During that spree, Santa Rosa could muster only one free throw.

DAZZLING SHOOTING

The Tars shot a dazzling 58 per cent from the floor, making 32 of 55 shots, and Santa Rosa went 25x53, 45 per cent. Marin made 24 of its 34 free throws and Santa Rosa 26 of 32.

The triumph gave the Tars a 2-0 record in conference play and was their eighth straight win. Santa Rosa is now 2-1. For Marin, it was one giant step toward the Golden Valley Conference championship.

Santa Rosa scoring: Ron McEntire, 4-4-12; John Kerlin, 6-8-20; Bob Butler, 6-6-18; Terry Bonfigli, 5-2-12; Roger Whitright, 1-4-6; John Bles, 2-2-6; Peter Waller, 1-0-2. Totals: 25-26—76.

Marin scoring: Fred Arnold, 7-1-15; Larry Wolfe, 4-5-13; Jim Halm, 8-4-20; Lorry Galassi, 3-6-12; Don Hanson, 4-3-11; Bill Pandiani, 1-0-2; Rod Monti, 5-5-15. Totals: 32-24—88.

Officials: Joe Wardlaw and Wes Mathews.

JIM MURRAY

Plenty Of Heat From Mail Bag

No column I wrote in recent weeks engendered as much heat or downright bellicosity as one I wrote decrying the whole silly business of powerful, multi-million-dollar universities lowering themselves to the position of mere proving grounds for professional football players.

The overheated mail was all all of a piece. How dare I say football players were stupid? (I didn't. I said the system was stupid.) What did I mean by suggesting that athletics weren't good for a student body? (What good does it do a 20,000-member student body to sit in a chair and yell "Rah!" for 44 virtual employees of the university to out-exercise 44 other employees of another university?)

But everyone is entitled to be heard and I will let a man who is both a high school football coach and a history teacher be surrogate for the disaffected among you. He is John T. Glore of Pattonville High School in St. Ann, Mo. who read the cognizant column in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat and deponeth as follows (with my "explanations" in parenthesis):

"DEAR MR. MURRAY:

"In regard to your column . . . you're as far off base as possible.

"You talk as if college athletes in general do not graduate or receive a diploma. (Note: I would say well over 70 per cent of the pro football players I talk to in locker rooms are always saying things like 'Well, I lack 12 units of getting my degree' or 'I hope someday to go back and finish out my education but right now I have to feed my wife and 7 kids,' etc.) You imply that physical education is a major for muscle-bound idiots. (Note: What I imply is that muscle-bound idiots use physical education for a major which I think you will agree is a different thing.)

"YOU AS much as say all football players are stupid. (Note: No, I don't. I wouldn't even say all sportswriters are stupid because generalities are dangerous. All Irishmen don't drink, all Scots aren't frugal, and all Italians can't sing. A significant percentage of all three fit the stereotype, however, or it wouldn't exist in the first place. And history has had some stupid football players elsewhere than on stage.)

"IT TAKES brains to stay in college and to be occupied with hours of practice and still stay in college. (Note: Well, then, what a waste of brains! Hours of practice, indeed! Why not train those brains for something besides carrying a football? The worst excuse for college football I ever heard is that it uses up brains as well as blood, cartilage and other human resources.)

"I will match the intelligence of any of these (football players) against that of any nonathlete. (Note: At what? If it's a spelling bee, count me in. If we're going to match wits by butting heads, I concede.)

"MOST PHYSICAL education majors take such courses as anatomy, physiology, zoology, kinesiology, plus many health classes and the same general requirements as majors in any other field. (Note: If you can get a definition of 'kinesiology' from any member of an NFL backfield — with no coaching from the audience and without giving them the answers in advance as football teams have been known to do at certain military installations — I will personally serve as tackling dummy at the opening of summer practice. If they can spell 'kinesiology,' I will serve on the Chicago Bears' kickoff squad.)

"I CAN name you many athletes that were honor roll students. (Note: I can name you more who weren't.)

"I hold a Master of Arts degree in School Administration and I will match my graduate grades (which were obtained after my eligibility was gone) with anyone you wish." (Note: Okay. Match them with Admiral Rickover. Robert Hutchins. Dr. Salk. By the way, what about your grades DURING your eligibility. Suffer, did they, because you had more important things to learn—like pass patterns?)

SERIOUSLY, COACH, it is not my function—or pleasure—to indulge in this kind of dueling where I get the choice of weapons (words). I think football has its place. If athletics gives a poor boy a chance to capitalize intellectually on his skills and save him from a shoeshine stand or a broom and apron, I am all for it. When football gives only the Chicago Bears an opportunity to capitalize on his skills, I'm just damned if I can see why the taxpayers of a state should foot the bill.

IN SHORT, taxes should not go for football players but for doctors, lawyers, scientists and statesmen. And don't tell me about Whizzer White. He's your one-man backfield. My point is, why should football teams be extensions of student bodies? Why recruit at all? Why not get back to the principles of Dink Stover and Ted Coy and Frank Merriwell? Football is fine. Hired platoons is hypocrisy.

Youth Movement In Full Swing

By BOB MYERS

SAN DIEGO (AP)—The youth movement was in full swing today in the $40,000 San Diego Open Golf tournament as a pair of 26-year-old professionals, newcomers to prominence, Paul Bondeson and Chris Blocker, ran 1-2 into the third round.

Bondeson, from Palm Springs, led the field with a 36-hole score of 132 after rounds of 67-65.

Blocker, from Jal, N.M., was a stroke back with 65-68—133.

There is a resemblance between the two golfers: Neither has ever won an important tournament. Both are blonds, six feet or over. They are roommates this week at the tournament headquarters, the Stardust Country Club.

There is one difference. Bondeson is married and has two youngsters while Blocker is still a bachelor.

Another pair of relatively young players remained in the picture. They were Charles Coody of Fort Worth, Tex., and Harold Kneece of Aiken, S.C., who were tied at 135.

The challenge from the older fellows came from varied sources.

Tournament-wise Don January, with 68-66, was at 134. And the 136 bracket included such genuine championship threats as Bill Casper Jr., 70-66; Mason Rudolph, 67-69; Mike Souchak 68-68, and Tommy Aaron, 65-71.

Deadlocked with these four was still another youngster, Tom Weiskopf, 68-68. This 23-year-old from Columbus, Ohio, may be distinguished by the fact that he beat Ben Hogan in a practice round last summer.

ORIGINAL FIELD

The original field of more than 140 was cut to 74 for the final two rounds at the par 35-36—71 Stardust course. Cutoff score was 143.

There were several notable absentees for the final phases of the tournament. Included were Tony Lema, 149; Art Wall Jr., 147; Paul Harney, 147: Bob Goalby, 146, and the 1965 PGA Rookie of the Year, Homero Blancas, 145.

Bondeson had seven birdies and a bogey yesterday and said he feels he is playing better than he has in many months. He broke in as a pro in 1962.

Blocker, who shared the first round lead at 65 with Aaron, had four birdies and a bogey in his round yesterday.

"I think I'm in a go position now," said Blocker, who observed that he felt more relaxed after taking a bogey 5 on the eighth hole. Curiously, he knocked in a 30-foot putt for a birdie 3 on the next hole.

Unshaken Cal Bows To UCLA

BERKELEY (AP) — Mike Lynn's 25 points helped ninth-ranked UCLA remain undefeated in the Pacific Athletic Conference as the Bruins overcame an unshaken California team 75-66 last night.

The Bruins didn't pull away from the losing Bears until 1 minute and 15 seconds from the end when they widened a three-point lead to a comfortable margin of 69-62.

The famed UCLA zone press failed to rattle the Bears, who lost the ball only twice.

Bruce Steckel, the California sophomore center who spent much of this week in the hospital with a bronchial ailment, paced the Bears with 22 points.

Kenny Washington scored 19 points for the Bruins, now 3-0 in PAC play. Cal is 1-2.

Yanks, Indians Trade Players

NEW YORK (AP) — Lou Clinton, who played for three American League teams in five days last season, is heading for still another team this year.

The Cleveland Indians traded Clinton to the New York Yankees yesterday for catcher Doc Edwards, who started his major league career with the Indians.

Clinton, who played with Boston from 1960 to 1964, started the 1965 season with the California Angels but was placed on waivers in September.

Both Kansas City and Cleveland claimed him, and he played for the Athletics in one game before he was awarded to the Indians. The 28-year-old outfielder batted .233 over-all with two homers and 10 runs batted in.

Edwards, 28, started with the Indians in 1962, went to Kansas City in 1963 and moved to the Yankees last year. He batted .183 with one homer and nine RBI.

J. V. Cagers Win

Redwood's junior varsity cagers whipped Novato jayvees 51-19 yesterday. George Bertram led the Redwood team with 10 points.

Warriors Beaten In Tense Battle

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — After a tense down-to-the-wire loss to Los Angeles, the San Francisco Warriors basketball team will have a week to recoup before a return match with the Lakers.

The Warriors hope to turn the tables when they meet the Western Division leaders of the National Basketball Assn. at Los Angeles on Jan. 21.

Guard Jerry West, who suffered an eye injury in the NBA All - Star game Tuesday, bounced back with 33 points as he led Los Angeles to a 118-110 victory over San Francisco last night.

West tied for high point honors with San Francisco's Guy Rodgers.

Down 62-48 at the half, the Warriors closed the gap in the see-sawing second period by using a full-court press. They edged in front 108-107 in the waning minutes.

But then Laker guard Walt Hazzard tossed in a crucial basket which broke the San Francisco rally and put Los Angeles ahead to stay.

Midway in the fourth quarter, Los Angeles was assessed two technical fouls after Coach Freddie Schaus and members of the Laker bench complained about the officiating.

Seattle Defenders Stop Seals By 4 To 1 Margin

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The fifth-place San Francisco Seals have two encounters coming with the Portland Buckaroos, who are contending for first place in the Western Hockey League.

Seattle — in fourth place—gained a three-point lead over San Francisco by taking last night's contest 4-1 at the Cow Palace. The Seals had trailed Seattle by a single point before the game.

Portland, the Seals' opponent Wednesday and Sunday, is in second place, two points behind Victoria.

Guyle Fielder and Gerry Leonard scored two goals in the second period for the Totems last night. Then John Gravel scored for the Seals, but Larry Lund of Seattle hit with three seconds left in the period.

Totem defenseman Jim McLeod added the final goal in the third period.

Seattle's defense gave the Seals few good shots at the goal.

Flyweight Title Fight Postponed

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's Hiroyuki Ebihara has a fractured finger of his left hand and will have to postpone his Feb. 1 world flyweight title bout with Argentina's Horacio Accavallo, a Japanese newspaper said yesterday.

The sports daily Hochi Shimbun said Ebihara suffered the fracture in a sparring session Friday.

Ebihara and Accavallo were selected to fight for the vacant 112-pound division crown after the WBA stripped Italy's Salvatore Burruni of the title.

MOTOR CITY MEET

Pennel Misses Record; New Technique Blamed

DETROIT (AP) — If he hadn't been trying a new technique, U.S. Olympic pole vaulter John Pennel might hold a new American indoor record today.

Pennel, holder of the current mark of 16 feet, 7¾ inches, appeared to set the new standard when he cleared the bar at 16-9½ on his first effort in the first Motor City International Indoor Track Meet.

But officials ruled the pole followed Pennel into the pit and the effort was counted as a miss. He won the event with a vault of 16 feet.

"That's the way it goes," Pennel said. "There's no doubt the pole went across the line. If the crossbar had been there, it would have been knocked off. That's the first time it's happened to me in three years."

Pennel explained that he had been working on jerking his head back at the top of each vault to try to straighten himself out.

"But part of the job is to push the pole away with my thumb," he said. "I didn't do it right and the momentum brought the pole across the line."

The Amateur Athletic Union-sponsored meet attracted a meager crowd of some 3,500.

But there were plenty of thrills in addition to Pennel's record try.

Wyomia Tyus, whose world record time of 10.3 in the 100-yard dash was approved earlier in the day, was clocked in the indoor record time of 6.7 seconds in the women's 60-yard dash trial. The Tennessee A&I flash won the final in 6.9.

John Thomas, Olympic medalist in 1960 and 1964, finished third in the high jump in his first American appearance since his foot injury more than a year ago.

Richard Ross of Southern (La.) University won the event with a leap of 6-10.

Another disappointment was Ralph Boston, American record holder in the broad jump, who placed fourth as Norman Tate of the North Carolina track club made his best leap ever — 26-3¾.

Ann Smith of Great Britain tied the record for the women's 880-yard run with a 2:10.5 clocking while fellow Britishers John Whetton and Alan Simpson were first and second in the mile with Whetton taking it in 4:05.2.

A pair of Southern University entries set Cobo Arena records. George Anderson won the 60-yard dash in 6.0 seconds while teammate Willie Davenport won the 60-yard hurdles in 7.0.

Top Athletes To Get Awards

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Touchdown Club tosses its annual party tonight a brilliant black tie affair honoring the top football players of 1965 along with big names of baseball and basketball.

Michigan State and its football coach, Duffy Daugherty, will be honored, along with Cleveland coach Blanton Collier and Philadelphia end Pete Retzlaff in professional ranks. Honored as college players of the year will be fullback Jim Grabowski of Illinois and linebacker Tommy Nobis of Texas.

Special awards go to Arnold (Red) Auerbach of the National Basketball Association Boston Celtics and Willie Mays, San Francisco outfielder.

Redwood Nips Novato Five In Double Overtime Game

Jack Fitzhenry's 12-foot jump shot in the second overtime period last night gave the Redwood Giants a very, very slim 66-65 victory over the Novato Hornets.

It was the second heart-breaking loss in a week for coach John Panagakis' cagers, last night's coming on their own court.

The score was tied at 55-55 at the end of regulation time, after Novato missed a shot that would have won it before it ever got a chance to get to overtime. In the first overtime period, Redwood got the ball with only 18 seconds left and the score tied, 58-all. But Novato's defense was so tenacious it didn't allow Redwood to get off a shot, so the game went into another overtime period.

With six seconds left in the second overtime, Redwood got the ball out of bounds under its own basket, trailing 65-64. The pass went to Fitzhenry on the right side and up went the ball. The almost capacity crowd went wild as the ball went in. It was one of Fitzhenry's two baskets on the night, but it was worth a dozen of 'em.

"I was very pleased with our bench strength," said winning coach Dick Hart. Al Fritz received praise from Hart for his rebounding, as Hart noted he led the team with 10. He also pointed out that little Andre Horn made 10 assists, in addition to his 18 points. Russ Smith led the Redwood scorers with 19 points.

Ev Fritz led the Novato quint in the scoring derby with 17 points, followed by John Dolinsek with 14 and Tom Owens with 13.

The teams were even in rebounds, each collecting 38. Redwood hit 35 per cent of its shots and Novato 38 per cent.

It was a costly loss for Novato, giving the Hornets a 1-2 record in Marin Athletic League action. Redwood is now 2-1.

Terra Linda Upsets Drake Quint, 36-33

The object of the game is to score and keep the opposition from scoring. And Terra Linda's basketballers did a pretty good job of it en route to a 36-33 upset victory over Drake High's Pirates last night.

Drake connected on just 12 of 52 from the floor for 23 per cent and "it was our fault they weren't hitting," Terra Linda coach George Starn allowed.

Drake held a 22-17 advantage at halftime, but a stern Trojan man-for-man defense thwarted the Pirate offense, giving the home team its first Marin Athletic League victory in three starts. Drake is now 1-1 in MCAL play.

And much of the credit has to go to a trio of Trojan hoopsters —two of which weren't even expected to see action because of ankle injuries.

They are Glen Olden, who held Drake's Jerry Sprout scoreless. John Ahern, who held big Chet Carlisle to just three points, all from the free throw line, and little Greg Hill, 5-7 guard, who came off the bench in the second half to stop Will Curley who was setting a torrid pace on offense until Hill came in the game. Curley led the Pirate offense with 14 points on six buckets and two free throws, scoring all of his points in the first half.

It was Hill and Olden who were doubtful starters for the Trojan cagers.

With Mike Ainslie sparking the attack, the Trojans ran off 11 points while holding the Drake quint to just 4 as the Terra Linda cagers slowed the tempo of the game with smart ball control tactics, and pulled ahead by two points at the end of the third quarter, 28-26. The home team also threw a full-court press at the Pirates in the second half, but the Drake boys broke through it rather easily. It was when they crossed over into Trojan territory that their trouble started.

The hustling Terra Linda defence forced them to take hurried shots which flew over, by and past the hoop.

Ainslie wound up with 13 points to top Trojan scorers, including four straight free throws on one-and-one situations after the Pirates had tied it 28-all, and had gone ahead 33-32.

Fred Daniele had 6 points for the winners.

The Terra Linda boys hit 11 of 36 from the floor for 31 per cent and cashed 14 of 20 free throws for a whooping 70 per cent. They also outrebounded the taller Pirates 21-16 as Ahern grabbed 6 off the boards and Ainslie and Olden 5 each.

Chet Carlisle topped rebounders with 8 followed by Pirate Bob Tobin who snared 7 rebounds and scored 10 points on three field goals and four free throws.

Marin 'Cats Surprise San Rafael

Marin Catholic's basketball team jumped out to an early lead and then held on for a thrilling 45-42 triumph over the San Rafael Bulldogs last night in the winners' gym.

The Wildcats led 13-6 at the end of the first period but the Bulldogs of San Rafael came racing back in the second period, outscoring the Marin cagers 17-11 and cutting the margin to just one point at the half 24-23.

Led by little Brian Grove, the 'Cats again surged ahead in the third period and increased their lead to five points.

Then, after 6-1 forward Mike Lasater fouled out early in the final stanza, Coach Gus Hassapakis inserted another guard, Paul Vickers, into the line-up and the Marin boys went to a stall pattern, while the eager Bulldogs fouled the 'Cats trying to regain possession of the ball.

The San Rafael boys managed to narrow the margin with a late fourth quarter burst, but with less than two minutes remaining, Vickers converted four free throws to put the Marin quint up by seven after Bulldog Joe Cunningham had twice swished the nets and closed the gap to just three points.

EFFECTIVE STALL

The Wildcats' effective stall caused Coach Mike Diaz' outfit to commit 20 fouls, while the 'Cats fouled 14 times, and canned 12 of 24 free throw attempts for 50 per cent.

The 5-7 Grove turned in another great all-around performance, and topped all scorers with 15 points on five field goals and five charities, while 6-2 forward Ches Bornia had 11 markers and Lasater had 8.

Bornia also pulled down 13 rebounds to top both teams and 6 of those were defensive rebounds in the final period. Bob Lombardi, 6-2 center, picked 12 off the boards and aided the offensive punch with 5 points.

Chip Tyson notched high point honors for the Bulldogs with 10 points, all from the field, followed by Roger Widmer who chalked up 9 markers on three buckets and three from the free throw line.

Key Games Slated For Marin Nine

Litchfield's of San Rafael will take on Ellis Brooks Chevrolet baseballers tomorrow in a semi-pro game that will decide the leadership of the San Francisco AAA Winter League.

Each team will be taking a 6-0 record into the game, scheduled for Funston's Garrigan Diamond in San Francisco at 11:30 a.m.

The two teams boast many professional and ex-pros in the lineup. Scheduled to pitch for the San Rafael team is Ron Cole, a righthander. His mound opponent will probably be southpaw Tom Del Sarto, an iron man who used to pitch for the San Francisco Seals.

Boxing, Wrestling Location Is Sought

A location where teen-agers in Marin may meet to box and wrestle will be considered at a meeting of the Marin Police Athletic League board at noon Friday, at Zack's-by-the-Bay, Sausalito.

Norman Snellgrove, board secretary, said the subject was discussed yesterday and subcommittees will discuss the matter again during the week.

LEADER LOOKS AT SCORES

Paul Bondeson, who moved to the top spot at the halfway mark of the San Diego Open Golf Tournament, checks the scoreboard in the clubhouse after yesterday's second round. Bondeson shot a 65 yesterday to go with his opening round 67. His 132 total put him one stroke in front of second place Chris Blocker. See story on page 21.

Nothing Startling Produced In Milwaukee-Atlanta Case

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Three days of testimony here produced nothing startling but indicated what each side hopes to prove in Wisconsin's antitrust suit in the transfer of the Milwaukee Braves to Atlanta.

Wisconsin attorneys have attempted to prove that the Braves "were deceitful to the public" by allegedly contacting Atlanta officials about the shift of the National League baseball club several months before they said publicly they wanted to move.

Attorneys for the Braves have hammered away at alleged lack of interest in the team in recent years in Milwaukee.

Williard Stafford of Madison, special counsel for the state of Wisconsin, tried to show that the move was made only for financial reasons.

"Weren't the broadcast rights in Atlanta one of the primary reasons for moving the ball club to Atlanta?" Stafford asked William C. Bartholomay, chairman of the board for the Braves.

"No, they were not," replied Bartholomay after 16 hours of questioning, halted temporarily yesterday.

Bartholomay had testified earlier, however, that the radio and television rights had been sold for a gross of $2.5 million, with net profits expected to run between $1.2 and $1.5 million in 1966.

Net profits from broadcast rights in Milwaukee were about $500,000 in recent years, although profits dipped to $60,000 last year after the Braves played in Milwaukee after attempting to move to Atlanta for the 1965 season.

Bartholomay also denied making a commitment in March, 1964, to Atlanta officials that the team would be moved to Georgia. Wisconsin attorneys introduced several newspaper stories saying that was when the Braves decided to make the move, but Bartholomay said repeatedly he made no commitment until after the 1964 season.

A total of 105,000 words went into the record during Bartholomay's testimony, in which he said that "lack of sports interest in Milwaukee" and failure of Wisconsin residents to purchase stock in the Braves were among the reasons he decided to move the team.

Three more Braves' officials — President John McHale, Manager Bobby Bragan and Business Manager Dick Cecil — are scheduled to be questioned, probably next Thursday along with three prominent Atlanta men also ordered to testify in depositions, which probably will be taken Friday.

They are Mayor Ivan Allen, Arthur Montgomery, director of the Atlanta Stadium Authority, and Mills B. Lane, financial chairman of the authority.

Before their testimony is taken attorneys for both sides go back to Wisconsin to argue in Circuit Court Monday whether Wisconsin courts have jurisdiction in the case.

SPORTS BRIEFS

Friday's Sports In Brief By The Associated Press

TENNIS

HOBART, Tasmania — Arthur Ashe of Richmond, Va., easily defeated Bill Bowrey of Australia, and moved into the singles titles of the Tasmanian championships.

GOLF

SAN DIEGO, Calif. — Paul Bondeson fired at six-under-par 65 and took command at the midway mark of the $40,000 San Diego Open with a 36-hole total of 132.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. — Paul Kelly missed a hole-in-one by four inches but still shot a six-under-par 66 and tied Pete Cooper for the lead in the opening round of the PGA National Golf Club Championship.

ORMOND BEACH, Fla. — Defending champion Phyllis Preuss rallied with a two-under-par on the last 12 holes and whipped Lynn Esau 2 and 1, moving into the finals of the South Atlantic Women's Amateur, where she will meet Canadian junior champion Sandra Post.

GENERAL

NEW YORK — A.B. (Happy) Chandler, former commissioner of baseball, resigned as commissioner of the Continental Football League due to a fight with club owners over the use of optioned players, which Chandler contended would create a "minor league" image.

GRINDELWALD, Switzerland — Austria's girl skiers completely crushed their great French rivals by taking the first four places in the downhill of the Grindelwald ski series.

HORSE RACING

NEW ORLEANS, La. — Another Brother, $10, beat Snith by four lengths and won the $2,800 Andy K. Purse at the New Orleans Fair Grounds.

ARCADIA, Calif. — Khal Ireland, $6.60, moved to the outside in the stretch and won the $10,000 feature at Santa Anita by a neck over Los Message.

Stanford Cagers Down USC 73-64

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Sophomore guard Arthur Harris led a Stanford rally midway in the second half as the Indians went on to down the Southern California Trojans 73-64 last night in a Pacific Athletic Conference basketball game.

Harris scored six of his 22 points during a five-minute scoring spree as Stanford went in front 54-44 with 10 minutes to go and then stayed a safe distance ahead.

John Block, 6-foot-9 center, kept USC in the game with his shooting and rebounding, leading the game's scoring and rebounding with 28 points and taking 14 retrieves.

Stanford led 35-28 at the half, but five minutes into the second period the Trojans went ahead, 43-42, for their only lead of the game.

Stanford now holds a 2-1 record in PAC play and USC 1-2.

USF Dons Top Loyola By 97-66

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Erwin Mueller, with 18 points, Russ Gumina with 21 and Joe Ellis with 19 led the University of San Francisco Dons to a 97-66 victory last night over Loyola of Los Angeles in a West Coast Athletic Conference game.

The Dons, seeking their fourth straight WCAC basketball title, put on an 11-1 blitz in the first half that broke a 14-14 tie and buried the Lions for keeps. Mueller scored six of these points.

Gumina then came on strong in the second half, scoring 13 of his points after intermission as USF moved to a 2-0 conference mark.

Loyola, now 1-1, was led by the Adelman brothers, — Rich with 19 points and Clete with 15.

Dodgers To Open Practice Monday

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers open winter baseball practice Monday at Dodger Stadium, and among those getting the eye will be outfielder Tommy Davis.

Davis, who hasn't played since he fractured his ankle last season, will be joined in the sessions by such other notables as Willie Davis, Jim Lefebvre, Lou Johnson, Claude Osteen and Al Ferrara.

The practices, Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 11 a.m., will continue until mid-February. A Dodger spokesman said there are no present plans to open them to the public.

West Is 7-Point Pick In NFL Pro Bowl

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In the Pro Bowl — the National Football League's annual East-West post season test — it's not uncommon to be carried from the field. The question tomorrow is whether the West's All-Stars plan to come in that way.

"We're all right now," reported Green Bay Packer Coach Vince Lombardi for the West on the eve of the 16th annual classic.

He said that two starting question marks — flanker Jimmy Orr of Baltimore and defensive tackle Alex Karras of Detroit Lions had both overcome recent injuries.

Orr pulled a muscle in his left thigh during a practice Tuesday. But yesterday he was running through assignments. Karras sprained an ankle this week.

The East squad, coached by Blanton Collier of Cleveland, has had no injuries — except for tackle Dick Schafrath whose leg has not recovered from a jolt he received playing for the Cleveland Browns in the championship game against Green Bay.

The St. Louis Cardinals' Ernie McMillan will start for Schafrath.

Las Vegas bookmakers, paying respect to the West's 10-5 advantage in the classic, rate Lombardi's team a seven point favorite.

"I really can't explain it," said Cleveland Brown quarterback Frank Ryan, field boss of tee East offense.

"It can't be that West personnel are that much better, because basically we're all equal. Every team is capable of beating another. I hope we can prove it Sunday."

The game will be televised on CBS, Channel 5, starting at 1 p.m.

With Ryan in the East Backfield will be Cleveland teammate Jim Brown at fullback; Charley Taylor of Washington at halfback and another Brown, Gary Collins at flanker.

In the West backfield will be Orr, San Francisco's John Brodie at quarterback and two rookies, Chicago halfback Gale Sayers and fullback Ken Willard, also of San Francisco.

For Jimmy Brown and New York offensive tackle Roosevelt Brown, the game in Memorial Coliseum will be their ninth each.

SUBS FOR TEAMMATE

Right safety man Kermit Alexander (above) and defensive tackle Clark Miller will appear at the Cancer Fund dinner at Sabella's of Marin Monday night. Alexander is subbing for teammate Gary Lewis who had to bow out of his scheduled appearance due to illness in his family. Alexander and Miller will join a panel of celebrities headed by film star Dennis Morgan. Tickets, $10 per person, to Monday's charity affair may be purchased at the American Cancer Society office, 18 Mary Street, San Rafael.

Globetrotter Show On Tap In Richmond

Meadowlark Lemon, Freddie Neal, Connie Hawkins and the rest of the Harlem Globetrotters will be in action Tuesday night at the Richmond Auditorium.

The famed funnymen of the basketball court will be taking on the Washington Generals in an exhibition game, starting at 8 p.m.

Besides the game, there will be pre-game and halftime entertainment that includes the Bratislava Slovakian Folkloric Dancers ensemble of 40, and Satchel Paige, the granddaddy of all baseball players, who will be performing his bit when the wizards stage their takeoff on baseball.

"Showmanship is our hallmark," says owner-promoter Abe Saperstein, who put the show team on the road aboard a dilapidated model-T in 1927. "The players know exactly when to play the game seriously.

The Globetrotters make the fans laugh, chuckle and laugh again, then suddenly start playing basketball in earnest and amaze the crowd with their deft ball handling and accuracy in passing and shooting."

WINNING BRIDGE

There Is Advantage In Leading Toward High Cards In Bridge

One advantage of leading toward your high cards is that you may be able to drive out a missing honor without wasting one of your own in the process.

It would have made a big difference in today's hand.

Opening lead — ♣ Q

South won the first trick with the king of clubs and led a low trump to dummy's king.

When this held, declarer returned the low trump from dummy, using his own queen to drive out West's ace.

JACK LED

West thereupon led the jack of clubs, and the slam went down the drain.

If declarer ruffed with dummy's jack of hearts, East's ten would become the top trump.

If declarer did anything else, East would ruff the club with the ten of hearts to defeat the contract at once.

North lamented long and loud, pointing out that six diamonds and six notrump were unbeatable.

South observed that six hearts was a very reasonable contract and that he was very unlucky to run into such a terrible club break.

CHOICE

South's actual play gave him some protection against A-10-x-x of trumps in the West hand but left him exposed to a bad break in clubs.

It was a poor choice because West had opened South's bid suit instead of leading through one of dummy's suits.

Whenever an opponent leads your suit, look out for a bad break.

South should make the slam by playing the trumps properly. After winning the second trick with dummy's king of hearts, South should get to his hand with the queen of spades and lead another low trump.

West takes the ace of hearts and leads a club, but dummy can ruff with the jack and then South can draw the last trump with the queen.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

Do not mike a shutout bid (of three clubs) when you have a side ace in addition to your long suit.

She Had A Hunch Twins Were Coming

READING, Pa. (AP) — Mrs. Robert W. Werner, 17, had a hunch she would have twins.

She is a twin, her mother is a twin, and there were sets of twins on her mother's side and her father had twin cousins. Mrs. Werner left a Reading hospital with Robert Arthur Jr. and Ronald Alan, twin boys born last week.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, Jan. 15, the 15th day of 1966 with 350 to follow.

The moon is approaching the new stage. No morning star. The evening stars are Venus, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

English poet William Cowper was born on this day in 1731.

In 1831 the first practical locomotive built in America made its maiden run over the Charleston and Hamburg Railroad in South Carolina.

In 1919 Polish pianist Ignace Padereweki became the first premier of the Republic of Poland.

In 1922 the Irish Free State was born.

In 1965 British Prime Minister Winston Churchill went into a coma and never regained consciousness. He died Jan. 23.

A thought for the day—The Roman poet Ovid said: "To be loved, be lovable."

The lost continent that geologists call Gondwanaland sank beneath the sea ages ago, leaving exposed the islands that form New Zealand.

Christopher Is An Example Of Working One's Way Up

GEORGE CHRISTOPHER, the former mayor of San Francisco who is seeking the Republican nomination for governor, is justly proud of his personal success story.

Born in a remote mountain village in Greece, he came of humble parentage.

Brought to America at the age of 2 as the son of immigrant "foreigners," he was subjected to the discriminatory practices of the time.

HUMBLE IMMIGRANTS of half a century ago were attracted to America as "the land of opportunity" where "who you were" didn't count for much of anything. Success depended on "what you were."'

You didn't have to spend your life serving another; you could go into business for yourself and be your own boss.

George Christopher lived out this dream in reality. He built his own highly successful dairy business. His wife shared the heavy burden of the business operations.

It may be trite language but nonetheless true to observe that George Christopher, Greek immigrant nobody, made something of himself.

GET GEORGE CHRISTOPHER started talking about this land of opportunity and he won't stop till he has told you too his father's success story.

The senior Christopher came as a typical 19th Century immigrant to the new world, arriving with no funds, no job, and no knowledge of English. He worked his way across the country on the brand new transcontinental railroad. By the time he arrived in Sacramento he had saved enough money to buy a peanut stand and go into business for himself as a sidewalk peanut vender.

When his savings had grown sufficiently, the senior Christopher returned to Greece and married. The land of opportunity continued to beckon and George's father set out alone once more for America.

It took more than two years to accumulate enough money to send for Mrs. Christopher and infant George. Hard work and perseverance brought a modest measure of business success to the elder Christophers in San Francisco.

ALL THIS GEORGE CHRISTOPHER tells you enthusiastically and proudly.

And he relates all this to his candidacy.

"I want," he declares firmly "to preserve this kind of traditional American opportunity for all."

Trouble is, it all sounds a little old fashioned and one wonders whether today's "sophisticated" voters who are in the habit of being told that the way to solve any and all problems is to spend government millions will be much interested in the do-it-yourself approach.

WHILE THERE IS CONSIDERABLE to be said in favor of the "welfare state" trend of recent decades, it is an unfortunate fact that self-styled "socially concerned liberals" have not given full recognition to the self-help system and have not recommended it to all who have the ability to make it work.

The world is full of too much "either/or" thinking. Actually, we need continued advocacy of the "old fashioned individual initiative way" for those who have what it takes to make it work and, at the same time, we need government social assistance for those who lack the capability and/or determination to "make it on their own."

It would be refreshing to have a man of George Christopher's outlook at the helm of state government, for a change.

Holiday Birds Really Stupid

Those turkeys which are so much a part of our holiday festivities may be quite tasty, but they would never win an IQ test. As bird brains go, turkeys were skimped when Nature distributed the gray matter.

They are so stupid that they must be taught to eat! Otherwise, they are apt to starve to death with food literally beneath their beaks. They often become self-hypnotized and drown in their drinking water.

In a rare lapse of common sense, Benjamin Franklin urged that Mr. Stupid be used in place of the majestic bald eagle on the Great Seal of the United States. Obviously, Franklin never was a turkey farmer.

Bouquets And Brickbats

A BOUQUET to Fairfax on its drive to prevent junk automobiles from accumulating on private property and becoming eyesores.

A BOUQUET to Sabella's Restaurant and its employees for offering time and materials for the benefit of the Cancer Society during the Society's dinner Monday night. All receipts for the evening will go to the Cancer Fund.

BRICKBATS to the rising costs of government, federal, state and local. We feel it in smaller paychecks and bigger tax bites.

BOUQUETS to Marin County supervisors for moving ahead with the much-needed Corte Madera Flood Control project.

A BOUQUET to Richard Dixon, 9, of Marinwood, whose keen sense of smell alerted Pacific Gas & Electric Co. workers to gas seeping from a crack in the sidewalk.

A BOUQUET to Mrs. C. Kenneth Denman of San Rafael, outgoing chairman of the Marin Community Blood Reserve Fund, for her 15 years of volunteer work with the Marin Blood Center.

BOUQUETS to developers who plan to convert the former American Distilling Co. property in Sausalito into a shopping and entertainment complex. Such a development should greatly enhance the appearance of the site.

DOCTORLESS ISLE SMILES AGAIN

After eight months without a doctor, the 900 residents of Tangier Island off the coast of Virginia once again have medical attention.

News broadcasts and amateur radio operators were credited with solving the small island's plight by attracting the interest of a retired doctor.

The fishing community has guaranteed to supply the doctor's annual income and build him a house.

The 54-year-old physician said as he landed: "I'm going to like it here. At first I thought it was the end of the world, but you get used to that fast."

One official described the condition of Tangier without a doctor: "You can't get in a car to drive to a physician's office when illness strikes. Twelve to 15 miles of open water lie between you and the nearest doctor or hospital."

Do not take for granted the advantages of good health, spiritual or temporal, that may be yours. As a follower of the Lord seek to extend the basic requirements of life to those less fortunate.

"Relieve the troubles of my heart, and bring me out of my distress."

(Psalms 24:17)

Inspire me, O divine Physician, to be a source of benefit to all those I can reach.

Liberty Letter Tells Of Plan

Editor, Independent-Journal:

"Liberty Letter", which is published monthly while Congress is in session, says President Johnson plans to slip that Russian consulate bill through Congress if he can. It was defeated last time.

A Russian consulate is a nest of spies anywhere. They say they plan on destroying the Free World and our way of living (and at present they are pretty well doing that.)

Liberty Letter says write your congressman regarding this bill if you're against it, and a voter's letter and ideas do help.

Anonymous Call About Hitler

Editor, Independent-Journal:

After the I-J printed a letter from me concerning our battle with the Red Nazis of Communism, I received an anonymous communication from a person obviously an adherent of the cause of our opponents. It implied that I occupy an anti-Communist stance through a hatred per se of communism; and it quoted a passage from William L. Shirer's book, "The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich", to illustrate that Adolph Hitler shared this hatred.

My anonymous communicant apparently didn't read this book very well, however. He, or she, missed, for instance, a fairly detailed story about the resistance to Hitler's "revolution" coming from the Right Wing of the German Reichstag and the conservatives of Germany. The fight between the Nazis and the Communists was an intramural one, over who would get the drumstick; never did the Communists attempt to end or even divert the anarchic developments; they merely wanted Adolph Hitler's portion (which, by now, they just about have—along with numerous others.)

On page 203 Mr. Shirer refers to the "left wing Nazis". "Nazi" is an abbreviation of the title, National Socialist—just as the "SS" in USSR is an abbreviation for 'Soviet Socialist". Communism, nazism and fascism are only slightly differentiated masks for the same face, that of face-grinding dictatorship.

The myth that communism is something else has been promoted with fair success in our country, largely through the help of a gullible class of pseudo-intellectuals. These have a curious belief that the Wave of the Future is totalitarianism, a system in which they feel they will occupy favored positions due to certain self-adjudged qualifications which they attribute to themselves. . .

On page 216 of Mr. Shirer's book we find that the right was a target for liquidation by Goering and the Gestapo. My anonymous communicant chose this field of debate; let him have the honesty to point out to himself which side he is allied with.

Crusade Drive Was Successful

Editor, Independent-Journal:

The United Crusade and the Marin United Fund are very grateful to the Independent-Journal, for the very fine coverage and excellent support you have given the United Crusade Campaign this year.

There is no question but that the Independent-Journal's strong support contributed materially to this year's successful campaign. Marin raised the greatest amount of money in its history and will show an eleven per cent gain over last year's successful campaign.

The contribution you have made will serve in many ways for people you will never know and whose words of thanks you'll never hear. However, I'm certain you will feel a real sense of satisfaction having helped in this way. . . .

School Bond Issue Stirs Woodacre

Editor, Independent-Journal:

On Feb. 15, the San Geronimo Valley will vote on a bond issue to build a neighborhood primary school in the center of Woodacre. In the usual, democratic fashion, a controversy is raging.

The master plan for the valley proposes that five neighborhood primary schools eventually shall be built and that the presently existing school on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard shall become a junior high school.

If the bond passes, the first of the neighborhood schools would be built on a site in the center of Woodacre, near the Woodacre Improvement Club. Hundreds of children would be able to walk to school and be within the familiar world of the community.

The only other possible sites, which are being considered by those who would vote against the bond in this election, are on the far edge of town, on the highway, and not within walking distance.

The complicated details of cost, etc., that sound so unsettling in a discussion, have been methodically worked out by the school board and the building program on the Woodacre site is considered most feasible.

A very few families would have to remove their homes. This is the most important negative point. But how else can you get a neighborhood school? That is what the controversy is about.

News Needed Of The South

Editor, Independent-Journal:

On Jan. 5, 1966, your paper carried a story on the shooting and killing of Sammy Young.

I have come to believe that that the white Southern bigot knows he can get away with murder, as a result of the latest court trials in Alabama. I feel that you, as a newspaper, can, through your editorials, help solve this problem. I have enclosed a copy of a letter I have sent to President Johnson concerning the Justice Department and him on this subject.

I wish you would do something to inform the public of the situation in Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana and Georgia, rather than just reprint releases from AP and UPI, etc.

Johnson Hints At More Guns, Only A Thin Spread Of Butter

By STERLING F. GREEN
(James Marlow is ill.)

WASHINGTON (AP) — Probably no president ever has avowed more firmly the policy of guns with butter.

"We will not permit those who fire on us in Viet Nam to win a victory over the desires and intentions of the American people," President Johnson promised Congress Wednesday night.

But there were strong hints in his State of the Union message that the country will get a lot more guns and only slightly more butter.

JOHNSON MADE clear his view that, while the nation can afford a record $112.8-billion budget in fiscal 1967, it cannot afford the costlier spread called inflation.

So, if it was a guns-and-butter message, it also was an anti-inflation message — an elaborately pieced together plan for keeping prices in reasonable restraint while waging a war, without sacrificing home-front progress and without imposing a general tax increase which might precipitate a recession.

To prevent an overheating of the economy in the military buildup phase of 1966, Johnson proposed some fiscal fire extinguishers.

One is an apparently rigorous downhold on domestic spending. He said that while the outlays for Viet Nam will climb another $5.8 billion next year, all other federal spending will rise only $600 million.

JOHNSON REASSURED those who feared that his "Great Society" programs would come under the ax, saying, "I believe we can continue the Great Society while we fight in Viet Nam." But some programs, he admitted, will suffer.

Whatever his budget cuts may be, they cannot cushion the strongly inflationary pressure of an arms program on top of a boom.

So Johnson called also for three special tax actions — to cool the spending fever of industry and consumers during the build-up period.

THEY ARE:

Rescind temporarily the telephone and auto excise tax cuts that took effect 13 days ago.

Alter the income tax withholding system. Instead of withholding 14 per cent from all paychecks, scale the rate up to, say 20 per cent, for higher-paid taxpayers.

Speed up corporation tax payments—not increasing the amount to be paid, but collecting more of it in 1966.

Net result: $4.3 billion removed from the spending stream.

Eventually, the military spending will ease off. Well before the end of fiscal 1967, the government will be in the deflationary posture of taking more money out of the public's pockets than it puts in.

The plan will work, Johnson told Congress, "if you approve every program I recommend."

THERE'S THE catch. Will Congress be willing to revamp the whole tax withholding system for a negligible and temporary revenue gain? Will it renege on the excise cuts and change the tax rules for industry?

Probably not. But Johnson has served notice: If his plan doesn't work, he'll come back for something more drastic — more military appropriations and a real tax increase.

Civil Rights Action Dramatized Struggle

By WHITNEY M. YOUNG JR.

Since a bit of the past is always found in the present and, to some degree, influences the future, it is well to reflect on some of the significant events of 1965 in civil rights—now well-established as America's most serious domestic problem.

On the negative side, there was the unfortunate need for continued demonstrations throughout the South, to dramatize still-entrenched resistance to a new national morality and consensus expressed in the 1964 civil rights law. These demonstrations pointed up continuing reluctance to grant the Negro equal opportunity in voting, and called attention to wanton murders of both white and Negro civil rights workers —murders that revealed congenital cruelty and animal-like behavior on the part of a few citizens.

THE ENTRENCHED resistance was evident also in the tragic lack of courage and conscience on the part of many persons who remained silent.

Still on the negative side, we witnessed a growing tendency in the North to ignore or rationalize overcrowded, unspeakable, segregated housing conditions which inevitably give rise to segregated and inferior schools and inferior community services. Too many people use the riots of '64 and "Watts '65" as excuses to avoid involvement in the struggle, to withdraw from it, and to indict 19-million Negro citizens for the desperate actions of a few.

SERIOUS AS these negatives are, the positive developments of 1965 are more significant and justify the optimism we should feel for the future. Passage of the voting rights bill, I predict, will be the most telling blow against intolerance and bigotry. Since public officials conceive it their first duty to be elected, the greatly increased Negro vote will go far toward discovering decent, moral qualities among present and prospective officeholders.

Affirmative administration actions, supported by the words and deeds of President Johnson, have given a new respectability and urgency to the civil rights issue. The various poverty programs, however unjustly maligned and inadequate, have been meaningful and offer ample evidence of what can be achieved with more experience and resources.

INCREASED CONCERN and positive action by many of the country's leading businesses, though still far from adequate, reflects a turn in the road, not only in employment and training policies, but in the important influence this sector has on community attitudes and institutions.

Most encouraging in 1965 was the desire of Negro citizen to play a constructive role in his own destiny. Evidence showed that ghetto youth, given the opportunity, would rather build than burn, rather work than loaf. Negro adults demonstrated ability and capacity to participate intelligently in policy-making and administration of remedial, corrective, self-help programs.

UNFORTUNATELY, we heard too much of tragedies and cruelties, of the hopeless and the angry. We heard too little of cooperation and successes, of barriers that had been removed, and doors that had been opened.

The past year had its negatives and its positives—which simply means the year had bad people and good people.

Looking to 1966, we have hopes that those who do bad, and those who do nothing—will be outnumbered by the many who do something. This is an opportunity for individuals and for the entire nation.

Unity Period Aims At Understanding

Christian congregations in San Rafael, Terra Linda, Marinwood and Lucas Valley will observe Church Unity Octave beginning Tuesday.

The word "octave" refers to the eight days of the project, a nationwide program aimed at fostering better understanding between Protestants and Catholics and between different Protestant faiths.

In San Rafael, five churches will take part in a series of discussions of their faiths.

The San Rafael unit observation will begin at 8 p.m. Tuesday with a meeting at Angelico Hall, Dominican College, of members from Trinity Lutheran, First Presbyterian, First Methodist, St. Paul's Episcopal and St. Raphael's Roman Catholic churches.

Rev. John Riley, rector of St. Paul's Church will speak on "Our Common Christian Heritage and Our Common Mission in the World."

During the week, 24 informal discussion programs have been scheduled in the San Rafael homes of members of the five congregations at which differences and similiarities of the faiths will be discussed. A minister from one of the churches will be present during the latter part of each discussion.

The closing program will be 8 p.m. Jan. 25 at St. Raphael's auditorium and include a panel discussion with Rev. Miles Riley of St. Raphael's church, Rev. Fred Braunschweiger of Trinity Lutheran Church, laymen Vincent Boyle of St. Raphael's congregation and Richard G. Henika of St. Paul's congregational. The theme will be "Our Common Mission in the World—How to Implement It." Small group discussion periods will follow the panel conference.

Seven churches in the Terra Linda-Marinwood-Lucas Valley area have scheduled services to commemorate the unity period.

The period will open at 8 p.m. Tuesday with a service at St. Isabella's Roman Catholic Church, Terra Linda, with Rev. Edward J. Dingberg, pastor, speaking.

The octave observation will conclude with a service at 8 p.m. Jau. 25 at Christ Presbyterian Church, Terra Linda. Rev. Stuart Anderson, president of the Pacific School of Religion, Berkeley, who was an official observer at the Second Vatican Council in Rome, will be the speaker.

Chruches participating in the observance are Lucas Valley Community Baptist, First Congregational, Episcopal Church of the Nativity; Faith Lutheran, Aldersgate Methodist, St. Isabella's and Christ Presbyterian.

Presbyterian Men of Marin, consisting of men from 11 Presbyterian churches in the county who work in the county, will observe the unity period at a joint meeting with the Serra Club, Catholic men's group, at noon Friday at San Francisco Theological Seminary, San Anselmo.

The program will consist of a panel discussion with Rev. Thomas Kennedy of St. Raphael's Church and Rev. Wesley C. Baker, of the First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael and a member of the Commission on Ecumenical Missions and Relations of the Presbyterian Church.

VINCE GUARALDI
Jazz Master

Trio To Play Jazz Mass

The second performance of the "modern setting for Holy Communion" composed and played by Vince Guaraldi, will be at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 23 at the newly completed Church in Ignacio.

The first performance was in May in Grace Cathedral, San Francisco, with the Guaraldi trio and 65 young singers from San Rafael's St. Paul's Episcopal Church, in a choir conducted by Barry Mineah.

The same combination will perform at the Ignacio Episcopal Church which was completed at the end of the year at what will become the Pacheco Plaza shopping center, 400 Ignacio Boulevard.

Victor of the church, Rev. Charles Gompertz, was the person who suggested to Guaraldi, a Mill Valley resident, that he compose music in the jazz style as counterpoint to the liturgical sound of the choir.

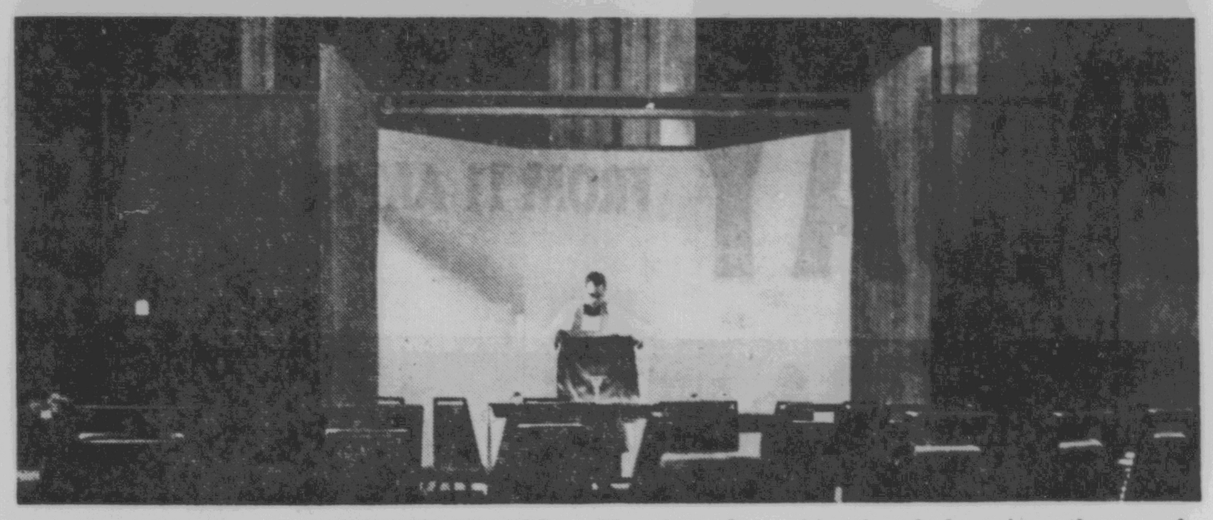
Adherent To Speak On Baha'i Belief

Mrs. Florence V. Mayberry, a traveling teacher for the Baha'i Faith, will be in Marin Wednesday through Sunday to speak on the faith at meetings in members' homes.

Mrs. Mayberry is the auther of children's short stories. She has spoken on the faith in the United States, Canada, Mexico, Latin America and Europe and has held various high posts in the organization.

Slide Show

Slides of the Far East will be shown at a "family night" dinner tomorrow evening at Community Congregational Church, Tiburon.



CHURCH CHAPEL — The alter of the Episcopal Church in Ignacio can be placed behind the closed door of this chapel, leaving the round-shaped interior free for community activities. Rev. Charles Gompertz is at the alter.

Church Built For Community

A church designed for worship and for a variety of uses by the community has opened its doors in Ignacio.

Named just the Church in Ignacio, the Episcopal church on February 1 also will become a nursery school. A portion of the building was constructed to meet state school specifications and a meeting outlining plans of the non-denominational school will be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the church, 400 Ignacio Boulevard. Mrs. Robert Bastain of Belvedere will be acting director of the school.

The building now is surrounded by bare land which is the site of Pacheo Plaza shopping center. The location in the shopping center in an attempt to return the church to the center of community life, church authorities explain.

The building is leased from shopping center developer Walter Kieckhefer of San Rafael, another inovation, as most churches are owned by their congregations with the aid of church governing bodies.

The church designed by Kaya Apaydin, Berkeley architect, has a movable altar which can be placed within a closed chapel, freeing the center of the church for such activities as community meetings, teen-age or adult dances and cultural activities, Rev. Charles Gompertz, rector, explained.

The building is constructed of redwood and of tilt-up concrete slabs with concrete and inlaid stone surfacing in interior and exterior.

READY FOR SERVICE—When the alter (a teak dining room table being used temporarily until "someone gives us an alter," said Rev. Gompertz) is placed in front of the tapestry, the church is ready for a service. The altar can be placed behind the doors at right. The tapestry is from the same looming as those made for the coronation of Queen Elizabeth II.

Clergyman Hopes To Teach, Start A Church In Africa

Rev. Wesley C. Baker of the First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael probably will be teaching in a seminary in Kenya for three months beginning this spring.

Baker, a member of the Presbyerian Church's national commission on Ecumenical Missons and Relations, has been asked Latin America and Europe and terian seminary at Limuru, Kenya.

He is expected to teach practical theology, a church administration at St. Paul's Theological College. He now teaches the same courses at San Francisco Theological Seminary, San Anselmo.

Baker plans to travel to Kenya with his wife and three teenage children if he can finance the trip. "I'll save, scrimp and borrow what is not given," he said. The work under the commission, coordinated with the National Conference of Churches, is financed by donations.

Rev. Baker, if he gets enough money for the trip, also would help establish a bilingual Negro-white congregation in Nairobi. He would be in the country from April 20 to July 15.

PRIEST FINDS THUMBS UP WAY TO MASS

NEW YORK (AP)—A Seattle Roman Catholic priest found a way of getting to Mass on time last Sunday in traffic tangled New York City.

Rev. Francis J. Greene, S. J., had to hitch-hike 20 miles to St. Mary's Church in the Bronx, where he says Mass weekly. He is doing graduate work at New York University.

Around his neck he hung a hand-lettered sign:

"Get me to the church on time."

Someone did.

Assembly Of God Has Junior Church

The Southern Marin Assembly of God in Mill Valley has established a junior church for boys and girls aged seven to 13.

Junior church services are held Sundays from 11 a.m. to noon at the church at East Blithedale and Sycamore avenues.

Mission Becomes Episcopal Parish

St. Francis ogf Assisi Episcopal Church in Novato was organized as a parish, raising it from mission status, at a congregation meeting this week.

Incumbent Rev. Lloyd F. Gebhart was elected first rector of the parish and will be installed following a diocesan convention in February, where the parish will be officially approved.

M. Dunn Knight III was elected senior warden of the vestry at the congregation meeting. St. Francis Mission was organized in 1948 and its first services were held in the Novato Community House. The congregation has constructed a church at Fifth Street and Grant Avenue.

Guest Preacher

Rev. Randolph C. Miller, professor of Christian education at Yale Divinity School, will preach at the 11 a.m. service tomorrow at St. John's Episcopal Church, Ross.

SEMINARY POST — Stanton H. Nash (above) will become temporary director of public relations at Golden Gate Baptist Seminary, Strawberry, after the resignation last week of Carl M. Halvarson effective in March. Halvarson, of Mill Valley, gave family medical problems as his reason for leaving. Nash, of San Rafael, has been Halvarson's assistant for development at the seminary since March of last year.

Evangelists

The Hutchison Evangelistic Party will hold their final evangelistic services at1 1 a.m. and 7 p.m. tomorrow at the San Rafael Assembly of God Church, 517 D Street.

Ecumenical Moves Gaining Impetus

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Progress is being achieved in a task that once appeared hopeless, the task of reuniting the church.

Next week is "a week of prayer for Christian unity." Millions of Protestants and Catholics will participate in joint prayer services, Bible study, discussions and other activities in which they'll get to know one another not as "those people" but as fellow Christians.

When this annual week of prayer was initiated 20 years ago, it was regarded as a far-fetched idea. Why should Catholics and Protestants pray for unity when they couldn't even deal civilly with one another?

Today it seems so natural for Catholics and Protestants to be praying together that one is surprised to learn that this will be the first year in which they've had a common prayer booklet to use at Unity Week services.

Last month, Pope Paul VI participated in a joint worship service with Protestant leaders who attended the Vatican Ecumenical Council as observers. No Pope had done such a thing since the Reformation.

A few days later, at simultaneous ceremonies in Rome and Istanbul, the Pope and the ecumenical Patriarch of the Orthodox communion rescinded the exchange of excommunications which separated the eastern half of the church from the western half in the great schism of 1054 A. D.

In the United States during the past year, high-level theological discussions were started, on a continuing basis, between Catholics and Episcopalians, Catholics and Lutherans, Catholics and Presbyterians, Catholics and Orthodox.

Within the Protestant fold, six major denominations made so much progress in their "consultation on church union" that they instructed a drafting committee to present a formal merger plan for consideration at a meeting in Dallas in April.

Less dramatic but possibly even more important in the long run were ecumenical movements on the local level. In hundreds of U.S. communities, Protestants and Catholics worked together on civic projects, cooperated in a common fight against racial sat down together to talk over their differences.

One of the most successful experiments in bringing the ecumenical movement down to the grass roots was carried out in Worcester, Mass., where more than 100 small groups of Catholics and Protestants,numbering 12 to 15 perosns each, met in the living rooms of private homes to discover from frank and friendly conversation not only where they differ but also what they have in common as Christians.

(This is the plan which some San Rafael churches will follow.)

The "Worcester plan" worked so well that a major effort will be made during the coming year to extend it to other communities across the country.

Organic reunion in one great church still looks like a distant goal. Pope Paul acknowledged this in his talk to Protestant observers last month.

"A great stretch of the road remains ahead of us," he said.

But, the Pope added:

"We have begun to love one another."

Archbishop To Confer With Pope

LONDON (AP) — The archbishop of Canterbury, primate of the Church of England, will visit Pope Paul VI in Rome March 23.

The archbishop, Dr. Michael Ramsey, will talk with the Pope about matters arising from the recent Vatican Council. Among these is the new attitude of the Roman Catholic Church toward other Christian churches, which it calls the "separated Brethren."

Dr. Ramsey will be the second archbishop of Canterbury to visit the headquarters of Roman Catholicism since the Church of England broke with Rome in the 16th century. The first was Archbishop Geoffrey Fisher, who was received by Pope John XXIII in 1960.

The Church of England broke away from Rome in the 16th century during the reign of King Henry VIII.

WITH THEIR KEEN interest in and knowledge of the Orient and Japanese gardening, it is not surprising that bonsai has been a specialty of Sylvia and Samuel Newsom in their The Greenwood Tree nursery in Mill Valley. Mill Valley's Sam'l And Sylvia Newsom

Busy Pair Do Everything From Tour Guiding To Book Writing

By CONNIE RICHARDSON

The next time you stroll through the famed Japanese Tea Garden in San Francisco's Golden Gate Park, take a special look at its most recently completed addition—an impressive new waterfall.

It is the work of a Marinite, Samuel Newsom, landscape designer, author and proprietor of The Greenwood Tree in Mill Valley.

Newsom was selected to supervise the construction of the waterfall by its donor, Dr. Hugh Fraser of Oakland, and in April it will be formally dedicated to the memory of the doctor's late wife.

NEWSOM SAYS the tea garden project involved the bringing in of some 20 rocks that weighed about two tons each.

"So when we talk about rockwork here, we are talking about walls of rocks."

To his friends, Samuel Newsom is known as Sam'l.

He explains: "My dad signed his name that way, so after he died, mother asked me to do the same."

HIGHLY knowledgeable about the culture and the people of the Far East, Newsom was introduced to people of Oriental ancestry at an early age because his mother taught English classes for them in her home.

The senior Newsom was a Bay Area architect who designed some of the older churches of Berkeley and Oakland as well as the San Francisco homes of such families as the De Youngs and the Spreckels.

He also built the famed "gingerbread house" in Eureka, which cost $5,000 for paint alone, and is now a lumbermen's club.

DESPITE ALL this activity, the Newsoms did not attain riches. "It was either feast or famine in the architecture business," says Newsom.

"My grandfather was a pioneer nurseryman in Oakland and I worked for him until the depression of the 1930s sunk us," Samuel Newsom says. "Then I went to Japan in 1934 because there was no adequate publication on Japanese gardens; and the Society for International Cultural Relations was so pleased at my interest in landscaping from the viewpoint of a dirt gardener, they subsidized five years' study there. I ended up writing a book."

This volume, "Japanese Garden Construction," retailed for $100 when published in Tokyo in 1939. It is now out of print and the remaining copies are not for sale.

UPON COMPLETION of World War II service as an intelligence officer, Newsom began landscaping in Marin under his own name.

"It was complicated and horribly expensive," he recalls. "For example, one naturalistic garden I designed in Belvedere took a year and a half to complete."

Samuel Newsom met his wife, the former Sylvia Bowditch of Boston, in 1947, and they started a bonsai nursery in Mill Valley at El Paseo in 1951.

"WE WERE about to name it the Green Bay Tree, as there was a magnificent one there," says Newsom. "Only someone pointed out a mention in the Bible of evil associated with bay trees. So we chose the name from Shakespeare's 'As You Like It.' A song in the second act begins: 'Under the greenwood tree, who loves to lie with me.'

"Quite another feeling," smiles Newsom.

The Greenwood Tree has been located in Mill Valley Plaza for five years.

Newsom offers his opinion of one aspect of the Japanese philosophy: "In the Orient, particularly Japan, Nature is stronger than Man. We, on the other hand, try to fight Nature. They believe in relaxing with Nature."

SAMUEL NEWSOM admits his nursery and gift shop are off the main tourist track. "This is a store for home folks. Only good eggs come in here," he smiles.

The sensation upon entering through the green coolness of the nursery is one of controlled orderliness. All objects are beautiful and effectively displayed, and something of the mystery associated with faraway places seems to cling to the air.

An important shipment of ceramics from the island port of Imari was being unpacked. Representative selections of Iro-Nabeshima were also arrived.

"THE DIFFERENCE between the Nabeshima and Imari types is mainly that the latter is covered with designs and the Nabeshima usually has uncovered areas," explains Newsom. "The Japan Tourist Library No. 8 contains good descriptions of these ceramics, which are still made in the old 17th century manner. In fact, we met the twelfth generation of artisans on our last trip."

"Trip" refers to the Garden and Festival Tour conducted by the Newsoms annually, alternating between spring and fall.

"The 1965 tour was in May, to see the azaleas, which are perfect at that time."

"BRADEN TOUREAST, of San Francisco, first asked me to take groups to Japan and the Far East in 1961," Newsom relates. "Fundamentally, they are garden tours, with visits to old architecture, castles, folk art museums, etc., staying in modern hotels and Japanese Inns—to get the flavor of country life. We crossed the Inland Sea to Shikoku Island to see The Garden of the Squirrel Forest, in the center of which is a huge pond surrounded by hills covered with masses of multicolored azaleas."

A brochure mentions such destinations as Tokyo, Hong Kong, Bangkok, Kyoto, Nikko, Kamakura and Hakone. The schedule for fall, '66, is now being compiled.

"Last year, our children and home were cared for by the Al Klyces."

"Al is a builder," says Newsom. "He went to Japan to learn carpentering, met a beautiful Japanese girl in Kyoto and they married and now have a young son."

THE NEWSOMS' children are Sylvia (Chips), 13, and Sam, 10. The parents speak Japanese; he fluently.

"My wife is the expert on grammar," says Newsom. "And the children can get by pretty well. So this year, we will take them along, leaving them with Japanese friends while Sylvia and I continue touring. Sylvia is the tour photographer," he adds.

Samuel Newsom met his wife after she became a frequent visitor to Mill Valley. After graduation from Bryn Mawr College, Sylvia came to California to visit. She was persuaded by friends to stay and began work at the University of California Hospital in San Francisco.

HER JOB was operating a then new diagnostic tool, the electro-encephalograph, a technique she mastered in Boston. Sylvia's San Francisco home was the residence of Mrs. Valborg Gravander.

Asked what attracted him to Sylvia, Samuel speaks thoughtfully: "My wife has a quality, very rare in people. She goes out of her way for everybody."

Her friends say that when Sylvia's around, everyone feels good.

THE M. P. Dillinghams of Mill Valley chose the Newsom trip as their first guided tour and labeled it "stupendous"; not the least reason for this feeling being the "simply delightful tour directors."

Others are pleased to recall their pleasure in traveling with the Newsoms. Mrs. Harriette Lewis of Belvedere was particularly happy.

"Having traveled for 30 years, I had been to Japan," she says, "but never to spend so much time. They are perfectly delightful people and the tour well above average. Mr. Newsom knows such a lot of old legends and has a charming way of telling them. The places were very well chosen, with much variety."

FRANCESCA LIVERMORE, also of Mill Valley, found it a tour which contrasted with her tours to Europe: "I enjoyed the country and places where we stayed. Europe was all so noisy; it was difficult to sleep."

"The Newsoms made the whole thing just live," says Mrs. Rodney E. Boone of Belvedere. "He loves the country and made it mean much to all of us. He was so delightful when he told the old legends on the bus; then, when we got to the places he talked about, it really meant something. He would show us a garden pond, kneel down, and, by splashing water over the stones, make them come alive."

Sylvia tells how she met Sam'l: "Friends invited me to go to Yosemite for a weekend. Sam'l was in the party."

CONTINUING, Sylvia recalls how Mama Gravender accompanied Sam'l by auto cross-country to New Hampshire where the wedding took place. "I'm not sure he would have made it, were it not for Mama," Sylvia laughs.

What made her decide he was the one? "His intelligence, his imagination. And he is far more knowledgeable than I in all sorts of things," she answers.

The Newsom family lived in an attractive converted barn on Eugene Avenue in Mill Valley which Samuel persuaded "Grandpa" Klyce to part with.

"After the war, there was no housing and not much building either," he explains. "I asked Grandpa if he had any barns and he said: 'You and everyone else around here wants a barn.' After I got him to sell one to me, his son Mel and I worked on it for six months. It had nice lines and we have added a Japanese garden."

SAMUEL NEWSOM'S latest book was recently published in Tokyo by the Tokyo News Service Ltd. Entitled "A Japanese Garden Manual for Westerners—Basic Design and Construction," it is a follow-up to his "Dwarf Trees Manual for Westerners," now in its fifth edition.

The new book contains many color plates by Sylvia Newsom as well as over 80 drawings and diagrams by the author.

THE STORY OF the two dons and the bear has become a Marin County classic. When the bruin began mauling the big Irishman, Don Timoteo Murphy, his slighter friend of Spanish ancestry, Don Domingo Sais, went to his assistance. The intervention perhaps saved the life of Murphy, a prominent figure in Marin history. But it won Don Domingo, also a member of one of Marin's leading early-day families, no thanks from the Irish don. The drawing is by Paul Miller. Independent-Journal Historian Florence Donnelly tells the story of the Sais family in the article that begins below.

Marinspiration is a lot of things.

THE SAIS STORY

They Ruled Valley In Which Fairfax, San Anselmo Lie

(Editor's Note: This is another in a series of articles written especially for the Marin Magazine by Independent-Journal Historian Florence Donnelly on the pioneer residents and early-day events of Marin County. This week she writes of the Sais family.)

By FLORENCE DONNELLY
Independent-Journal Historian

As my introduction to the Sais family of Marin, let me re-tell a "bear story" as it was originally related by Steve Richardson, son of Capt. William A. Richardson, grantee of Rancho Saucelito.

Principals in the story were two famous early-day Marin dons — men who were as unlike in racial background, disposition and physique as could be imagined, and yet were close friends.

ONE OF THE figures in this story was Don Domingo Sais, grantee of Canada de Herrera, a slightly built man whose ancestors came from Castile, Spain. The other was Don Timoteo Murphy, a huge fellow and a native of Ireland.

Don Timoteo's land grant, Santa Margarite, Las Gallinas and San Pedro, adjoined Don Domingo's.

On with the bear story: Don Domingo and Don Timoteo were riding their horses one day in San Anselmo Valley when they saw a bear on the hillside. Don Timoteo, a great hunter, decided to bag the bear. Don Domingo, more cautious and wiser, pointed out the extreme danger, but the enthusiasm of his friend won him over.

A METHOD OF attack was agreed upon. They approached the bear from opposite sides. Don Timoteo first tried to throw his riata over the animal's head, but missed. Don Domingo, however, succeeded in getting his rope around the hind leg of the bear.

Then Don Timoteo's horse, frightened, reared and fell backwards, throwing its rider.

Don Timoteo had barely regained his feet when the infuriated bear was on him, clawing at his back, then attempting to crush him. Bravely, Don Domingo jumped from his horse and lashed the bear across the head with his quirt.

NOW, DISTRACTED, the bear turned to attack Don Domingo. And then Don Timoteo clamped his large hands over the bear's muzzle. Man and bear rolled down the hill, sometimes with the bruin on top, sometimes with the don on top. Finally the two crashed into a boulder, and the bear took off for the hills.

Don Timoteo's wounds were dressed by his friend. Huge pieces of skin had been ripped from his back. Only quick action by Don Domingo, plus the heavy leather coat the Irishman was wearing, saved his life.

And what thanks did the smaller man get from his Irish friend?

STEVE RICHARDSON used to chuckle as he recalled Don Timoteo's remark to his friend after all the excitement was over.

"Domingo," admonished Timoteo, "you Spanish are well-meaning people. But never again, as long as you live, mix in an Irishman's fight."

Another article later will deal with the story of Don Timoteo and his nephew, John Lucas. But this is the story of the Saises.

The distinguished name of Sais has been perpetuated by a large family.

THE GENEALOGY is difficult to follow because of the variations in the spelling of the surname. Sais also appears in legal documents as Saez, Sainz and Saenz.

Justo Nazario Saez and his wife, the former Maria Micaela Sotelo, came to California from Mexico and settled in Monterey. This was sometime after 1772.

One of their several sons, Juan, was born in Monterey in 1779. Juan married Dominga Valenzuela. This information is given in the Vallejo documents, Volume 15, Bancroft Collection, at the University of California. Justo Nazario Saez and his wife are both entered in the padron of 1790 as Espanoles — that is, they were of pure Spanish blood.

JUSTO NAZARIO Saenz was listed as a soldado de cuerpo in Monterey in 1782. After his army service was over, Justo and his family lived at the pueblo in San Jose. The surname was changed to Sais to make it more easily pronounced.

For much of this information I am indebted to Mrs. J. E. (Elsie) Mazzini of San Rafael, a direct descendant of Justo, Juan and Domingo Sais, and to Helen Van Cleave Park, like Mrs. Mazzini a member of Marin County Historical Society.

Juan Sais died at the hacienda of Capt. William Richardson at the Saucelito Rancho.

Juan and Dominga Sais were parents of many children, among them Domingo, who was born in 1805. He was a soldier at the presidio at Yerba Buena San Francisco from 1826 to 1833, and later a member of the militia. From 1837 to 1839 he was an elector and regidor at the pueblo. His wife was the former Manuella Augustina Miranda.

LEGEND HAS it that Domingo first came to the Marin shore on a raft which floated from the presidio to Big Rock off Punta Quentin (San Quentin). When the tide turned, Domingo freed the raft and it floated on to the point.

THE SAIS name has been a proud and important one in Marin County. Among those who carried it were Dominga Sais, pictured here with her husband Joseph Bresson. She was the youngest daughter of Don Domingo Sais, grantee of Canada de Herrera where San Anselmo and Fairfax are now located.

He was not harmed by the Indians who had a rancheria near the point nor by those who lived on the rancheria, which he decided to own. His own first dwelling was built of tules gathered from a pond where the section later known as Lansdale was located.

Domingo was delighted with the land. The hillsides were covered with redwoods and oaks and the valley was fertile. Domingo's second house to which he brought his wife and family, was a large hacienda on a knoll in what is now San Anselmo along the south side of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

IN RETURN FOR his services in the military and as a public official, on Aug. 10, 1839, Domingo Sais was granted two square leagues. This included what is now San Anselmo and Fairfax. He called the grant Canada de Herrera (Vale of the Blacksmiths).

The eldest daughter, Vincenta, (Vicci) was born in Yerba Buena in 1837. Soon there were many other sons and daughters to fill the hacienda with music and laughter.

Don Domingo devoted his time to improving his ranch and his hacienda of adobe (which was named La Pavidion), to stocking his rancho with cattle, horses and sheep, to tilling the valley to raise food for his family and his stock, and to hunting and fishing to fill the larder.

AS HIS SONS grew older, they assisted him. The girls and their mother carded wool after the sheep shearing, knitted and beautified their dresses with delicate Spanish lace. Often the gowns were silk brought by ships from the Orient.

Don Domingo and his family entertained in the Hispanic manner, opening their hacienda for fiestas to which were invited not only family and friends but also strangers who came to Marin.

One of these, J. E. Flatt, wrote to George McQuigg of Barton, N.Y., on Jan. 2, 1851:

"In San Rafael (probably at the hacienda of Don Timoteo Murphy) we had a fat calf for dinner and at night such a fandango. I must tell you about it. After dinner Domingo Sais told us there would be a general gathering at his casa, saying his senoritas wanted to dance.

"WE ALL WENT out to the rancho in the evening and sure enough the senoritas were there. Who would not fall in love with the California girls, even though he knew the girls in Barton? Here the dear creatures with their raven locks and round, beautiful faces meet you at the door with a buenos dias, senor, and oh—what smiles.

"We found the company seated around the room, most of them on the floor. It would enchant the ladies of New York to see one of our belles step out on the floor, throw her head back, spread her gown out on each side to show her pretty feet and ankles, and dance."

The writer also told of the lovely "forms" of the senoritas and concluded with an account of the feast served, saying: "Thus passed the first day of the New Year."

THE HAPPY, carefree days at the Sais hacienda were over when Don Domingo was killed by a fall from a horse in 1853.

Don Domingo's widow owned the original park in Fairfax, 65 acres of which she rented for picnics. After the railroad was built thousands of people came by train to dance and picnic in the park during the summer and early fall. Mrs. Sais held that property until she died Sept. 6, 1891.

The first division of the Sais

W. Taliaferro, a Virginian, bought from Don Domingo Sais 45 acres on which he built a hunting lodge. The good doctor, who served as the first physican at San Quentin Prison, had a house and office in San Rafael and cared for the sick in all parts of Marin. He had come to California in 1849 and was one of 75 members of the Virginia Company which had sailed from the James River in Virginia on the ship Glenmore.

ANOTHER MEMBER of the Virginia Company, which had come to California to seek a fortune in the gold fields, and the doctor's long-time friend, was Charles Snowden Fairfax (Lord Fairfax). Soon after arrival in California, the company disbanded, selling the ship and cargo at a great loss. Dr. Taliaferro came to Marin soon after his arrival in California.

After Charlie Fairfax married Ada Benham in January of 1855, the property, which now belongs to the Marin Town and Country Club, was transferred by Dr. Taliaferro to Lord and Lady Fairfax.

ALBERT SAIS was a son of Genoverva West Sais and her second husband,

Don Domingo and his wife had six children—Vicenta (Vicci), Pedro, Jesus M. (James), Mana Dolores (Laula), Mana de la Luce (Lucinda) and Dominga. The latter was the only one of minor age at the time of her father's death.

AS DON DOMINGO had died without making a will and no attempt was made for probate of the estate until more than 10 years after his death, there were many legal complications. Adding to the confusion, the sons and daughters were getting married and establishing homes of their own. One heir would buy the interest of another in the estate and parcels of property were given to lawyers in lieu of money. Other portions of the rancho were sold.

Pedro Sais married Manuella Vabrae on April 15, 1846, in San Rafael. They had four children.

Jesus M. (James) took as his bride Genoverva West, daughter of Marcus (Mark) West, who had been granted Rancho San Miguel (6,663 acres) in Sonoma by Governor Alvarado in 1855. His wife was the former Guadalupe Vasquez. They were the parents of Frances, Domingo, Eva, Genoverva, Katarina (Cassie) and Felix.

Mana Dolores (Laula) became the bride of Juan Peralta, whose family had been granted Rancho Buaccocha in North Marin.

THE ELDEST daughter, Vicenta (Vicci) had married Salvador Pacheco, also born in Yerba Buena. He and his wife made their home on the Pacheco Ranch. They had three children.

One of their daughters, Perfecta, became the wife of Peter

Crane, uncle of Warren and William Crane of San Rafael.

Mana de Luce (Lucinda) Sais became the bride of Gregorio Ocana at a ceremony in San Rafael.

Dominga, the youngest daughter of Don Domingo, was married to Joseph Bresson, who had a ranch of 775 acres in San Geronimo Valley. A daughter, Louise, makes her home in San Gabriel.

BECAUSE OF various land transactions involving Canada de Herrera and the resulting confusion, the heirs of the estate petitioned for a survey. This was made by Hiram Austin, Marin County surveyor, in 1868.

Deeds and quit claim indentures were drawn for all the heirs. Also included were others who had bought portions of the property. As had happened in so many other ranchos, squatters had moved onto the land without any legal right.

A drought plagued Marin. Crops dried in the field and there was no feed for the livestock. As a result, land values dropped, sometimes to as low as a dollar or four bits an acre. It was almost a miracle that Don Domingo's widow managed to hold onto her small parcel of land from the original grant.

RETURNING TO the family history of Jesus (James Sais):

Frances was married to John H. Clark of San Rafael. They had 10 children, and surviving are Henrietta, George, Maud, Pauline and Arline.

Domingo married a cousin, Cosmos Sais.

Eva married Adolph Koenig. Their son, Adolph Koenig, lives in the family home in San Rafael.

Genoverva became Mrs. Garcia. A son, Leslie Garcia, is a resident of Santa Cruz.

In 1896, Katharina (Cassie) became the wife of George R. Phillipas. After his death, she married Richard Andrews. The only surviving member of their family is Mrs. J. E. Mazzini of San Rafael.

FELIX SAIS, for many years a San Rafael resident and member of its volunteer fire department, was married to Anna Gagliardi. Their daughters are Grace Sais Fisher of Albany and Gertrude Sais Heim of Southern California.

To further complicate the genealogy, after the death of Jesus (James) Sais, his widow, Genoverva, married another Sais, William, a nephew of Don Domingo. One of their three sons, Edward Sais, married Anna Carlson. Their daughter, Violet Sais Haller, is a San Rafael resident. Her brother, Albin Sais, makes his home in El Cerrito.

It is sad to realize that all that remains of the vast land grant awarded to Don Domingo Sais are the names of three avenues, Dominga in Fairfax, named for the youngest daughter, and Sais Avenue and Camino de Herrera Avenue, formerly Canada de Herrera, in San Anselmo.

The family, itself, however, has left its imprint indelibly upon Marin County history. The name Sais is one of those that must be considered first and foremost among those hardy and farsighted people who built Marin into what it is today.

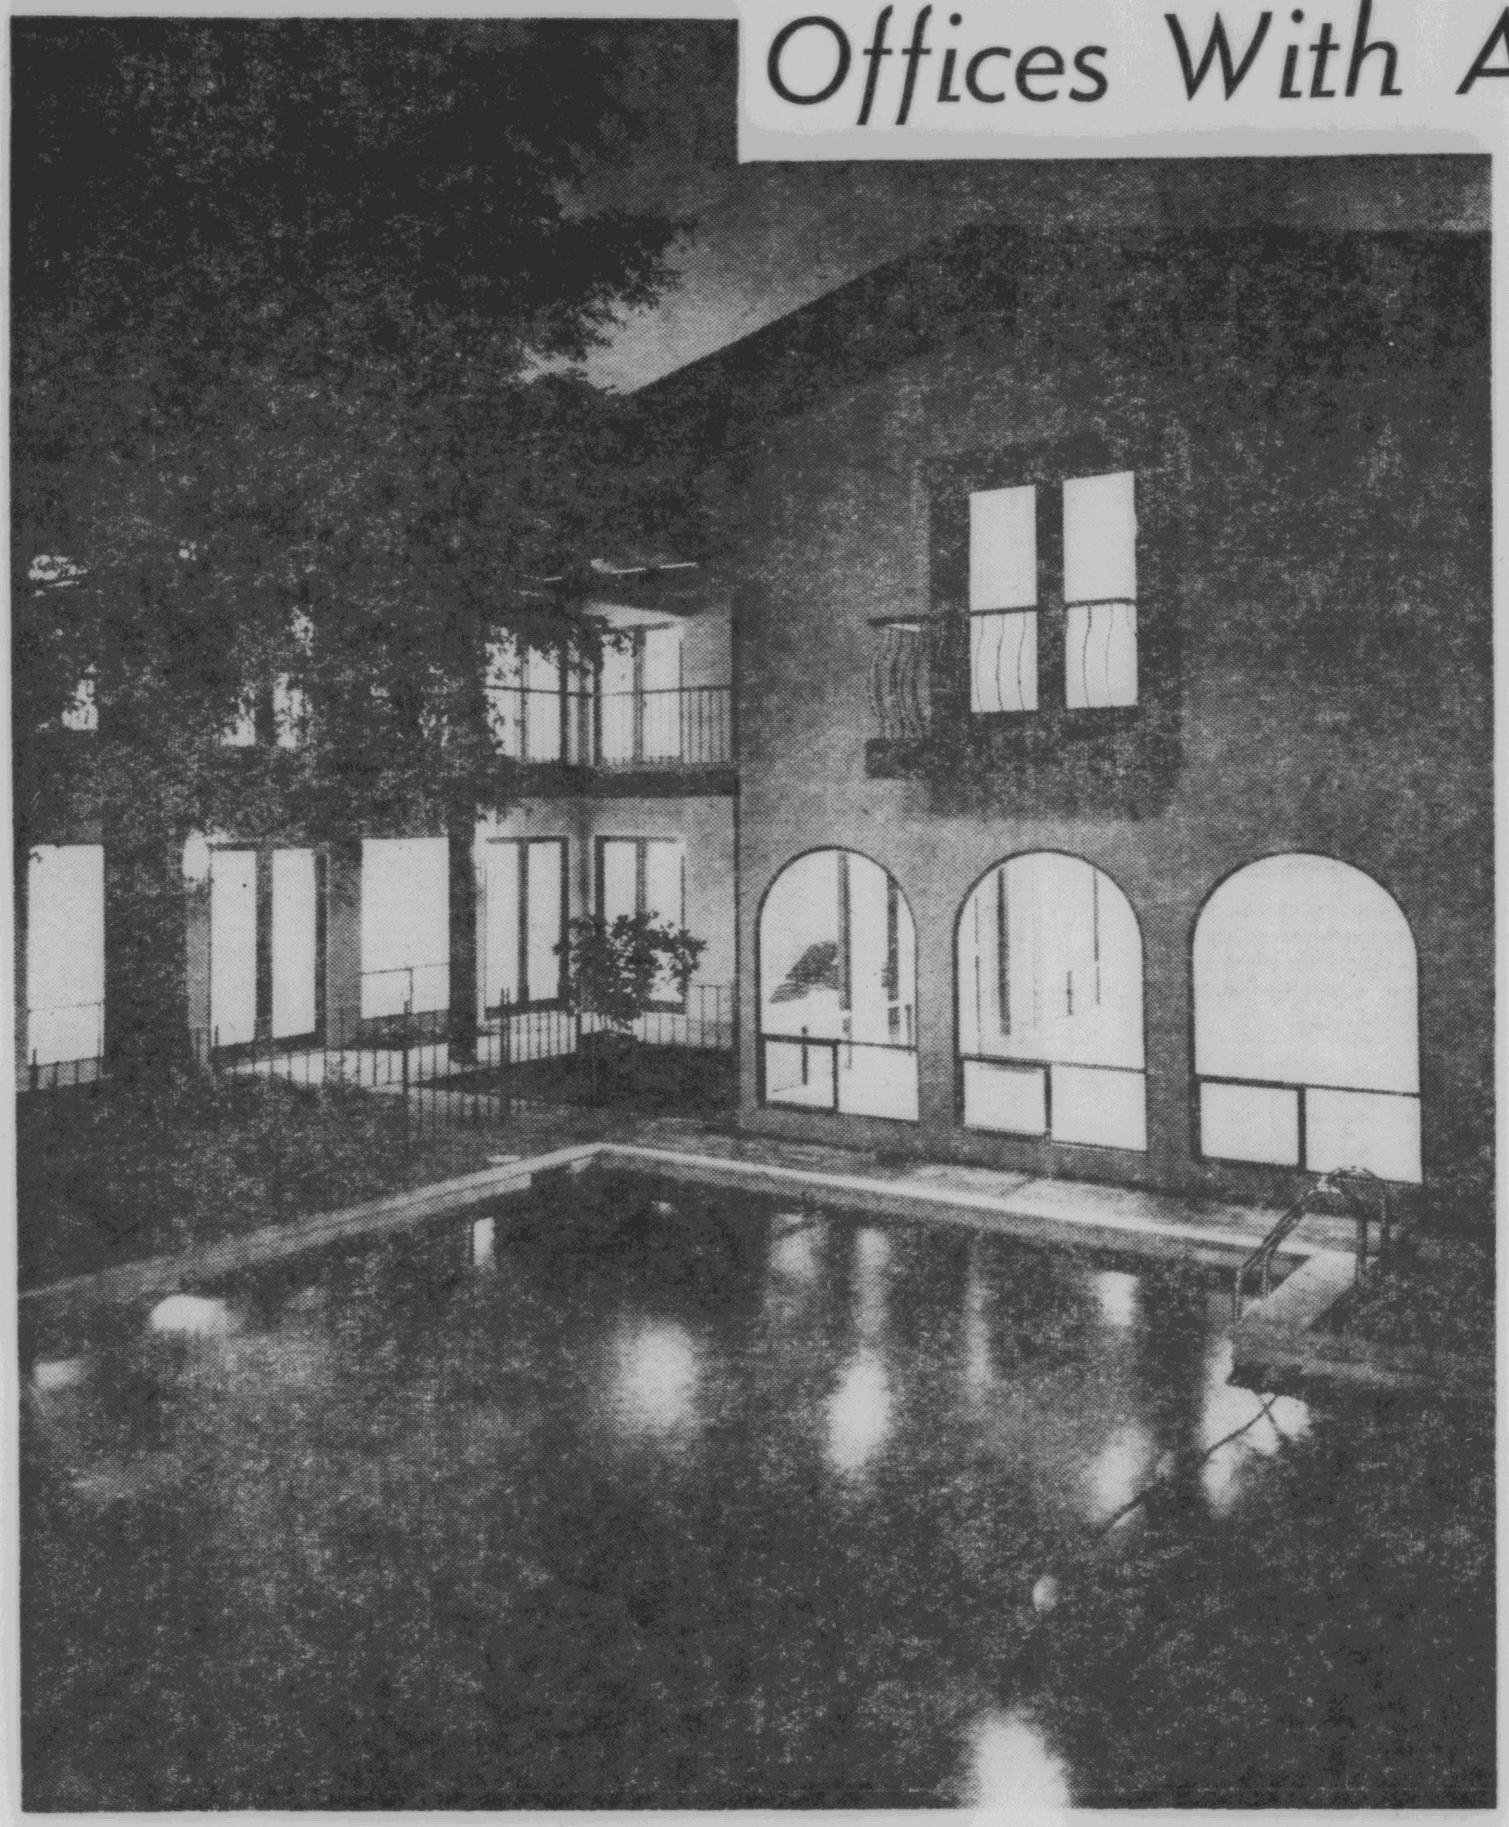
Offices With A Pool—



There's A Spanish Air To Complex

Real estate broker Phyllis Steckel says the new Essex Square, which she co-owns with builder Bruce Wolper, at 412 Redhill, San Anselmo, "is the only commercial building of its kind in Marin County that offers its tenants a full-sized, heated and filtered swimming pool."

For the further pleasure of the occupants, dressing rooms and showers are located near the pool.

SWIMMING facilities, however, are not the only unusual feature of the new office complex of three buildings.

Attracting equal attention is the Mediterranean manner in which the complex is laid out and designed.

The buildings surround a brick courtyard in which is located the aforementioned pool.

Curved arches, wrought-iron railings, balconies, gaslight fixtures, heavy beam ceilings are other features that add to the Mediterranean or Spanish feeling.

THE UNUSUAL concept for business office housing is described by its real estate broker-co-owner as "my dream come true."

She explains: "I have always loved old California history, and have wanted to construct a building that would be in keeping with the history and traditions of the picturesque past of Marin County."

Essex Square is that, she feels.

Mrs. Steckel deplores "the lack of imagination" that has, she feels, been displayed in many other commercial structures throughout the county.

IN KEEPING with the design of the complex, Mrs. Steckel has decorated her own realty offices located there in Spanish decor.

Displayed on the white wall is a large antique world map. On another wall is a large old brass clock.

MRS. STECKEL describes her office suite as "pleasant and homelike."

And she takes pride in the wedding of modern convenience with the charm of California's proud, early heritage that she and builder Wolper have accomplished.

BALCONIES, wrought iron rails and appropriate plantings are among the techniques that have been used to give San Anselmo's Essex Square its distinctive Old California flavor.

One Man's Efforts To Maintain The Indian Traditions

Timm Williams Of Fairfax Still Makes His Own Ceremonial Dress

By DON KEOWN

Timm Williams of Fairfax is the last of the males of his Yurok Tribe family to engage in the once almost mandatory craft and custom of making tribal ceremonial costumes.

He does so, Williams says, "in an effort to maintain some recognition of our status as Indians."

Such an effort is not an easy one, he says, in the face of a society that "is based almost entirely on the American dollar."

"THERE ISN'T much money to be made in the keeping of traditions," he says sadly.

As examples of the obstacles faced by those Indians dedicated to the continuation of their tribal customs and costumes, Williams points out that two essential materials for their dress—eagle feathers and otters — are no longer available to them except "second hand," as the result of conservation laws.

"I believe in conservation," he says. "But I believe the Indians' religious rights should also be recognized. And our ceremonial dress is part of our religion."

FAWN MORRIS of San Anselmo models a Yurok Indian costume that took her mother, Ethel Williams of Crescent City, shown with her, about three years to complete with the help of her late husband, Harry Williams. This elaborate dress is for the ceremonial brush dance, and is valued at between $1,500 and $2,000. The blouse with beaded necklace is of leather; the wrap-around buckskin skirt is decorated with abalone shells and with smaller shells and pine cone seeds that rattle as the wearer dances. All shells had to be matched, hand drilled, cut for size and polished for an even pattern. Mrs. Williams is one of the few women of her tribe still practicing the ancient crafts necessary in the making of such garments.

letic teams, has three costumes, all made by him.

"One is my Stanford Indian costume, a kind of combination of dress customs from many tribes," he says. "The other two are authentic Yurok dress."

His sister, Fawn Morris of San Anselmo, has available to her two full costumes made by their mother, Mrs. Ethel Williams of Crescent City.

"ACTUALLY," Timm Williams explains, "the ceremonial costumes are regarded as the property of the entire family."

The Williamses also own 28 sets of beads. A dancer may wear several sets, and the Williams' possessions are enough to equip 10 to 15 men for the traditional three-day brush dance.

"Such a dance is as much an opportuniy to display your treasures such as costumes, beads and headdresses as it is an opportunity to exhibit your dancing ability," Williams explains.

IT IS A special honor, he adds, when one family lets other members of the tribe wear its possessions for a dance.

"It is through his ceremonial clothing and decoration that the Indian shows his affluence, his good taste, his good training," Williams says. "If you don't have costumes, you are regarded as not being very ambitious."

The Yuroks, now numbering between 2,800 and 3,000, are part of the Hoopa Valley Indian Reservation in Northern California. The Williams homeplace was once part on the reservation and is now located nearby. Williams has many relatives still living on the reservation.

THERE ARE three or four family groups within the Yurok tribe that still own authentic ceremonial costumes such as his own, Williams says.

Financial difficulties of the Indians have contributed toward the decline in costume ownership.

"Sometimes the Indians have to sell their costumes so that they can eat," Williams says. "Cellectors buy them. I think it is a crying shame. But you can't watch your family starve."

BIG TRIBAL dances are held two or three times a year. For the Yuroks, the biggest is the one held on Fourth of July at the Hoopa Valley Reservation.

"Dances are held at traditional spots that to the Indians are very much like a church liams explains.

There is, he adds, a element of uncertainty ab dates of the ceremonial

"Should My Fur-Trimmed Coat Be Drycleaned?"

Yes, all garments should be drycleaned. However, garments trimmed with fur should have the fur removed before the garment is cleaned. It has been established that drycleaning a fur - trimmed garment shortens the life of the fur. Certain oils and dressings are removed from the pelt by drycleaning and the fur deteriorates more rapidly than if the fur was cleaned by the furrier method. In many cases the fur damage is not noticed at once. But after several drycleanings, the fur trim may disintegrate.

In some instances the fur trim is so stitched on the garment that it cannot be removed. In that event, drycleaning is the on method practical. The f should be glazed after dr cleaning to improve its a pearance. Your dryclean will be glad to drycle your fur-trimmed coat f you, but you should aware of the hazzard if t fur cannot be removed b fore drycleaning.

AT LEFT, Fawn Morris of San Anselmo gives you a close look at the intricate work performed by her mother, Ethel Williams, in the making of this Yurok ceremonial costume. The long, tubular white shells are dentalium or Indian money, used by the Yuroks and neighboring tribes in their business transaction. Mrs. Morris' hair is wrapped with mink strips in the traditional Yurok fashion. Above, you look down on the top of the hat worn by Mrs. Morris. The black in the pattern is the bark of the Maidenhair Fern, picked only in the spring. The white is ham-mau, a prairie grass similar to Pampas grass that must be burned the year before it is picked if the desired white is to be achieved. Hazel sticks and willow root make up the foundation of the hat. The hazel sticks, too, must be burned and then picked the following spring while the sap is running. The bird beaks are woodpecker scalps for decorations.

THE FRONT BREECH or apron of a Yurok costume is decorated with glass beads by Timm Williams. The Indians formerly used real seeds for this fancy work, then began trading for beads which they then called seed beads.

AN ARM GUARD is held by Williams as he studies where to place the decorative beads. Later, there will also be some ermine, mink and shells as further ornamentation for this part of his ceremonial costume.

TIMM WILLIAMS IS a full-blooded Yurok, but this costume which he wears as Stanford University's official athletic mascot he describes as "sort of an All-American Indian dress," since it represents many tribal cultures and customs. Many of the materials and articles are gifts from other tribes. Williams has been Stanford's Prince Lightfoot for 15 years.

The Dress Is Authentic

ership of the dance dress has a death in the family, no dance will be held that year in tribute to the deceased," he says. "On the other hand, the others might make a payment to the family of the deceased as recognition of the death. Then the dance can proceed."

Williams, an office employee of Matson Terminals in San Francisco, does his costume-making in his Fairfax home, utilizing crafts and skills that are traditional with his tribe.

"Sometimes it gets to be work," he admits, "but on the whole, it is a change and relief from my other activities, and usually I hate to lay it down. Sometimes I will work until 2 or 3 in the morning if I get involved in a certain piece."

WILLIAMS lectures frequently on Indian subjects — on the tribal forms of government for college political science classes, on Indian religions for church organizations, on Indian lore for youth groups.

His dancing is confined to the Yurok tribal gatherings.

"If I go to the dances of other tribes, it is as a guest and spectator," he says, "s i m p l y to learn what they are doing."

His widowed mother, 65, is thinking about beginning yet another women's costume — a three or four year undertaking.

THIS TIME, her son says, she hopes to use more of the original clam shells of Yurok tradition instead of so many seed beads.

Mrs. Williams is a frequent visitor in Marin in the homes of her son and daughter.

Williams is not overly optimistic about the chances for success of those like himself who strive to perpetuate the old tribal traditions.

"The flow of time is against us," he says.

But he adds: "I, for one, intend to keep on trying. I think it is important."

THE YUROKS first wore buckskin leggi as protection for the shin against brush through which they ran and wo ed. Later they developed fancier moc such as this one for their ceremo dancing.

Yoga For The Westerner, And Some Old-Fashioned Virtues

By DON KEOWN

Yoga continues to hold a fascination for many Americans.

That fascination, however, sometimes turns to disillusionment when Westerners attempt to master these Eastern disciplines on a teach-yourself basis with the help only of a book.

This, experienced practitioners say, is usually the result of one of two things:

1. The novice may have expected too much from yoga, regarding it as some mystical program that produces magical results.

2. Or the new devotee while following the physical regimen is unable to produce the necessary attendant climate of tranquility under the adverse conditions of a noisy, hurry-up Western society.

It would seem that the full realization of yoga philosophy and procedures by a Westerner with a book as his only instructor would be a most unlikely accomplishment. Some more personal guidance would be required. But, say instructors such as Frenchman J.-M. Dechanet, there is still no reason why an American or European cannot glean valuable advantages from a study of the subject.

In his "Christian Yoga," Monsieur Dechanet presented the modified form of yoga disciplines that he developed for his own students.

Now, in "Yoga in Ten Lessons," he offers that program in a more specific format. The emphasis is upon those physical exercises or postures that are fundamental. These are demonstrated through drawings. While there is no great effort to indoctrinate the Westerner with the attendant Oriental philosophy, there is a presentation of the general conditions of the mind and emotions that must be effected if the inner harmony that is the objective of yoga is to be achieved.

Dechanet's point is that Americans and Europeans can extract many of the therapeutic advantages such as good health, a contemplative approach to life and the ability to relax both mind and body without embracing in its totality a philosophy that requires many years of dedication for real mastery. That is not to say that Dechanet's course is one that can be taken lightly or absorbed with ease. But it is one that he presents as offering maximum benefits from an investment of time and concentration that is within the limits of practicality for most busy Westerners.

YOGA IN TEN LESSONS by J.-M. Dechanet, Harper & Row, 174 pages, $3.50.

NORVELL'S DYNAMIC MENTAL LAWS FOR SUCCESSFUL LIVING by Anthony Norvell, Parker Publishing Co., 231 pages, $4.98.

A DOCTOR'S SECRETS OF YOUTH, HEALTH AND LONG LIFE by Dr. John E. Eichenlaub, Prentice-Hall, 213 pages, $4.95.

ANOTHER source to which many Americans have looked for decades for help with their physical, mental and spiritual problems is the so-called positive thinking or self-improvement field.

What its exponents, such as the lecturer and writer Anthony Norvell, usually offer is a common-sense program of homely old-fashioned values all wrapped up in some rather fancy trappings such as being the distilled wisdom of the ancient East.

There can be no serious quarrel with the attributes that Norvell advocates in his "Norvell's Dynamic Mental Laws for Successful Living." Such traits as self-assurance, ambition, religious faith, dedication, persistence, charity, thrift, etc., have pretty well proven themselves. And if it helps for some that these virtues be served up as some kind of a mystical philosophy or religion, there is no great objection to that.

What is hazardous is that these teachers and writers are too often prone to exaggerate and oversell their wares. The pupil who expects miracles may not be willing to settle for less spectacular gains, and may sink into apathy and discouragement.

It is not so much the product they offer as the promises they make that leave the "positive thinkers" open to criticism. Our moralists and philosophers for centuries have preached many of these same ideas, but with better perspective. The reader who can retain his in the face of the sometimes flamboyant pledges of authors and their publishers can still benefit from reading—and following, at least in part—programs such as Anthony Norvell's.

A THIRD field in which book publishers have found a large and eager audience among Americans with their personal well-being is that of traditional and folk medicine.

A number of writers have specialized in this kind of information and advice, one of the better known being John E. Eichenlaub, Johns Hopkins educated M.D. who has practiced in three states and taught at the University of Minnesota.

His "A Doctor's Secrets of Youth, Health and Long Life" is his fourth book, and he is also a prolific writer of magazine articles.

Eichenlaub covers the usual subjects—eating, exercise, recreation, grooming, clothing, posture, sleep, breathing, bathing, home remedies, mental outlook, etc.

The doctor, however, has some twists of his own. For instance, to satisfy the appetite with fewer calories, always begin with appetizers. To ease and loosen stiff fingers, try a paraffin bath. If you cannot sleep well on your back, there's a special pillow that will help. To prevent skin wrinkles and other signs of aging, wear broad-brimmed hats as a protection against the sun's rays.

Books such as Dr. Eichenlaub's are no substitute for close, continuing contact with the family doctor. He does not offer it as such. But he does contend that his advice will, if followed, lessen the urgency of such contacts, and delay the aches, pains and wrinkles that come with age.

ARRIVING too late for pre-Christmas review were two attractive "novelties" from the busy and clever little San Francisco publishing firm of Determined Productions Inc.

"Good Times Scrap Book" features Marin comic strip cartoonist Marty Links and her popular United Features Syndicate character Emmy Lou. Words are by Jerry Bundsen, for years columnist Herb Caen's righthand man.

Aimed at the young girl, the big book offers not only Emmy Lou's humorous teen-age trials and tribulations, but also ample space for autographs, snapshots, clippings, etc.

"Christmas Is Together Time" is the work of Charles M. Shulz of "Peanuts" fame and presents Charlie Brown and friends telling you just what Christmas means to them. It is both funny and warmly sensitive. Too bad the review mailings were so tardy.

AIMED AT a specific and very limited audience but containing some material of more general interest is "Profitable Private Campground Construction and Operation," available from Rajo Publications Inc. of 215 Park Avenue South, New York, N.Y., for $2. In magazine format, it is a guide prepared by outdoor writer Rea Agnew on campsite planning, development, upkeep and administration. But campers, vacation-home owners and handymen generally may find the directions for such construction projects as cabin, toilets, showers, benches and tables useful.

TRUMAN Capote's "In Cold Blood," a factual account of a multiple murder in Kansas in 1959, has been selected as the Book-of-the-Month Club choice for Feburary.

TEN LAVISHLY ILLUSTRATED books including the one reviewed below make up the new "Landmarks of the World's Art" series, published by McGraw-Hill Book Co. Publishers in the Orient and in Europe are also cooperating in the international venture. The books will be released over a two-year period.

THE CLASSICAL WORLD by Donald E. Strong, McGraw-Hill, 166 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Apparently king-sized gift books have replaced the proverbial necktie when it comes to Christmas presents, at least among the ranks of the intellectuals.

Review desks were swamped with these large and lavishly illustrated volumes in the pre-holiday weeks this year. So much so that only a trickle among the torrent could be accorded review space.

Among those buried in our deluge was this entry in McGraw-Hill's scholarly "Landmarks of the World's Art" series under the editorship of Bernard S. Myers, American, and Trewin Copplestone, Briton. This international venture is a most ambitious one — an attempt to present through outstanding authorities a complete visual survey of man's artistic achievements through the ages.

For this account of the Greco - Roman contributions over a period of 2,000 years, Donald E. Strong, assistant keeper of the Department of Greek and Roman Antiquities of the British Museum in London, was selected.

There is no quarreling with the impressive knowledge of his subject that Strong displays. But his method of presentation is something else again. The approach is that of a professor addressing his students, and this tone becomes wearisome in time. Strong also pre-supposes a great deal of advanced knowledge on the part of his readers, thus limiting much of the value of his text to those who are already well indoctrinated into Greek and Latin cultures.

For such scholars, full-grown or fledgling, however, the book must be a marvelous find.

And the photos are something else again. The novice can well appreciate the astonishing civilizations that flourished along the Mediterranean after viewing the magnificent 128 full-color plates and 109 black and white photos of some of the world's greatest treasures.

There are frontispiece maps of the classical world, plus a helpful chronological table in the back. Also a suggested reading list and glossary.

Despite our difficulty with Strong's weighty text, we found the book a dazzling display of scholarship. And the price is remarkably modest for this kind of a book.

Sleuths & Suspense

THE PATCHWORK OF DEATH by Peter Nichols, Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 191 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Here is an exciting suspense novel with an out-of-the-ordinary plot.

During World War II a German agent is landed on the British coast. But instead of taking up his intelligence work for the Reich, he seizes the opportunity to cut his old ties and to establish a new identity and life as Charles Stephenson, London shopkeeper.

Now, 20 years later, his secret has apparently been uncovered. And his life is in jeopardy. Stephenson suspects fanatical Nazi remnants from the past.

In an effort to protect his daughter from the anonymous peril, Stephenson flees to South America. And it is there that the story comes to a conclusion that is not quite on par with the remainder of the yarn, but still quite acceptable.

Peter Nichols is said to be the pseudonym of a "well-known English author," and why he should wish to disguise his identity in connection with such a commendable effort as this, we do not understand.

For Pup Owners

D IS FOR DOG by Frank Manolson, foreword by Cleveland Armory, Basic Books, 240 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Jeff Greer.

Until this book came along, the best primer for novice dog owners in the United States was the American Kennel Club's handbook. Following that were only fragmentary bits of dog husbandry in the hundreds of American books on individual breeds.

Now, veterinarian Manolson has put together a book that everyone who buys a puppy should buy along with dog license, leash and grooming tools.

Organized in alphabetical form, the book answers almost any question a beginning dog owner could have, and opens the eyes of the veteran dog fancier once in a while, too. It's not entirely consistent in thoroughness of treatment of all topics, but will certainly stand as the best for some time to come.

Dr. Manolson now practices in London, after training and experience in the United States, Canada and British Honduras. He modestly credits "all the real work in this book" to Joan Drummond-Hay of London, without mentioning that she is a titled Lady, and one of the peers of British dog breeders and exhibitors. He also gets a delightful assist from Bostonian society scribe Amory—who is a moving force in the Humane Society of the United States.

But now to quibble—Dr. Manolson frequently jibes about nervous, badly-bred pets, but occasionally tries to say that, really, not all dogs are this way. His evaluations of breeds' characteristics will sound a bit far-out to some American breeders. And, an American publishing house should have helped him add information about American feeding practices and veterinary capabilities that are unknown to the Briton for whom Dr. Manolson apparently basically writes.

The Little Boy

HALLIBURTON: The Magnificent Myth, by Jonathan Root, Coward-McCann, 278 pages, $5.50. Reviewed by Alan Cunningham.

Even if one had never heard the name Richard Halliburton before reading this biography by San Francisco reporter Jonathan Root, one would know from it that his name was a household word to millions of Americans in the 1930s.

As much of a legend in his own time as the glamorous motion picture personalities of the same period, Halliburton became the subject of many bits of folklore which were far from the truth. Root seems to have done a good job of picking out fact from fiction and presenting it in a straight, unemotional manner.

In a decade when hard times made people all the more aware of the drabness of their lives, Halliburton filled a void, just as the movies did. He provided vicarious romance for those who knew they would never leave Peoria, Des Moines or Kalamazoo.

While it might make a better fairy tale to say that Richard Halliburton was the happiest man on earth, laughing off the jibes of critics who called his books superficial nonsence, Root shows this was not the case.

Never really a scholar, he was exposed to enough scholasticism to pursue in vain the dream that his romanticized travel books would give way to more enduring works. Root leaves one feeling that he probably would never have accomplished this, although he did leave a huge file of notes on poet Rupert Brooke from which novelist Arthur Springer was able to write a serious biography.

Root also shows the contrast between Halliburton's exploits and the way he portrayed them. Climbing the Matterhorn, taking an elephant across the Alps like Hannibal, or swimming the Panama Canal, he often was too sick, tired or frightened to gain any spiritual or esthetic benefit until he invented some at the typewriter.

On the other hand, the book clearly credits Halliburton with more sensitivity—and in at least two instances, more journalistic acumen — than his detractors ever did.

A curious mixture of daring and cowardice, of nonconformity and insecurity, Halliburton is shown here to be at least partially the victim of his own sudden fame. By the time he realized his journeys had ceased to be carefree adventures, he was committed to them as his readers in Peoria were to their time clocks.

If Root comes to any sure conclusion, it is mainly that Halliburton was really a little boy who never grew up. This theory would seem to explain why he was in so many ways unable to cope with his own success.

ANOTHER Harry Titcombe illustration from "D Is For Dog" shows the Pekingese, the product of Chinese breeding of the toughest of litters to each other through centuries.

A Hero's Story

OUTPOST OF FREEDOM by Roger H. C. Donlon and Warren Rogers, McGraw-Hill, 202 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Alan Cunningham.

When a soldier wins the national Medal of Honor in battle it is only a matter of time until he can be expected to write his autobiography, regardless of whether he has any ability to write, or whether he has that much of a story to tell.

Thus it is no surprise to see this book, by Army Captain Donlon "as told to" Warren Rogers, appear a few months after Donlon was awarded the medal for his actions during a Viet Cong attack on the quarters of his Special Forces team at Nam Dong, South Viet Nam in July, 1964.

The book starts with a chapter about the White House ceremony in which President Lyndon B. Johnson hung the medal on Donlon's uniform. It then jumps back to his childhood and continues through what the jacket liner notes call "years of Huckleberry Finn adventures."

It ultimately tells how he achieved his desire to be an Army officer (through Officer Candidate School when he enlisted after two periods at West Point), joined the elite Special Forces and was sent to Viet Nam.

Liberal quotations from Army literature, a red, white and blue dust jacket and a foreword by Sen. Robert F. Kennedy all add to the feeling that this is the type of book the Johnson administration would like to see as the required reading for everyone in its quest for a "consensus" about Viet Nam.

No doubt many people whose principal reading diet comes from men's magazines might find this type of book right down their alley. But it can hardly be termed a work of any real significance, either as biography, war story or plain storytelling.

Readers seeking something more will soon become aware that Donlon's boyhood adventures were no more Huck Finnish, or interesting, than those of millions of other American youths who never will have a book written about them.

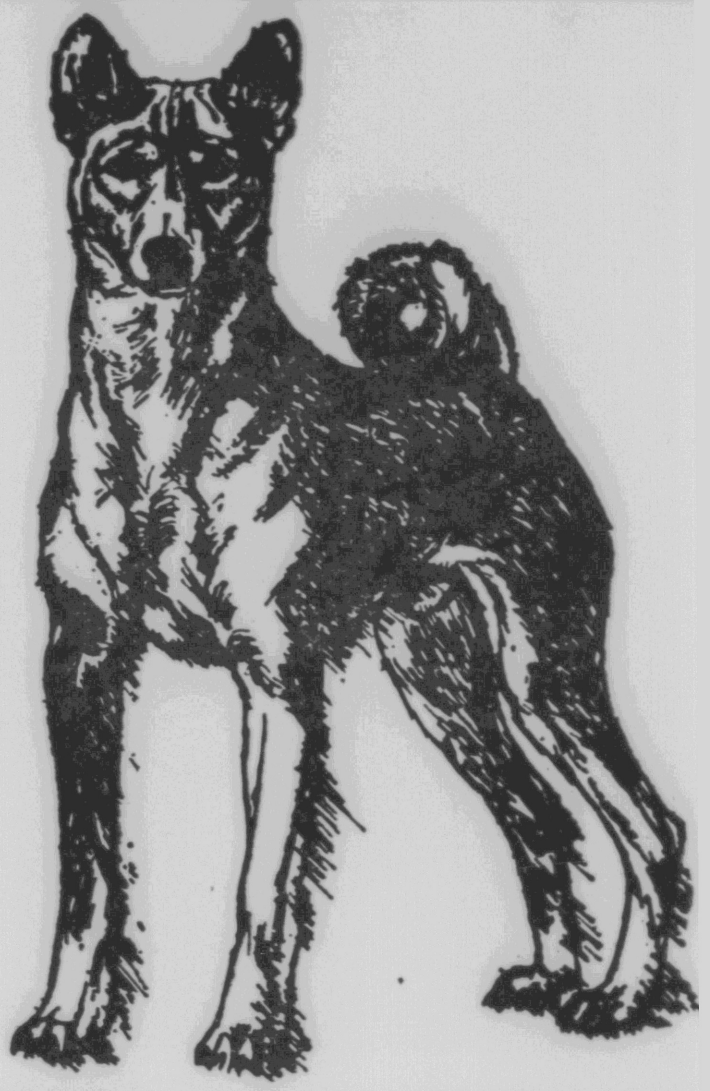
One of the most obvious examples of the book's lack of depth, however, is the terse sentence which ends Chapter Five. After 10 pages on his days at West Point, Donlon suddenly dismisses it all with the statement that he "resigned for personal reasons and took a stab at civilian life."

Buried beneath such a sentence in a ghost-writen autobiography probably lies enough of a man's life to fill an entire chapter, were it a meaningful book dealing with someone about whom thoughtful people would have any wish to read.

A Salty Story

THE TALL VOYAGERS by Claire Rankin, Ward Ritchie Press (distributed by Lane Publishing Co.), 224 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Jeff Greer.

This is the life story of a man who grew up in the dying days of the globe-girdling sailing vessels and the tiny, hard-bitten coasters that still eked out a living against competition from the boiler-powered "stinkpots" around the Great War era.



THE BASENJI, not barkless as some claim, but just a good deal quieter than most canines, is among the illustrations included in "D Is For Dog," Basic Books' new compact encyclopedia for dog owners, prepared by the British authority Frank Manolson.

It is the story, told in first person, of Capt. Barney Burnett. The book doesn't say so, but apparently author Rankin must have spent many, many hours taking down the old seaman's reminiscences.

No great man's autobiography, nor yet a romanticized sea story, this; Capt. Burnett leads us through the storms and doldrums of an individualistic, somewhat stubborn and contrary human being's life, groaning not overmuch about his failures, nor boasting overloud about his successes.

For about 178 pages we thought this was a rather ordinary, unusually authentic sailor's-eye look at life with some fien old photographs. Then, by golly, up pops a genuine love story, with a good spicing of suspense.

Some popular novelist, television scripter or Hollywood hack could get a thousand pages out of the book's last 50 pages, or an entire season on the network shows.

We won't tell you how it ends. It's true to life, though.

Particularly interesting—if the reader falls remotely under the "white liberal" category—is the last chapter, titled "Tea a Sympathy; Liberals and oth White Hopes." In it, Abraha Lincoln topples with a host other (white) sacred cows. Or the most thick-skinned Ang Saxon reader will be able read it without squirming a bi

Art Society Has International Flavor

There's a strong international flavor to the Marin Society of Artists, reflected in its new member roster taking part in the organization's annual New Members Show that opens tomorrow in the Frances Young Gallery at the Marin Art and Garden Center, Ross.

Indicative of the varied backgrounds of the members of the Marin society are two participants in the new show.

FRANK GUSDORF of Terra Linda left Germany in 1939 after his father had died in a concentration camp. He is a senior instructor with the San Francisco Air Defense School in radar and computer electronics.

A 20-year army man, he has an impressive record of accomplishment in art. Last year three of his works were accepted for the important San Francisco Annual—a painting, a sculpture and a woodcut.

Further demonstrating his versatility, he does portraits, figure paintings, woodcarvings and is currently working in etching and lithograph techniques.

His army travels have taken him to Europe, Central America, the Far East and most recently to Korea.

HANNA MERIANS of Sausalito is Israeli-born. Her travels have taken her to London and Paris, to the Far East where she lived in Thailand and Saigon, and in Venezuela and Colombia.

Her work, she feels, reflects the spirit of Israel, but she also sees expressions of the other lands where she has lived and peoples she has met.

Both permanent and temporary residents of the Bay Area are welcomed into the membership of the Marin Society of Artists, its officers say.

And with each addition, the society grows in the scope and variety of backgrounds of that roster.

The New Members Show will continue through Jan. 30.

Gallery hours are 2 to 4 p.m. daily, plus 7 to 9 p.m. on Thursdays only.

SPECTRUM

Violet, indigo, blue,
Green, yellow, orange and red;
These are the earth's bright cover,
The glowing splendor around us.

These are the morning sky,
The rainbow, the pulsing aurora;
These are the sunset cloud,
The sea, the forest, the mesa.

These are the gleaming berg,
The waterfall's shimmering curtain;
These are the opal, the jade,
The coral's incredible structure.

These are the tulip, the rose,
The heather, the October maple;
These are the paradise bird,
The mandrill, the starfish, the beetle.

These are the cardinal's flight,
The snake's geometrical pattern;
These are the lace-fly's wing,
The jewel eye of the lizard.

These are the skipping wave,
The grain of sand and the seashell,
The scale of the speeding trout,
The seed, the spore, the amoeba.

Violet, indigo, blue,
Green, yellow, orange and red;
There are the radiant pageant,
But who stays his hurry to see them?

Lerner is a former editor of The Nation and editorial director of the newspaper PM, author of "The Unfinished Country" and "The Age of Overkill" and a professor of American civilization at Brandeis University.

On The Stereo Scene

By JOHN SUNIER

WOODY HERMAN AND HIS SWINGING HERD—"My Kind of Broadway"—Columbia Stereo CS 9157:

The hottest and swinging-est band Woody Herman has ever had is now on the Columbia label, and this first new lp is a resounding success for them.

Surely most jazz fans have by now heard at last a track or two from the several discs released since 1963 by Philips Records. This one surpasses even those as far as ensemble sound, infectious rhythmic drive, and smashing stereo sound go.

The tunes are from the most popular musicals, but Woody seems to be much more successful in making big band vehicles out of them than other band leaders have been. If you only buy one big band jazz lp this year, make it this one.

BUD SHANK & HIS BRAZILIAN FRIENDS—Pacific Jazz Stereo 89:

Here is another nova release of more bossa.

The first thing that Marinites will notice about this lp is the very first tune is titled "Sausalito."

IN PERSON AT EL MATADOR — Sergio Mendes & Brasil '65— Atlantic Stereo 8112:

This album was recorded in San Francisco at Barnaby Conrad's nightclub in North Beach last year. It strikes me as the best of the Brasil '65 lp's that have been issued thus far.

Undoubtedly the responsive audience helped the group toward new heights.

Longest and finest item on the record: "Black Orpheus Medley," with a wonderful vocal by Wanda de Sah. This six-minute sequence sounds more like the original film score than anything else so far produced in the Black Orpheus re-discovery on discs, only it's even better. Also fascinating is the haunting African prayer a la bossa nova, "Reza," which Jon Hendricks used so beautifully at the Monterey Jazz Festival.

This is a don't-miss album.

CHILES & PETTIFORD — "Live at Jilly's" — Atlantic Stereo 8111:

Jilly's is a new "in" place in New York, or at least was at the time this lp was cut.

Walter Chiles is a pianist and vocalist, Clarence Pettiford a bass player and vocalist and a distant relative of the late great Oscar Pettiford. The two have an unusual variety in their song bag, including pop and Broadway tunes and traditional blues like "C. C. Rider."

Their own arrangements are interesting, and their duet work has the same quality of good swinging fun about it that Jackie and Roy demonstrate so well.

As with Jackie & Roy, perhaps technically they miss the mark a bit, but that doesn't detract from them at all. "School Days," the old Dizzy Gillespie novelty, comes in for an hilarious treatment by Chiles & Pettiford.

A natural for stereo too, these duets.

RHYTHM CRAZY — JIMMY CLEVELAND—Emarcy Stereo SRE-66003:

Jimmy Cleveland is an excellent trombonist who somehow lacks a very distinctive style of playing, but remains enjoyable anyway.

Arrangements of the seven tunes on this album were by Benny Golson, who also plays in the group, and by Gigi Gryce. Other fine sidemen heard at Hank Jones on piano, Art Farmer on trumpet, and the drums of Osie Johnson.

Let Flowering Plant Drive Winter Gloom From Living Room

Colorful Blooms Will Brighten Your Indoor Decor On Dull Days

There is nothing like a brightly flowered plant to liven up the living room on a dull winter day.

And the choice at this time of the year is exceptional.

Thanks to the growers of potted chrysanthemums, you can buy a plant in perfect flower any day of the year—and winter is no exception. There is a wide range of colors to choose from, so matching your decor is a joy instead of a chore.

THE THRIFTY gardener will use the four or five plants in the pot for his garden after the flowers are spent indoors—but be sure they go in full sun outdoors.

Winter days can be blessed by the bright flowers of cyclamen. They can be obtained in many sizes from your nurseryman or florist, beginning with four-inch pots and ranging up to big plants in six-inch pots.

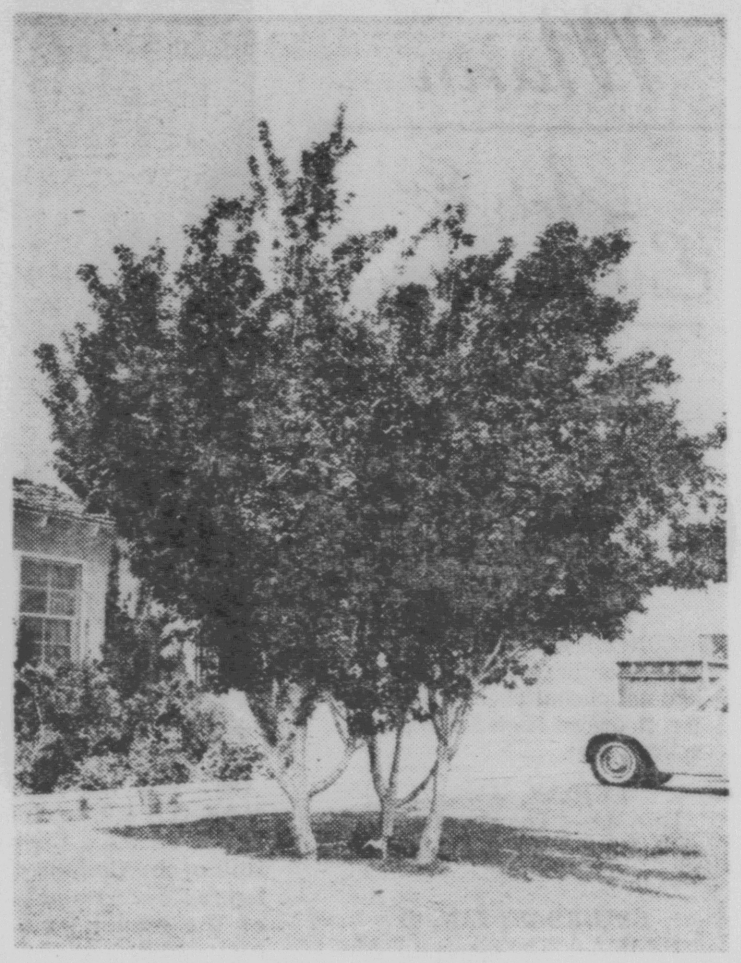
The four or five flowers carried jauntily above the interesting rounded leaves are only a preview of what is to come. Part the leaves and see the little buds rising from the "bulb." They will keep a succession of blooms coming for weeks.

Important thing is to never let your cyclamen get thirsty. Water daily.

LATER, YOU will want to set the plant in the shady part of your garden. Cyclamen drops its leaves and becomes dormant in summer, comes out fresh in fall, blooms again in winter.

The Belgian Indica azaleas like to flower when days are short. Their large, semi-double blooms are massed on flat-topped plants with dark green foliage, in shades of white, pink, pink and white and red.

Plunge the pot in deep water for a few minutes after purchase, then water daily to keep in tip-top condition.



Gardening Page

NOW'S THE time for planting trees. Most of them are available now in the bare-root form, while others are sold in containers. But either way, if planted now, they will have ample time to establish themselves well before they leaf out in the spring. The sooner you get them in the ground, the sooner you can enjoy their beauty and their shade. So don't delay. The one pictured here, the Flowering Plum, is one of many excellent choices. They grow fast, bloom heavily and do not become very large. The purple and red-leafed varieties are grown as much for their burnished foliage as they are for their clouds of pink or white flowers in the spring.

WISTERIA AND CLEMATIS

Two Vines That Beautify The Garden

Two of the most strikingly beautiful vines in California gardens are wisteria and clematis.

Wisteria, with its picturesque, Oriental manner of growth, is a classic garden symbol. It flowers in spring in breathtakingly lovely cascades of bloom and its lacy, ornamental leaves provide coolness as well as shadow pattern in the summer months.

In winter when the leaves are gone, the bare, twisted trunk and stems add character to the landscape.

CHINESE WISTERIA, with its fragrant violet blue or white flower clusters in early spring, is the most familar variety. However, nurserymen suggest that you ask them about the Japanese variety too. Japanese Wisteria has impressively long clusters of flower spikes in pure white, pink or violet purple.

Although wisteria requires nothing special except sun and good drainage to do its beautiful best, it does need a strong support.

To promote blooming at an early age, do most of your pruning by pinching the first year or so. Don't cut back heavily until it has developed a strong blooming habit. If you would like to train your wisteria as a free-standing tree, tie it to a stake and keep side shoots removed as they appear. Head back when dormant.

WISTERIA, BECAUSE of its vigorous growth and strong trunks and stems, should not be used directly on the walls of a house, but trained to climb over an arbor, a fence a porch or pergola.

Clematis, on the other hand, is ideal for enriching architecture. Easily controlled by cutting back when dormant, it is a beautiful choice for outlining roof gables or accenting an entrance.

The deciduous clematis is grown for its magnificent flowers over a long season.

ONE OF THE newest improved varieties is the Anemone clematis called "Tetrarose". This one is a strong grower with large, pink flowers in early summer and handsome, deeply etched dark green foliage. Henryi (white) Ramona (sky blue) and Jackmanii (regal purple) are other excellent varieties to consider.

In planting clematis, try to give it a shady spot for its roots and protect brittle lower stems from breaking with a circle of wire or stakes around the plant.

HERE'S a close-up view of the Apricot Nectar blooms, the floribunda representative among the 1966 All-America Rose Selections. It is causing widespread interest among rosarians, with its firm, fragrant flowers in a gentle apricot hue that measure four and three quarters to five inches across at times. It is a vigorous, profuse bloomer with a clean, healthy foliage.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✓ Violas and pansies can still be set out over a bulb bed. Primula Malacoides, the Fairy Primrose, can go in for an early spring border in shaded beds.

✓ The greens will be greener if you spend a day spreading manure around your shrubbery beds and spring planting areas. The rains will leach the nutrients down into the soil to the root zone where you want them.

✓ Many choice camellias are in bloom now. Browse the nurseries for your favorites. They make nice companions for azaleas in late winter. Set out rhododendrons for a big show later on. Give them all filtered shade and rich, peaty soil.

✓ This is an important time for dormant spraying of fruit trees. Ask you nurseryman what to use and the easiest way to apply it.

Foam Rubber Has Eased Upholstery Jobs In The Home

Reupholstering jobs that no home or apartment dweller would think of tackling some years ago are now possible with a relatively new type of latex foam rubber called pincore foam.

Because of the numerous pencil-thick holes running all the way through it, pincore foam is fully reversible, eliminating much of the gluing that was necessary with the old stock. It comes flat or crowned to make thick, rounded, extra-plump cushions.

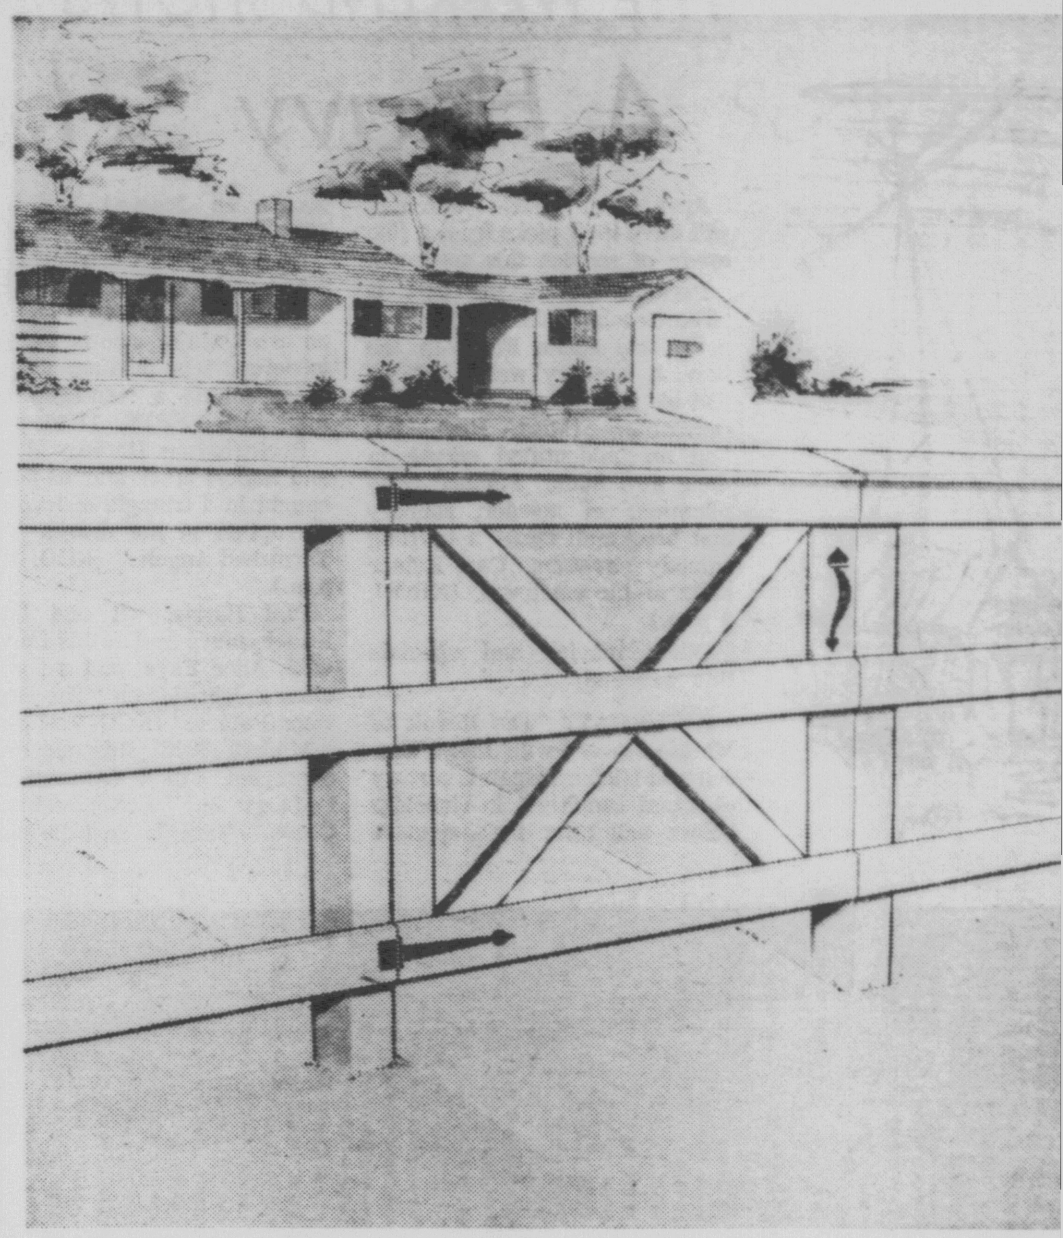
WHILE PINCORE foam is only one of a number of kinds of foam rubber available, the only other type the do-it-yourselfer need concern himself with is the solid sheet or slab without holes or cores.

This latter type is sold in thicknesses from one-fourth inch to two inches and is used primarily where thin padding is required, such as on the arms and backs of straight chairs or as window seat cushions for projects which require thicknesses of less than two inches. But from two inches through six inches the pincore foam is the answer.

ONE OF THE important things to remember in using foam rubber is that it always should be cut about a half inch larger than the size of whatever you are making. This extra margin later will be compressed, serving to keep the fabric covering tightly in place.

To make an accurate cut, use a paper pattern. Lay out a piece of brown wrapping paper on the object and trace the outline. At this point, add the vital half inch on all sides of the pattern, then transfer it to the foam itself with a marking pen or crayon.

The paper pattern is not necessary where the object, such as a kitchen seat, can be removed. In that case, simply trace the outline directly on the foam.



AN ATTRACTIVE rail fence with matching gate will not only beautify your premises, but also give you added privacy in your yard and "protect your prized plants against trespassers tempted to take shortcuts" through your grounds. For the Easi-Bild pattern, send 50 cents to In pendent-Journal, Post Office 215, Br cliff Manor, N.Y., 10510, and ask Rail Fence and Matching Gate Post P tern 941. Step-by-step directions incl ing an explanation on how to locate set the posts are included.

You Can Turn Plain Chest Into Elegant Furniture Piece

You can transform a starkly plain pine chest of drawers into a much more elegant piece of furniture with a handyman's ingenuity and materials costing $5 or less.

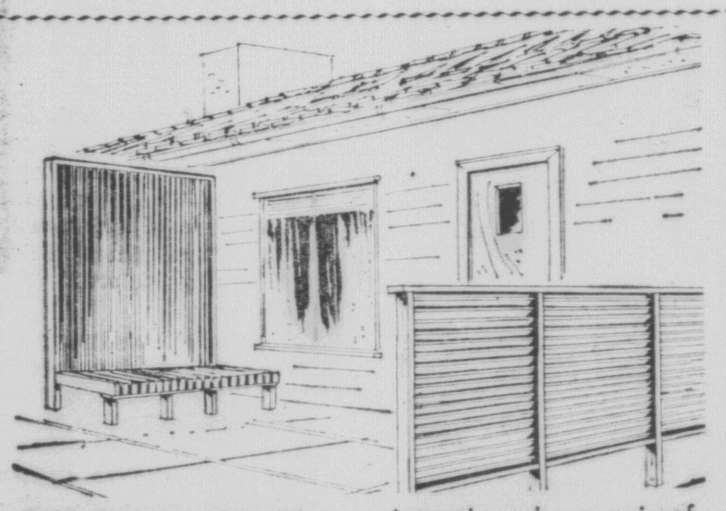
Stock western wood mouldings—the kind carried by most lumberyards—make this an uncomplicated project. The key point is selecting a suitable set of mouldings, but the building supply dealer can help you choose from the 30 or more patterns he keeps on hand.

To apply a traditional styling, for example, fasten the moulding to the front of each drawer in a picture frame pattern. Cap moulding WP-163 is usually a good choice.

Corners should be carefully sawn in a miterbox, and the outside edge of each frame should be about one and a half inches inside the edge of the drawer face all around. White woodworking glue and brads will hold securely.

The base of the chest should be embellished, too, and a combination of base and base shoe moulding will turn this trick nicely. Note that mitering for the base corners must be at a different angle than that for the drawer face frames.

Finishing the surface with stain or paint, and installing the right style of metal drawer pulls completes this do-it-yourself project. The result is a chest closely resembling period pieces costing several times more.



THIS BACK ENTRANCE was dressed up by a pair of Douglas fir garden screens and a bench. One screen is tall, built of one-by-fours set edge out between top and bottom stringers. The other is low and long, designed with horizontal louvers. Both protect the back door from weather exposure while converting entrance to a pleasant outdoor sitting room.

Bonanza For The Home Owne

It is doubtful whether even the manuafacturers of resilient floor tiles realized the full potential of their product some years ago.

When this type of floor covering was introduced, it seemed likely that its use would be confined to special rooms in the house, such as the kitchen and recreation area.

TODAY, THANKS to a wide variety of tile ingredients and adhesives, resilient floor tiles are being used everywhere in the house, above and below grade, and even in such formal locations as living rooms.

In addition to the many brilliant colors and designs on individual tiles, there are numerous decorative patterns that can be worked out by placement of the tiles according to a previously prepared layout. Some of these patterns lean towards the sophisticated side for luxury homes; some accentuate gaiety for brightening up playrooms; and some are in the form of games that can be played by children and adults alike.

The growing popularity of floor tiles over the years can be attributed as much to the ease of application as to any other cause.

HOME OWNERS who wouldn't think of wrestling with large rolls of flooring found themselves taking a chance with tiles because they were so much easier to handle. And with good reason.

If certain fundamentals are observed, a good job can be done by anyone—even a person completely lacking in do-it-yourself abilities.

It is wise to buy the adhesive for installations from the same dealer from whom you purchase the tiles. He then can give you the proper type of cement for the tiles you have selected.

THIS IS important, since the kind which works well with asphalt and vinyl asbestos, for example, is not suitable for such tiles as rubber, solid vi and linoleum.

It is always smart, too the dealer whether the being installed on conc grade or concrete belo as some projects special adhesives to suit conditions.

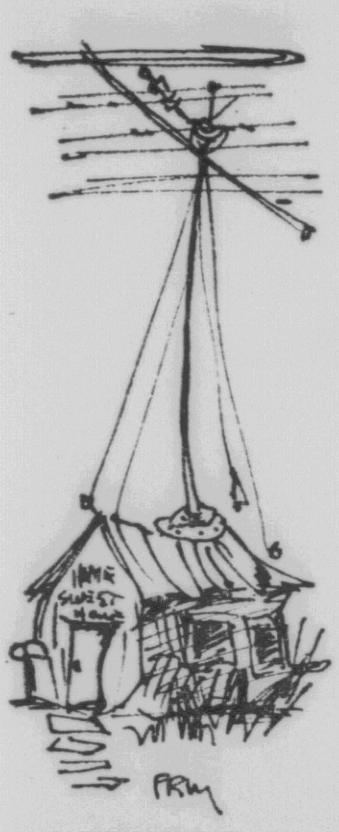
THE WEEKEND SHOWS



A Heavy Schedule Of Movies

Arm chair movie watchers will have their picks from a fine array of movies this weekend.

Perhaps one of the best is "The Gazebo" with Debbie Reynolds and Glenn Ford. In the film, a mystery writer (Ford) and his wife, a musical comedy performer (Miss Reynolds), find an unidentified corpse in their new home. Further complications of murder, robbery and blackmail ensue a baffling comedy situation. Carl Reiner adds to the confusion. (KRON, 9 p.m.)

Other movies and specials this weekend:

SATURDAY: "The Revolt of Mamie Stover" with Jayne Russell and Richard Egan is a story of social conditions in Honolulu before and after the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. (KRON, 11:15 p.m.)

Kirk Douglas, Christine Kaufmann and Frank Dutton star in "Town Wiithout Pity," story of an army major who is assigned to defend four soldiers accused of assaulting a teen-aged German girl. (KPIX, 11:20 p.m.)

Rock Hudson, Dorothy Malone and Robert Stack star as people caught in a triangle of love and corruption in the drama "The Tarnished Angels." (KGO, 11:15 p.m.)

Phil Harris, wit and bandleader, plays host to his famous wife, Alice Faye, and a host of other celebrities on "The Hollywood Palace." (KGO, 9:30 p.m.)

Mikhail Tahl, Russian chess champion, will demonstrate his talent on "Koltanowski on Chess." Tahl is such a rapid player that he once forced his opponent to complete 15 moves in one minute. (KQED, 6:30 p.m.)

The 14-year-old favorite, "The Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet," will be switching days, and wlil now be seen on Saturday nights. (KGO, 7:30 p.m.)

"Vietnam: The Questions America Is Asking," a discussion by ABC news correspondents of the United States' involvement in the war there and efforts to bring about peace, will be presented by "ABC Scope." (KGO, 7 p.m.)

For sports fans, Cal is taking on University of Southern California in college basketball. (KTVU, 8 p.m.)

Jeanne Dixon, the much publicized seer, subject of Ruth Montgomery's book "A Gift of Prophecy," will be interviewed on "Book Beat." (KQED, 7:30 p.m.)

Jean Ritchie, known in the trade as an "authentic" folk singer, will be heard on "Performance." She specializes in Cumberland Mountain folk songs, and accompanies herself on the dulcimer and guitar. (KQED, 10 p.m.)

SUNDAY: Duke Ellington and his orchestra will present a concert of religious music as a one-hour special entitled "In the Beginning, God . . ." The concert was staged the day after Christmas, with religious leaders of many denominations in attendance. (KPIX, 8 a.m.)

Donald O'Connor will be host to Anthony Newley, Janet Blair, Nancy Dussault, the Nicholas Brothers and Shani Wallis in a program devoted to the song-and-dance man of show business fame on the "Bell Telephone Hour." (KRON, 6:30 p.m.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey will be the guest on "Face the Nation." (KPIX, 9:30 a.m.)

For the sports enthusiasts, the Philadelphia 76ers will meet the world champion Boston Celtics in a National Basketball Assn. game. (KGO, 11 a.m.)

The best of the East meet the best of the West in the 16th annual National Football League Pro Bowl game, to be played at the Los Angeles Colliseum. (KPIX, 1 p.m.)

"CBS Sports Spectacular" returns for its seventh season, featuring the world-famed Harlem Globetrotters in a display of their unique basketball skills and court antics as they meet the Washington Generals. (KPIX, 4 p.m.)

A tough killer plots escape from Dannemora Prison in upstate New York after his wife tells him she's leaving him on "Convicts 4," a movie with Rod Steiger, Sammy Davis Jr., Ray Walston, Broderick Crawford and Vincent Price heading up the all-star cast. (KTVU, 7 p.m.)

Kenneth More and Dana Wynter star in the movie version of C. S. Forester's human dramatic true adventure, "Sink the Bismarck!" (KGO, 9 p.m.)

The first in a new series on drama from Greek tragedy to the contemporary theatre of the absurd will be presented on "The Play's the Thing." (KPIX, 7 a.m.)

A report on the activities of the U.S. Military Assistance Advisory Group in training the soldiers of the government of the Republic of China will be given on "Assignment Taiwan" on "The Big Picture." (KPIX, 10:30 a.m.)

Presidential assistant McGeorge Bundy discusses Viet Nam peace prospects on "Issues and Answers." (KGO, 1:30 p.m.)

The University of California symposium on overpopulation will be covered with sessions starting at 9 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. on KQED.

Moliere's "Scapin," a 17th century farce about a charming rascal, is offered as a drama special. (KQED, 9 p.m.)

MARY MARTIN will fly again as the star of "Peter Pan" when the two-hour television version of Sir James M. Barrie's immortal story of the boy who refused to grow up is repeated on KRON Friday at 7:30 p.m. The musical show with Cyril Ritchard as co-star is a TV classic.

Premier Says Only Saigon Qualified To Decide Destiny

DRESSED FOR THE OCCASION

When Michael Slattery dropped by today to pick up fellow College of Marin student Devon Renick for a Saturday spin, he was dressed the way most people have been around Marin recently. She, however, took a happy look at the long-absent sunshine and made the most of it. The sun burned off early morning fog to provide clear skies. The Weather Bureau said it will be fair and warmer tomorrow. Slattery and Miss Renick both live in San Rafael. (Independent-Journal photo by Jim Kean)

U. S. Envoys Seek To Assure Calm

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk and roving Ambassador W. Averell Harriman conferred today with South Viet Nam's top leaders, then met again tonight with Premier Nguyen Cao Ky at dinner.

Diplomatic informants said Rusk and Harriman sought to assure Ky that U.S. peace efforts in Viet Nam would not jeopardise military government.

The conferences came off against a background of rumors in Saigon of a possible power play by some Vietnamese generals who are reported to fear a sellout by Ky to the Viet Cong.

The rumors got a momentary boost tonight with a report that South Vietnamese troops had rolled through a police checkpoint south of the capital and refused to stop.

But later an authoritative South Vietnamese informant said troops of South Viet Nam's 4th marine battalion entered the city only to "increase security." He did not explain why there was a need to bolster the guard in the city.

Earlier in the day, Ky closed the second Armed Forces' Day congress with a speech declaring that whatever peace moves are generated, "no other nation is qualified and able to decide our destiny, independently of our own will."

AIDE LEAVES

When Ky's speech ended, Lt. Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu, South Viet Nam's chief of state, left abruptly in the middle of the applause and those who saw him said he appeared agitated. Efforts to reach Thieu for comment were unsuccessful.

Rusk and Harriman met briefly with Thieu before they saw Ky this afternoon.

"We had very interesting talks," Rusk said, but he declined to say what subjects were discussed. Diplomatic informants said, however, Rusk's mission was to assure Ky that President Johnson's diplomatic effort to end the war would not pull the rug from under Ky's regime.

Rusk also met with U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and other American officials.

AT DINNER

Then Rusk, Harriman and Lodge were Ky's guests at a dinner at the premier's residence. Ky later went to Lodge's residence where Rusk and Harriman are staying, presumably to continue their talks.

At the military congress, Ky hailed peace efforts and had a special word of praise for Pope Paul VI. But he warned against any deals being made without the approval of his government.

"We have accepted and are grateful for the moral and material, military and economic assistance from the friendly countries," he said. "But never can we tolerate any interference harmful to our nation's sovereignty or any decision at variance with our people's aspirations."

Declaring "we are determined not to be Communist," Ky said his war cabinet has

Brezhnev Says Peace Attempt Is 'Maneuver'

MOSCOW (UPI) — Communist party leader Leonid Brezhnev today denounced President Johnson's peace offensive as a "maneuver" to cover up widening of "aggression" against Viet Nam.

The Kremlin leader declared in a speech in Ulan Bator, capital of Outer Mongolia, that "if the American leaders actually want an end to the war in Viet Nam then who prevents them from recognizing the justness of the Vietnamese peoples' demands and thus opening the road to peace?"

FRIENDSHIP TREATY

The official news agency Tass made public the contents of a speech Brezhnev delivered in the Mongolian capital to mark the signing of a new friendship treaty, putting that nation more solidly in the Soviet camp.

Brezhnev, according to Tass, declared that "the American imperialists, being aware of the hopelessness of their venture, are trying to maneuver. While extending their aggression, they profess at the same time a desire for peace talks."

FIRST REACTION

Brezhnev's denunciation represented the first top level and authoritative public Kremlin reaction to the Johnson peace offensive.

The speech came as Premier Alexei Kosygin returned to Moscow from New Delhi where he met with Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

STATE COMMISSION

Redwoods Plan 'Not Qualified'

SANTA BARBARA (UPI) — An assemblyman yesterday urged the California Parks Commission to seek legislative approval of a one cent per gallon special gasoline tax to finance parks and recreation projects.

Winfield Shoemaker, assemblyman from Lompoc, said the levy would be imposed only during summer months and would raise an estimated $10 million per year. It would be necessary to enact a constitutional amendment to allow imposition of the tax.

The commission, meeting here, did not act on Shoemaker's proposal, but did recommend the Legislature allow $2 million for acquisition of a six block San Diego area to be developed as an historical unit that is part of the State Parks System.

Also, the commission approved the recommendations of its redwood committee which took exception to some aspects involved in creating a national redwood park.

Among other things, the commission agreed with its committee that the state must be compensated for any state park that might have to be sequestered.

The commission also suggested the federal government consider leasing rather than outright purchase of cutover redwood land that might be required for campground purposes.

It was also proposed the Prairie Creek Redwood State Park not be a part of any national park, unless the national program materially expanded the present area held by the state.

Pointedly, the commission saw no advantage to changing the name from a state to national park for no other reason than the name change.

It urged the government give full consideration to the local economic impact of any national park plans, and said it did not regard the Kings Range between Humboldt Redwood Park and the ocean qualified as a national redwood park.

Illegal Entry Held Possible In Meters Case

San Rafael parking meter collector Charles R. Herren's home may have been entered illegally when district attorney's investigators found bags of coins they say were stolen from parking meters, defense attorney William B. Wolfson charged yesterday.

The claim was made during a preliminary hearing on the embezzlement charge against Herren, 61, of 3 Bayview Street, San Rafael, and 18-year employee of the city.

When the hearing wound up late yesterday, Judge Peter Allen Smith of Marin Municipal Court delayed a decision on binding Herren over to superior court for trial until he ruled on Wolfson's claim. The ruling was set for Wednesday.

City Mgr. Dan E. Andersen of San Rafael testified earlier in the day Herren admitted to him he had been looting "between $6 and $7 a day" from collections.

He said the collector at first denied any theft, but soon after confessed, "I've got some of it." Herren, he said, then produced several bags full of coins, along with other money in cigar boxes.

Andersen said the admission came while he, Police Chief Charles J. Chiesa and Don Midyett, investigator for the district attorney's office, confronted Herren at his home Dec. 2.

MOSCOW (UPI) — The temperature fell to 22 degrees below zero here today in the coldest weather so far this winter.

Negroes Start Drive For California Office

BAKERSFIELD (AP) — A Negro action group began enlisting California's restless minorities today in a campaign to put a Negro on the ballot and elect him to statewide office for the first time.

Unhappy because Democrats have turned aside their pleas in the past, delegates to the Negro Political Action Assn. of California convention prepared to endorse a Negro tomorrow for the Democratic nomination for Secretary of State.

William J. Williams, field secretary for Rep. Augustus Hawkins, D-Calif., said the association has been accused of "segregation in reverse."

"Why are we working segregation in reverse?" he asked. "We're working it because that's the only way we'll get something done.

"Every time we've come up with a candidate there is a reaction — that there might be white backlash. There'll always be white backlash."

Delegates recalled Negro Edward Brooke's election as attorney general of Massachusetts. They predicted that an additional 100,000 minority group members will register to vote for the November general election if the Democrats nominate a Negro in the June primary.

Secretary of State Frank M. Jordan has said he will seek re-election as the Republican candidate.

Williams said there are about 600,000 Negroes registered to vote in California and 550,000 of them are Democrats.

To these, leaders of the organization hope to add Californians of Mexican descent.

The campaign comes just half a year after Negroes rioted in Los Angeles — an outburst their leaders say was triggered, in part, by prejudice and lack of economic opportunity.

And it is less than two years after the voters approved a constitutional amendment that nullified a state anti-discrimination housing law.

Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown evpected to run again, declared his neutrality yesterday. He said: "I am not supporting any candidate for the office of Secretary of State."

In a telegram to the 1,000 delegates attending the convention, Brown said, "the attempt of NPAAC and its supporting groups to develop a consensus

Hoover Says He's Target Of Russian Smear Campaign

WASHINGTON (UPI) — FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover says he is the target of a Russian smear campaign which attempts to link him with former White House aide Walter Jenkins.

Hoover told Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, in a letter that an element of the Soviet KGB secret police was conducting the campaign.

Hickenlooper yesterday said he had received a copy of a letter over a forged Hoover signature which was purported to be a personal note from Hoover to Jenkins.

Jenkins resigned as President Johnson's top personal aide in 1964 after it was revealed he had been arrested twice on morals charges.

Hickenlooper sent the letter to Hoover, who wrote back that it was not the first encounter with such a letter. Hickenlooper said he had no intention of relating the letter's contents.

The Senator said, "It was an obvious forgery done by a rather crude person."

"They (the letters) are part of a concerted Communist smear cumpaign which was launched a year ago," Hoover told Hickenlooper.

Nine Injured In Flash Fire

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Nine men were injured, one critically, when a flash fire touched off an explosion yesterday that ripped through a section of the Western Piping and Engineering Co.

No one was working in the the section of the block-square plant where the fire started, officials said. The flames caused a lacquer barrel to explode, knocking a huge hole in the corrugated siding of the building and injuring nearby workers.

In critical condition with severe burns over 50 per cent of his face and body was Ralph Arias, 24, San Francisco.

Russ Rocket Designer Dies

MOSCOW (UPI) — Sergei Korolev, the space scientist who designed Russia's moon rockets and space ships, died Friday at the age of 59, the official press agency Tass reported today.

Tass said Korolev died of a heart attack following an operation for the removal of a malignant tumor.

He will be given a hero's funeral Tuesday and be buried in the Kremlin Wall.

Leaflet Distributors Caught In Radar Net

OAKLAND (AP) — Police using two radar stations and an air patrol arrested four men they said dropped anti-Viet Nam war leaflets last night from a small airplane.

Leaflets were dropped on Oakland, the Oakland Army Base, San Francisco and Moffett Navy Air Base, said Sgt. Carl Dahl of the Oakland police intelligence section.

Unsigned, the leaflets were similar to those dropped Jan. 9 on Oakland and Jan. 1 on Disneyland in Southern California. They showed a photograph of charred bodies and a message protesting the war and describing the picture as that of a woman and child killed by American napalm bombs.

Sgt. Dahl said the four men, arrested at San Carlos Airport on the other side of San Francisco Bay, were being held for investigation of a conspiracy charge. He did not specify the nature of the conspiracy but said he would consult today with the Alameda County district attorney and Federal Aviation Agency.

Sgt. Dahl said witnesses on the ground saw the plane flying at 1,500 feet without lights. He said he also would consult on littering charges.

Radio stations that tracked the plane to San Carlos Airport were at Oakland Airport and Moffett Field. Sgt. Dahl said the Alameda County Air Patrol also had a plane aloft but that the plane did not follow the quartet.

Oakland police assumed jurisdiction because the leaflets fell there, Sgt. Dahl added. He did not mention police action by any other city. Leaflets were reported found on Market Street and in the North Beach area of San Francisco.

None of the four areasted by San Carlos police for Dahl had any connection with other groups that had protested U.S. participation in the Viet Nam conflict, the sergeant said.

The plane used by the four was a four-passenger, red and silver Cessna 180.

Those arrested were Anthony E. Broskley, 28, Palo Alto, an unemployed heavy equipment operator; Raymond P. Tiernan, 23, also Palo Alto, a graduate student at Stanford University; Glen D. Fowler, 21, of San Jose, a San Jose State College student, and James Henry Petrie, 56, of Campbell, the pilot. Petrie said he was a student but did not say where.

Sgt. Dahl said his department had a tip the plane would fly last night and he noted that such a prediction was made in a San Francisco newspaper column.

The radar stations were ready to track the plane, he said, and gave time for the San Carlos police to be on hand to make the arrests.

Life-Saving Medal Given In Rescues

Robert F. Lange of 55 Woodland Drive, Fairfax, was awarded a silver life-saving medal by the Coast Guard yesterday for helping to save the lives of two Air Forces officers stranded on Bodega Rock in Sonoma County March 25.

Lange and two guardsmen swam 30 yards through heavy surf to help the two men whose 18-foot outboard motorboat capsized. The ceremonies were in Alameda.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Church Lashed

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Communist Poland has again lashed out against Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski and other Roman Catholic officials for disagreeing with government policy. "Let the church conduct its activities which belong to it," Communist party Chief Wladyslaw Gomulka said last night, "but we demand that it maintain a loyal policy toward the state if it wants to deal in politics."

Harney Estate

Victims Sought

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — Disaster workers waded through mud and the debris of wrecked homes today in a search for additional victims of week-long rains and landslides. The latest figures available to officials put the number of known dead in Rio and adjacent cities at 347. Another 1,814 persons were hospitalized with injuries.

Nigeria Government Overthrown

LONDON (AP)—An army coup has overthrown Nigeria's federal government, according to unconfirmed reports reaching London today.

Balewa

Prime Minister Sir Abubakar Tafewa Balewa, who presided only a week ago over a British Commonwealth meeting at Lagos discussing rebellious Rhodesia, was reported under house arrest.

There were other reports that similar coups have been carried out in Nigeria's northern and western regions, which have semi-autonomous governments.

Communications from Britain to Lagos were cut off early this morning and there was no immediate confirmation of these reports.

Mental Patient Fires Shot

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A fugitive from a New York mental hospital who fired a rifle into the air near the White House to attract the President today underwent psychiatric testing at St. Elizabeth's hospital.

Torres

Instead of attracting the President, Raul Rodriguez Torres, 35, attracted police yesterday. They said he wanted to turn the President's attention to his unsuccessful efforts to qualify for welfare assistance.

Torres was reported as an escapee from the Harlem Valley State Mental hospital at Wingdale, N.Y. last August. A spokesman for the New York State Mental Hygiene Department said he thought Torres was out of the country.

Torres, who listed Yonkers, N.Y. as his home, fired the shot into the air about a half block from the White House.

Moments after the shot was fired, Torres, his wife, Carmen, and an 8-year-old daughter were found near a bank on Pennsylvania Ave.

Six Survive

ATHENS (UPI) — A U.S. Air Force C-47 believed lost in the blizzard-swept Greek mountains on Thursday made a crash-landing on a snow-covered slope killing six of the 10 aboard, a U.S. Embassy spokesman here announced today.

Nimitz Better

OAKLAND (UPI)—Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz' condition is "stabilized and continuing to improve slowly," according to the latest medical report from the Oak Knoll Naval Hospital.

Novelist Sick

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Kathleen Norris, who has written nearly 80 novels, is very ill with a circulatory ailment, her son said last night. She is 85. The son, Dr. Frank Norris, said his mother was in a semi-coma at his home and that "we are quite apprehensive."

Hemingway Suit

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mrs. Ernest Hemingway asked for an injunction in state Supreme Court yesterday against Random House, Inc., to prevent publication of a biography of her late husband.

RUSS BOOTY FROM RIVER

51 Die, 10 Survive In Colombia Crash

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — A Colombian airliner with 61 persons on board plunged into shark-infested waters off the coast last night. Officials reported 51 persons were killed and 10 survived.

The four - engine, propeller-driven DC-4, broke in two and its rear section sank in heavy seas. The plane crashed about five minutes after taking off from the Caribbean port of Cartagena for a 20-minute flight to Barranquilla.

Frogmen from the Cartagena naval base vainly tried to rescue an estimated 40 passengers trapped in the rear section of the plane.

About 50 Colombian navy boats, 20 fishing vessels and a U.S. amphibious plane joined the search but rescue efforts were suspended early today due to the rough seas and the danger from sharks.

The Avianca airliner carried a crew of five. Most of the passengers were Colombian, authorities said.

Three-fifths of Peru is covered by little-explored jungle.

Floggings Alleged At Klan Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — House investigators have reported links between the Ku Klux Klan, the murders of two Mississippi Negroes and even savage night beatings of fellow Klansmen.

Centering on the Natchez, Miss., area, investigators of the House Committee on Un-American Activities said yesterday a number of Natchez policemen were Klansmen and the two sons of Mayor Nosser were identified as Klansmen by an admitted member.

The same man, James K. Greer, was quoted in reports of the Mississippi Highway Patrol and the FBI as saying a Klansman got drunk one night and shot up the Klan headquarters in Natchez at 3 a.m. Greer refused to answer any committee questions about his statement to the authorities.

The story of the murders and floggings was told by chief investigator Donald T. Appell, relying on the highway patrol and FBI reports.

Here is Appell's description of the body of Earl Hodges, who he said was a Klansman who fell out with Exalted Cyclops Clyde Seale of Meadville, Miss.:

"He had walked to a well, apparently to wash off the blood. His body was covered with elts from the bottom of his feet to the top of his head. There was a hole in the top of his head. His face was split from his nose to the corner of his eye and the split was so deep you could see the roof of his mouth."

Yet, Appell said, a medical examination showed Hodges died of a heart attack as he stood at the well.

Appell asked Clyde Seale, 64, a farmer with a ninth grade country school education, if he had helped beat Hodges. Seale refused to answer, invoking the Fifth and other constitutional Amendments.

Sarnoff Honored

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Concert Artists Guild announced last night it has selected Brig. Gen. David Sarnoff (Ret.), chairman of the board of the Radio Corporation of America, to receive its 1966 award for helping to establish the musical heritage of the nation.

Saga Of Figures In Kidnap Plot

BEVERLY HILLS (AP) — William C. Bailey was in trouble with police as a juvenile, served prison terms as a young man and then appeared to be well on the road to becoming a responsible citizen.

George H. Scalla was a model pupil in high school, played football, earned good grades and aspired to a military career. Then four years ago he was arrested for drunkenness, later for burglary.

Just when the paths of Bailey, 45, and Scalla, 28, first crossed is uncertain. They died together, shot to death by police as they entered industrialist Leonard K. Firestone's home Thursday night in a kidnap plot.

"It's unbelievable," said Bailey's pretty dark-haired widow, Angela. "It just isn't possible that he could have done such a foolish thing."

Mrs. Bailey, 34, a mother of four, described her husband as a man of "many moods, impulsive and with a very violent nature".

Officials said Bailey apparently never finished high school but had an IQ that marked him as a genius. He got into trouble for auto theft in Austin, Tex., as a youngster, was sentenced to three years in prison in Lubbock Tex., on a similar charge a year later.

Then in 1950, he came to Los Angeles, registered as an ex-felon and appeared to begin a different life. He met and married Angela Plesuk of Detroit, Mich., and went to work for a construction company, rising from laborer to estimator. He stayed with the firm until 1961, then reportedly concentrated on a string of business interests. His career flourished.

It was Scalla, police said, who masterminded the plot to abduct Firestone — and then informed police of it.

Scalla, after leaving high school, tried to join the Air Force, but was turned down because of a knee injured playing football. He was also rejected by the Army, and rejected again when he tried to become a peace officer.

"This constant rejection," Scalla's father, George, told a probation officer, "seemed to have affected his attitude, and perhaps led to the opposite extreme of antisocial behavior."

His mother said, that her son had changed noticeably after a traffic accident in which one of his friends was killed.

"He was dropped by former friends and his girl friend married another boy," Mrs. Scalla said.

Officers said he may have been involved in more than 100 burglaries.

Although Scalla was vowing to go straight and was cooperating with police on the kidnap attempt, officers said, he had made the vow before.

This defendant did have a great potential," a deputy probation officer reported. "But he is headstrong and he does not profit from counseling.

"The extent of his activities is such that he does appear to pose a serious threat to society and to the community," the officer said.

Two Students Hurt

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (AP) —Two persons were killed and about a dozen hurt in clashes yesterday between students and police in the West Pakistan capital of Lahore, a government statement said. The students were protesting the signing of the Tashkent Declaration between India and Pakistan.

The first layman wine grower of record in California was Gov. Pedro Fages, who planted a vineyard with his orchards in 1783, in Monterey, Alta California.

Cold Wave Bears Down On Plains

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

A storm slammed out of the gulf into northwest Florida today as a Canadian cold wave bore down on Great Plains.

Rain with temperatures in the 30s and 40s spread from Louisiana into the Carolinas and freezing rain and sleet were forecast for eastern North Carolina. Heavy snow warnings were issued for the mountains of western North Carolina and eastern Tennessee.

Thunderstorms broke out in milder air along the Gulf Coast through southeast Alabama and the Florida Panhandle and an inch and a third of rain drenched Dothan, Ala., in six hours.

Rough weather developed in portions of northern Florida, southern Georgia and extreme southeast Alabama.

As a new wave of Arctic cold surged toward the Great Plains, cold wave warnings continued for portions of the western Dakotas and central Nebraska. Temperatures were expected to reach 20 below zero in northern border areas by Sunday morning.

Cold weather also prevailed in northern New England and light snow fell in the area.

Patrick Sets Valley Drive

William Penn Patrick of Tiburon, who seeks the GOP gubernatorial nomination, planned to carry his campaign into San Joaquin Valley today.

In a speech prepared for delivery tonight at the San Joaquin Valley Yacht Club near Antioch, Patrick criticized Governor Edmund G. Brown for "indecision" and exhibiting "political expediency."

"Brown, in attempting to be politically expedient, was indecisive in what to do concerning the braceros," Patrick charged.

"It seems that he tested the political waters and came out in favor of eliminating the program. . .

"If I ran my business the way Pat Brown runs our state government, I would have gone under long ago."

Patrick, 35, heads a cosmetics manufacturing firm, Holiday Magic Inc., with headquarters in San Rafael.

candidate to compete in the primary indicates a healthy appreciation of the importance of political action which no one should discourage."

Convention leaders said Brown's telegram disproved reports that the governor was backing Real Estate Commissioner Milton Gordon of Los Angeles who is white. Democrat Gordon has already announced his candidacy.

NCAAP leaders generally expressed pleasure with Brown's telegram, although Williams said "we'd like more positive support."

Guilty Plea In Attack Case

Guy H. Cooper, 43, pleaded guilty in Marin Municipal Court yesterday to assault with intent to rape a 19-year-old San Francisco girl last Saturday.

The change of plea came at time scheduled for a preliminary hearing on the complaint. An information on the charge will be filed in Marin Superior Court at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday, according to Jerry Herman, deputy district attorney.

Cooper assaulted the girl at his apartment, 206 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, San Anselmo, after holding her at knifepoint and forcing her to disrobe, San Anselmo police said.

attained some political stability and as this grows, the machinery will be created for democracy, which he said is the only force that can destroy communism.

He promised that "real democratic elections" will be held in 1967.

"The armed forces have assumed power, not with the intention of clinging to it, but to create the necessary conditions for setting up a genuine democracy," he said.

Ky said his government planned to create a "democracy building council" after the lunar New Year which will hold seminars throughout the country on a proposed new constitution. Points raised in the seminars will be incorporated into the document and it will be put to a referendum next October, he said.

Past constitutions have died with a whimper because they came from the top down, he said.

"This government has made up its mind to proceed with democratization slowly but determinedly by training people for their responsibilities," the premier added.

He also promised that new civilian cadres will bolster towns and villages as they are cleared of the Viet Cong. It is in these rural areas, he said, that victory will be achieved.

He said thanks to friendly nations—such as the United States—South Viet Nam can survive its economic upheavals and has sufficient gold reserves for reconstruction, if and when peace is restored.

Lodge sat in a seat of honor during the colorful ceremonies.

The Defense Ministry today confirmed that it would honor a 78-hour truce during the lunar New Year—from noon Jan. 20 to 6 p.m. Jan. 23.

Air America, the private air line under contract to the U.S. government, announced today the identities of the pilot and copilot who were shot to death in the plane's cabin yesterday after the plane crash-landed when it was hit by Viet Cong fire.

They were identified as pilot as W. R. Pruner of Oklahoma City and copilot Chang Yong-ho, a Vietnamese. The fate of a third crewman, Nguyen Ban Thai, also a Vietnamese, was not known.

In the field, U.S. and Australian troops closed out two major operations against the Viet Cong today.

An American-Australian operation on the western edge of the Iron Triangle, 25 miles northwest of Saigon, recorded an official bag of 151 Viet Cong killed and 91 captured in the two-week search and destroy mission.

American casualties were listed as light in relation to the size of the 8,000-man force.

The Australians lost eight dead and 29 wounded, mostly in fierce combat in the sector containing a vast maze of tunnels and caves. The Australians captured an arsenal of 20,000 rounds of ammunition, 50 weapons, 200 hand grenades and tons of miscellaneous clothing, medical supplies and food.

The 1st Brigade of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division terminated Operation Quick Kick after four days around Phuoc Vinh, 35 miles northeast of Saigon. The insurgents kept a healthy distance from the Big Red One but this cost them dearly in supplies.

The U.S. troops scooped up more than 1,000 tons of rice, destroyed half of it and are evacuating the remainder.

U.S. Marines on Operation Mallard, which is drawing to a pause after a week of steady plugging 16 miles southwest of Da Nang, started reaping a similar harvest. A helicopter fleet evacuated more than 30 tons of rice and other supplies. The Leathernecks said Vietnamese farmers helped them in pinpointing Viet Cong storage areas and also led them to a huge rice milling machine firmly set in concrete.

Stereo Tape Taken From Automobile

The left wing vent window had been smashed by the thief, officers reported.

Banker Silverthorne May Take The Stand

The government's case against Don C. Silverthorne, president of the defunct San Francisco National Bank, was concluded yesterday and the 61-year-old banker may take the stand next week to answer the charges of fraud leveled against him and broker William Bennett.

A bank examiner, the final prosecution witness in the Federal trial, said Bennett got more than $600,000 for arranging loans from the bank.

The government contended yesterday that about $400,000 of that was returned to the bank but that much of the money went into Silverthorne's personal account.

While on the stand, Alan R. Miller, bank examiner for the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, pieced together scores of documents covering 13 loan transactions.

Some indication of the line Bennett's defense will take was given when Miller was cross-examined by Bennett's attorney, James Martin MacInnis.

"Do you conclude Bennett was in the business of guaranteeing loans for profit?" asked MacInnis. "Yes," replied Miller.

"And you're not against the profit system?" said the attorney. "Not in our country," said Miller.

Before the trial, Silverthorne contended fees for loans were not illegal. Both he and Bennett have denied any wrongdoing.

The trial will resume Monday in San Francisco with various defense motions and arguments in the absence of the jury.

Judge Charles L. Powell excused the jury until Tuesday at 9:30 a.m.

Student Club For Synanon

A club designed to create and aid interaction between College of Marin students and Synanon and promote understanding of the Synanon organization in the community has been officially recognized on the Kentfield campus.

Called Action, the club was approved this week by the student interclub council and executive council. Its officers are sophomore Brian Lawrence, president; freshman Luisa Sofaer, vice president and Christine Lytle, interclub council representative.

Lawrence said the idea for the club grew out of an appearance by Synanon representatives on the campus last month. Club adviser is Paul Miller, a journalism instructor.

Lawrence said club members will visit Synanon houses around the bay area and talk with organization representatives, gaining an understanding of the purpose of the houses for rehabilitating drug addicts.

Chief activity of the club, Lawrence said, will be participation in Synanon's "square games," which he described as "a sort of a verbal street fight."

They involve discussion of the activities and character of different persons in the group.

Similar games will be organized by Synanon representatives from Marshall, for club members on the Kentfield campus, Lawrence said.

Cycle Accident Knocks Out Driver

Marvin Allan Giambastiani, 19, of Point Reyes Station, was knocked unconsious about 11:45 p.m. yesterday when the motorcycle he was riding hit a chain at the edge of the parking area of a service station at Fourth Street and Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael.

The youth was treated at San Rafael General Hospital. Police said he had borrowed the cycle from its owner, Gladys I. Potter, of 43 Marquard Street, San Rafael.

Military Information Week Is Scheduled

The week of Jan. 31 will be "military information week" at Terra Linda High School. Students will be able to interview representatives of the armed services during lunch recesses.

The schedule is: Navy on Monday, Coast Guard on Tuesday, Marines on Wednesday, Air Force on Thursday and Army on Friday.

Escaped Felon Still At Large

William J. Dellinger, 36-year-old San Quentin escapee, was still at large today and prison officials were assuming the convicted killer was clear of the area, reported Associate Warden Raymond L. Wham.

He said the authorities had checked out a number of rumors which had proved false, among them reports Dellinger had been seen in the Sn Anselmo area.

Dellinger, convicted for the 1958 slaying of his stepfather, got away in the fog early yesterday by climbing the 20-foot-high north wall with a ladder.

In his position of trust as factory night watchman, he had access to the ladder although it was under lock and key. He was serving a life sentence.

Brothers Hurt As Car Hits Rail

Two San Rafael brothers were injured last night when the car in which they were riding smashed into the center guard rail of Highway 101 north of the San Quentin Wye.

Louis a Langlamet Jr., 18, and his passenger, Joseph B. Langlamet, 16, both of 17 Latham Street, San Rafael, were going north on the highway at 10 p.m. when their car began to lurch violently from side to side and hit the rail, Louis Langlamet told the California Highway Patrol.

The patrol said the car's brakes may have failed.

The brothers were taken to San Rafael General Hospital where Louis was treated for a cut right knee. Joseph suffered a broken right arm and was scheduled to undergo surgery for it at the hospital today.

Dentist Hears Films Charge

Dr. Charles Frederick Tobin, 41, Fairfax dentist, was arraigned in Marin Municipal Court yesterday on a charge of distributing of lewd movies.

Judge Leonard A. Thomas continued plea entry until 1:30 p.m. Jan. 25. Tobin, represented by Jack Miller, San Francisco attorney, did not appear. He is free on $1,100 bail.

The dentist of 101 San Gabriel Drive, is accused of trying to sell a 22-year-old Corte Madera divorcee a can of film for $32. A second misdemeanor charge, dispensing dangerous drugs without proper labeling, also was filed against him after he allegedly gave her 38 pep pills and barbituate pills.

Curriculum Reports

Sausalito School District trustees will hear a series of curriculum reports, including one on the physical education testing program, at a meeting at 8 p.m. today in the district office. A film on activities of Richardson Bay School will be shown and a preview of the teachers' institute scheduled for Jan. 28 will be presented, according to Supt. Charles Lavaroni.

Toll Rise To Finance Second Deck?

An increase in the Golden Gate Bridge toll may be necessary if a second deck is to be added to the span, directors of the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District indicated yesterday.

The directors asked district engineer Arthur C. Jenkins to make estimates on revenue, based on present and increased tolls.

"Present tolls are bringing in about five and one-half million dollars a year," said director Lowell Edington of Napa. "I want Mr. Jenkins to find out if, with a moderate toll increase, we can go it ourselves," instead of floating bonds.

A proposed lower deck on the bridge would provide four or five additional traffic lanes. Two engineering firms have presented preliminary reports showing that a second deck is feasible. Directors are awaiting more detailed reports.

Marin's two directors on the board, Thomas D. Hardcastle and George H. Ludy, agreed that a "modest increase" in bridge toll may be necessary.

Hardcastle and Ludy said they do not foresee any big jump in toll from the present 25 cents, but thought a "10 per cent increase" is possible.

Terra Linda Ready For Vote

Students at Terra Linda High School will vote Thursday for next semester's officers for the junior and senior classes.

Officers for the other classes serve through the year.

Senior class candidates are Lee Bright, Brian Duthie and Sam Osborne for president; Tom Nelson and Chris Sloman for vice president; Connie Carter and Pam Posers for secretary, and Rick Laubscher and Karen Murphy for treasurer.

Junior class candidates are Dan Cooley, Shand Stevens and Marsha Zitella for president, Steve Semorile and Dave Stapp for vice president, Sherryl Kinchla, Jan Lechlikner and Cathie Wright for secretary, and Jeff Brody and Mike Weber for treasurer.

Cranston Talk Set March 10

State Controller Alan Cranston will speak on the financial problems of small, special taxing districts at the Marin County Civic Center at 8 p.m. March 16.

Directors of small districts throughout the county will be invited as special guests by the county Local Agency Formation Commission which is sponsoring the session, Asst. County Administrator John F. Barrows said.

The 1965 grand jury in its annual report was particularly critical of small districts and their failure to do the job.

OBITUARIES

Vincent Leonesio Dies At 63

Vincent Joseph (Toots) Leonesio of 20 Ida Street, San Rafael, a retired house painter, died yesterday in a local hospital after a short illness. He was 63 years old.

A native of Jackson, Amador County, Leonesio lived in Marin since he was three years old. He was a member of Marin County Painters Local No. 83 and of the Independent Order of Redmen.

He is survived by his wife, Doris Leonesio of San Rafael; a brother, John Leonesio of Fairfax, and a sister, Mrs. Katherine McClure of Corte Madera. He was brother-in-law of retired Fairfax City Clerk Alice Leonesio.

A Requiem Mass will be offered at 9:30 a.m. Monday at St. Raphael's Church, San Rafael. Burial will be at Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael. Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

San Quentin Convict Is Stabbed

A trail of blood on the concrete floor of a San Quentin cell block about 10 a.m. today led officers to a convict who had been stabbed minutes before but who was walking away from the area where he had been attacked.

The victim, Harry S. Luckett, 39, who first came to the prison in 1948 from Alameda County for forgery, was in good condition later at the prison hospital with a stab wound in his back on the left side and with a cut over his left eye.

Luckett would not tell who stabbed him, or where, but duty officer Leo F. Shepherd said officials believed the incident occurred in the east housing unit, where the trail of blood was first found. Shepherd said there were, as yet, no suspects and no weapon was found.

Luckett, after first going to the prison, had three subsequent commitments, two for destruction of prison property and one for possession of a weapon.

Utilities Plan Asked By Club

The Black Point Improvement Club last night voted to ask the Marin County Planning Commission to require underground utility wiring in the Hidden Harbor subdivision.

"This will be the first subdivision we've had on this side of the hill and we wanted to be sure it was done right," explained Mrs. Richard DuFault, secretary.

The club also recommended that the county planning commission grant a use permit to Ronald Darnell of Crest Drive for a 16-dog kennel. It will not be for commercial use, said Mrs. DuFault.

Redwood High Sets Run-Off Election

A close contest for president in Redwood High School student body elections yesterday will result in a run-off election Friday. Candidates will be Randy Homrig of Corte Madera and Bill Niccolls of Ross.

Eugenie Yaryan of Kentfield was elected secretary; Dave Strathairn of Ross, vice president; and Dave Pautsch of Corte Madera, assistant commissioner of finance.

Clothing Collected

The Marin Parents Mississippi Assn. collected more than 300 pounds of warm clothing and bedding this month to help Mississippi Negroes withstand subfreezing winter temperatures, Mrs. Elizabeth Williams of Mill Valley said today.

LEE TANFORAN

Lee Ross Tanforan of 38 East Crescent Drive, San Rafael, a member of a family who were among the early pioneers of the area, died yesterday in a local hospital after a short illness. He was 51.

He was a grandson of Turibio Tanforan, the captain of a Chilean ship, who settled and married in the area when his crew mutinied in San Francisco during the gold-rush days of 1850.

The grandfather bought a ranch in San Bruno and founded the race track there which bears the family name. The Tanforan family was closely associated with the pioneering Pacheco family of Ignacio.

His father, Frank Tanforan, who died in 1948, was in the dairy business in Marin and Sonoma counties.

Born in Novato, Tanforan was formerly in the service station business in San Rafael and Ignacio and for the past 15 years had been a mechanic with Rossi's Garages, Inc., San Rafael.

He was a member of Machinists Union Local 238, San Rafael and the Marin Rod and Gun Club.

Survivors are his wife, Dora P. Tanforan; a son, James P. Tanforan; a sister, Mrs. Evelyn Allison of San Rafael; and a brother, Frank Tanforan of Petaluma.

Requiem Mass will be offered Tuesday at 9:30 a.m. in St. Raphael's Church. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael.

Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. Monday in the chapel of Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

EDITH HAX

Edith J. Hax, 90, died yesterday at her home, 2501 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Fairfax.

A native of California, Mrs. Hax lived in Palo Alto most of her life before coming to Marin County about five years ago. Her husband, the late Edward J. Hax, was a musician.

Funeral will be held Monday at 10 a.m. at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael. Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery, Colma.

Rosary will be recited tomorrow at 8 p.m. in Keaton's chapel.

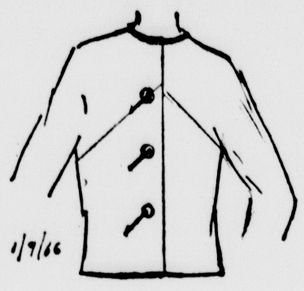
Use Ordinary Construction Unless Working With Knits

By EUNICE FARMER

How can I change a skirt pattern with a waist band and a zipper to one that has an elastic band with no zipper?

Mrs. M. L.



Dear Mrs. M. L.:

Although you didn't mention it, I think you are trying to copy the type of waistband used on knits. The fact that knits have an elasticity that can stretch as much as the elastic waistband, makes it possible to use this type of construction. This would be impossible to do with a skirt made of ordinary fabric because it would be much too full at the waist for a smooth appearance. Better stick to the ordinary construction unless you are working with knits.

Mrs. R. L. Erickson, Salina, Kan., wins a Tailor Trix Pressing Board for the following idea.

"My little girl was given a dress that fit her perfectly, except that it was about 1½ inches too short-waisted. Not wanting to spend a lot of time taking the dress apart and inserting a sash, I ran two gathering threads below the waistline; one ¾ inch below the original gathering and one 1½ inches below.

"I gathered the fullness, making the new waistline the correct length. Then I sewed tiny white baby ric-rac over my gathering threads and the effect was that of hand-smocking which is so popular in ready-made garments at this time. It's darling, right in style, and took only a short time to do."

If you want additional information on the new plastic foam dress form I talked about a few weeks ago, please send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope and I will send you all the facts in detail. Mail your inquiry to Eunice Farmer, in care of the Independent-Journal.

You asked teen-agers to write you, so here is my question. My turtleneck dickeys always stretch out of shape. Is there a way to fix them?

Chris

Dear Chris:

This can be helped by getting the elastic thread in the notion department, carefully hand-sew it to the edge of the turtleneck with a tiny running stitch. You can pull it up enough to retain the original shape, however don't make it too tight to pull over your head. You can prevent this from happening by using this elastic thread before your garment has become stretched. This thread can be used at the neckline of all sweaters. You'll love the way they get that new look again!

I saw a beautiful suit in a fashion magazine, but I can't find a pattern like it. It had a diagonal line extending from the side seam to about 4 inches below the neckline. The buttonholes were put on an angle also. Can I do this without a pattern?

Mrs. V. G.

Dear Mrs. V. G.:

With a basic knowledge of sewing and good common sense, you can change almost any fashion detail. Just remember, wherever you cut your pattern, you must add the ⅝ inch seamline to each side of the cut edge. In this case, the buttonhole will follow the diagonal line. Just leave the space open for the correct width of the buttonhole and secure well at each end. You don't make a bound buttonhole when the buttonhole appears in a seam. Mark the other buttonholes at the same angle as your slanted seam. They aren't any more difficult to make than buttonholes made on a straight line. Try them!

You may also want to make the jacket in contrasting colors. Be different and original, that's the fun of sewing.

If you haven't received my leaflet "Bound Buttonholes," send for your free copy today. Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Sew Simple in care of the Independent-Journal.

Miss Storms Is Bride Of Don Harvell

In a double ring ceremony on Dec. 18 in the Reorganized Church of the Latter Day Saints in Richmond, Mo., Donald Lee Harvell claimed Angela Fay Storms as his bride.

The bride is the daughter of Sgt. Maj. and Mrs. Kenneth A. Storms of Ft. Benning, Ga., and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Harvell of Petaluma, formerly of San Rafael.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length gown of white bouquet taffeta accented with seed pearls and Alencon lace. The skirt formed a chapel train.

Preceding the bride to the altar in a full length gown of pale blue satin was Gale Shirkey as maid of honor.

Bridesmaids Annette Shirkey and Linda Eslinger wore full length gowns of royal blue satin.

David Storms of Independence, Mo., served the bridegroom as best man and groomsmen were Randy Lane and Kenneth Derstler. Ushering guests to their seats were William D. Ferguson and Douglas Kirk.

A reception followed the ceremony at the church.

The bride was graduated from high school in Columbus, Ga.

The bridegroom attended San Rafael High School and served with the U.S. Army.

Following a wedding trip to Excelsior Springs, the couple will make their home in Liberty, Mo.

Club Gives Honorary Award

By MOLLY MARIN

A surprise highlight of Thursday's Outdoor Art Club meeting in Mill Valley was the award of an honorary membership to Mrs. Delmar Smith Clinton.

A member of the club for almost 50 years, Helen, as she is known to everyone, was president in 1927-28 and has been a leader in the club throughout these years.

Presenting the award was past president Mrs. F. J. Connelly, who commented on Mrs. Clinton's many outstanding services to the club and recalled some of the highlights of her presidency from a rare 1927-28 yearbook she happened to have.

Among longtime members and friends seated at a special luncheon table preceding the meeting were three women who had served on Mrs. Clinton's executive board, past president Mrs. Richard Cederberg, Mrs. Robert Bowie and Mrs. Stewart Bostwick. Special guests coming from San Francisco for the occasion as a surprise were Mrs. Clinton's only daughter, Mrs. Alexander

Stuart McDill, and Mrs. William Shea, who has been a friend of Helen Clinton's since they were 10 years old and classmates at the Pacific Heights School in San Francisco.

Born on Christmas Day, 1880, she has lived most of her life in Mill Valley and has been a leader in Marin social and music circles. She was one of the founders of the Marin Music Chest and Marin Art and Garden Center and has been a honorary member of the Symphony Guild of Marin since its inception. She was also a founder of the former Outdoor Art Club-sponsored Mill Valley concert series and served as president of its executive board for 12 years. She is an honorary sponsor of the Marin Debutant Ball.

ON A wedding trip in Lake Tahoe are Dr. and Mrs. William M. Edwards Jr., who were married on Jan. 2 at Trinity Lutheran Church in Minden, Nev. The bride is the former Jean Taaffe of San Rafael. Dr. Edwards, son of the former San Rafael physician and surgeon, Dr. William M. Edwards Sr., recently give up his practice in San Rafael to return to the U.S. Navy as a medical officer.

MRS. MARY RUBEY, daughter of the George W. Franzmans of San Rafael, was assistant violinist in a performance of Vivaldi's "Concerto Grosso for Two Violins and Violoncello Obligato" by the University Symphony at University of California in Santa Barbara on Saturday. Mary plans to teach in San Rafael after her graduation in music later this month.

Reservations Being Taken By Creative Dance Group

Registrations are now being taken for a few vacancies in dance classes sponsored by the Creative Dance Group in Mill Valley, San Anselmo, Terra Linda and Novato.

For young children there are preschool and kindergarten classes and for older children a variety of classes to meet varying skills as they develop and mature. A special class in jazz for teen-agers has been added on Saturday mornings.

For adults there are exercise, ballet (beginning and advanced) and advanced modern dance classes, all during evening hours.

A special Thursday evening group in tumbling and dance techniques is available for boys.

Further information may be obtained from Mill Valley coordinator Mrs. Weld Wilkie or Novato coordinator Mrs. Harry Magill.

Entertainment Label Decried For Fine Arts

The fine arts are erroneously looked upon as a form of entertainment and therefore presumed to be self-supporting, the chairman of the California Art Commission told 160 Marin residents gathered at Peacock Gap Country Club in San Rafael yesterday.

Dr. Abbott Kaplan declared that never in history have the fine arts been self-supporting. He said despite the tremendous growth in interest in the arts recently, there must be financial support if high levels of professional art are to be sustained.

"It is rather absurd that here in the wealthiest country in the world we have only limited support of the arts," Dr. Kaplan said.

He said about 600 top opera singers working in Europe are United States citizens who could not find employment in their own country. In postwar Germany, about 100 new theaters have been built and 70 per cent are supported by the state or national government, he declared.

Much of the growth in art has been on an amateur level, which is fine in improving the appreciation of fine arts by these amateurs. But the amateurs that try to reach professional level too soon, by exhibiting paintings or other efforts after little training, can lower the general level of appreciation by exposing the public to "pedestrian performances," claimed Kaplan.

He was the final speaker at the luncheon sponsored by the Marin Museum Assn. which honored members of the state art commission. The commission held its monthly meeting at the Marin County Civic Center, for the first time.

Several representatives of Marin art, music and dance groups spoke, telling the histories of their organizations their aims and needs.

Ann S. Halprin of the Dancers Workshop Company told of her group's recent tour of Europe. Her statements supported Kaplan's description of the high interest and monetary support for arts on the continent.

Others who spoke were Mrs. Florence Archibald of the Marin Music Chest, Mrs. Doris Morrison of the Marin Society of Artists, Jiri Herrmann of the Festival Theater, and Mrs. Ursula McCarthy, who read a statement from Mrs. Marcelle McCoy, director of the county fair, who was ill.

Supervisor Peter H. Behr made a short welcoming statement.

Mrs. Nancy Hayden, president of the Marin Museum Assn., was mistress of ceremonies and spoke on the plans of her group.

Sausalito Family In The Swim

Sausalito skipper Bruce Martens will soon be "free of the land" and have his toes in the "world's largest swimming pool," the ocean.

He left yesterday with his wife, Fern, and 16-year-old son, Bruce T. Martens, for Ensenada, Mexico, where they will board, and he will captain, the schooner Pilgrim on a six-week cruise to Jamaica.

Sailing along will be 14 other persons who will pay $500 each to sail to the Caribbean. Two are from Sausalito.

Folk singer Glenn Yarbrough, who will join the ship somewhere en route from Ensenada, is the ship's owner. Peter Witcosky is the other Sausalitan.

The Martens will be away from their home port of Sausalito about 18 months, said Martens. They plan to run cruises on the 85-foot vessel from Jamaica where Yarbrough has a small banana and orange plantation. Next summer they will run up the east coast.

The ship was built in 1932 and was used in a television series, "Adventures in Paradise," when called the Tiki.

Martens, who lives at 20 Crescent Avenue, is a former merchant marine skipper and a teacher of celestial navigation. Dick Miller of Bauman Bros. and Dick Miller Associates, Sausalito, is assisting him in getting participants for the voyage which begins Jan. 25.

"I'm anxious to get free of this land and get out in the blue ocean," said Martens. "Where the ocean's blue, I will have a swimming pool that's thousands of miles in diameter."

Video Star On Cancer Fund List

Allan Sherman, star of television, movies, records and nightclubs, will be a special guest at the American Cancer Society's Project Victory dinner held by the Marin chapter, Monday at 7:30 p.m. at Sabella's of Marin, Alto.

Other celebrities at the $10-a-head dinner will be movie star Dennis Morgan, broadcaster Carter B. Smith, organist Bob Stewart and football players Kermit Alexander and Clark Miller of the San Francisco 49ers.

All proceeds will go to the cancer fund, and restaurant owner Angelo Sabella will donate the expense of the dinner and his employees, their services and time to the society.

Kennedys Arrive

MUSIC REVIEW

Evening Of Opera Is Very Good Work

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

More of the good work being done in the College of Marin's opera workshop was shown last night in Olney Hall in an "evening of opera highlights." It consisted of 11 scenes from 10 operas.

A large part of the credit is due to the talented young people, but they owe much to their dynamic young music and stage director, Dr. Peggy Donovan. Her direction from one of two pianos used as accompaniment kept everything moving and under admirable control.

From the standpoint of the audience probably too much was attempted, though it is understandable that a considerable variety of roles is needed to show each student's capacities.

By far the most impressive excerpt was the scene and aria from Puccini's "Sister Angelica" with soprano Sydney Peterzon as Sister Angelica and mezzo soprano Margaret Lee as the aunt. Both have beautiful, expressive voices, and their acting had real dramatic impact.

The best comedy scene was the one from Menotti's "The Old Maid and the Thief," thanks to Marie Goff's flare for comedy, which was seen also in her role as Marcellina in Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro." This is definitely her forte. Carolyn Wiswell as Miss Todd in the Menotti's work and as Papagena in the excerpt from Mozart's "The Magic Flute," also showed some of this kind of talent as well as pleasing voice.

Soprano Martha Ward as Mimi in two scenes from Puccini's "La Boheme" revealed considerable talent, and Thomas Brennan was better in the tenor role of Rodolfo in one scene than Donald Neely in the second one.

Tenor Kenneth Rowland always makes a handsome and energetic lead but needs to learn to relax and not force his essentially good voice as he did both as Lt. Pinkerton in Puccini's "Madame Butterfly" and the Duke of Mantua in Verdi's "Rigoletto."

Versatility and grace as an actress were the strong points of soprano Ann Secrist in scenes from four operas, and Leslie Retallick's soprano voice was notable for its pure, youthful sweetness in two scenes.

Soprano Joan Smith's voice was flexible and pleasing, especially as Cio Cio San in "Madame Butterfly," but she needs further training in expressive body motion and gesture.

Others singing their roles well were Wyn Brown, Ruth Derksen, Richard Riddell and Chew Pah Lim.

Costumes by William Nelson and sets by Mike Nail were effective within the framework of necessary economy and rapid change.

Assistant music director Larry Snyder in the first half of the program and Phyllis Murphy in the second half did their usual splendid work at the second piano.

The performance will be repeated tonight with a change of cast in some scenes.

Tam Planning Six Dramas

Tamalpais High School's drama department will present six one-act plays next Friday and Saturday at 8:30 p.m. in Ruby Scott Auditorium.

Produced by drama director Daniel Caldwell, they are:

"Ringing in the Groom," directed by student Bob Meier; "Thursday Evening," directed by student Chris Minto, and "The Undercurrent," directed by Caldwell. 8hese three will be given Friday.

Saturday's productions are "The Sandbox," directed by student Fran Moitoza; "The Women Folk," directed by student Sandy Sarvis, and "Opening Night," directed by student Janey Clark. The three directors for Saturday are students.

Rehearsals Slated For 'The Creation'

Weekly rehearsals will start at 8 p.m. Feb. 1 in the game room of the Drake's Arms, Inverness, for the Inverness Festival Chorus production of Haydn's "The creation."

Performance date has not yet been set, but probably will be in spring or early summer in the Inverness area, according to Mrs. Robert L. Stommel, wife of the director.

Council Votes Funds For Cast To Travel

College of Marin's student executive council voted Thursday to appropriate $700 to help send the cast of the drama department production "Servant of Two Masters" to the Northwest Drama Conference at the University of Oregon Feb. 10, 11 and 12.

Drama department head James Dunn said the money will pay half the cost of the trip. The remainder of the needed funds will be collected during three benefit performances of the play in the college's little theater Feb. 3, 4 and 5 at 8:30 p.m., Dunn said.

Prenatal Care Linked To Birth Defects

(The following article was supplied by the Marin Chapter of the National Foundation, March of Dimes.)

By ROBERT E. HALL, M.D.
(Associate Professor of Obstetrics and Gynecology, Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons.)

CONSULTING—Dr. Robert E. Hall, associate professor of obstetrics and gynecology at Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons, consults with a patient. He has been involved in measuring the influence of prenatal care upon the number of infants born with birth defects.

Until now medical scientists have been unable to measure the direct influence of prenatal care upon the incidence of infants born with serious birth defects, which in the United States total about 250,000 a year. But scientists do know that the two are associated in some way.

For example, we know that:

Faulty prenatal development is the principal cause of stillbirth, of babies handicapped by birth defects, and of infant deaths.

The cause of some infant deaths and defects are known and safeguards can be taken against them.

Defects that kill or cripple are especially common among premature babies.

Some mothers run a greater risk than others of having stillbirths or premature babies. These women can often be identified early in pregancy and appropriate steps taken to protect them and their infants.

Medical supervision, especially in the early months of pregnancy, can minimize risks, save lives and reduce disability. Good prenatal care, for instance, does reduce the incidence of prematurity.

Fortunately, we can say today that the chances are about 15 to 1 that every time a baby is born in this country, happiness reigns; the parents can say, thankfully, "our baby is normal."

Problems of providing prenatal care are twofold:

First problem is the lack of existing prenatal centers. There are not enough public clinics for prenatal care, particularly in the urban centers, and where they do exist they are usually overcrowded and understaffed.

The second problem involves attitudes of women for whom these clinics are provided. In the lower income groups is found most of the indifference (and sometimes hostility) to prenatal clinics. The reasons range from those of the woman who scoffs, "Why should I go to a clinic? I'm pregnant, not sick", to the woman who complains, "The clinic is too far away and I can't afford a babysitter"; to the woman who cries, "I have to wait too long—and I see a different doctor every time."

All too often these complaints are justifiable. The woman who says she is pregnant but not sick is usually correct. But she does need medical supervision during her pregnancy to catch unexpected complications that might make her sick or harm her baby. As in every other area of medicine, obstetricians are primarily interested in prevention.

It is greatly encouraging to know that The National Foundation — March of Dimes has launched a national program in which volunteers will seek to arouse public concern about defective prenatal development and then stimulate community action toward more and better prenatal care.

This project is only one part of the basic program of the March of Dimes organization which, in 1958, shortly after its conquest of polio, began supporting research for the prevention of birth defects and financed facilities for treatment of infants born with these afflictions.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

VAN DELLEN

Burning, stinging and soreness of the tongue are common. The remedy is easy when the cause is known, but such cases are the exception rather than the rule. All too often there are no demonstrable lesions and treatment is by trial and error.

The tongue, located in one of the most strategic areas in the body, is subject to mechanical irritation from foods, condiments, smoking, jagged teeth, and pyorrhea. The mouth also teems with bacteria, yet it is amazing how well the tongue fares in this environment.

THE ORGAN also is influenced by internal conditions and has been used as an indicator of general health and disease for years. It becomes dry when the body is dehydrated and beefy red in anemia and deficiency diseases.

The structure is one of the first to suffer from a vitamin shortage. It also is involved when the stomach is affected by indigestion or lack of ferments, including hydrochloric acid. Occasionally, soreness is referred pain from infected tonsils or an abscessed tooth.

But the problem is difficult when all these possibilities have been considered or remedied and pain persists. This situation is not uncommon among menopausal women and those who are nervous or emotionally upset. Many fear cancer.

MORE THAN 15 years ago a from Columbia University demonstrated the difficulties in helping these individuals. There were 60 persons with a variety of tongue complaints such as dryness, pain, burning, stinging, or soreness.

Two dozen or more of the usual medical and dental remedies were tried, but nothing really helped. The fact that narcotics and anesthetic ointments failed to offer relief suggests that the source of distress was not of local, but of nervous origin.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

MUSCLE TUMORS

A. M. T. writes: What do fibroid tumors feed on? I have heard that women with this condition usually feel tired.

REPLY

Fibroids are muscle tumors of the wall of the uterus. They require the same nourishment as normal tissue, and the tumor would die if the blood supply to the lesion was clamped off. The only relationship between fatigue and fibroids stems from an anemia resulting from loss of blood.

LARYNX SPASM

D. D. writes: Is croup considered an allergic disease?

REPLY

No. It is spasm of the larynx that occurs in tots between the ages of 2 and 4 years. Many of the afflicted youngsters are of a nervous disposition and the condition tends to run in families. It is most likely to develop at night in a cold bedroom or when the child is suffering from a mild respiratory infection.

FLORIDA FRECKLES

J. M. writes: I just returned from Florida with face and arms full of freckles. Is there anything I can do to get rid of them?

REPLY

This is the penalty some people pay for a winter vacation in a sunny climate. Stay out of the sun and your freckles will disappear spontaneously. Meanwhile, camouflage them with make-up.

SMOKING AND TB

John writes: If a person with tuberculosis continues to smoke, will this slow down the progress of recovery?

REPLY

I would judge so, because smoking will irritate rather than soothe the diseased lungs.

Today's Health Hint — Avoid overexposure to cleaning solvents.

Ross To Ask County, Cities For Funds

The Independent-Journal yesterday incorrectly stated that the Ross Town Council Thursday decided to ask Fairfax and San Anselmo for $9,000 in county urban thoroughfares funds to assist in widening of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

The Ross council will ask for a total of $39,000: $16,000 from San Anselmo and $14,000 from Fairfax in urban thoroughfares funds, which the cities reportedly will not be able to use this year for lack of matching funds, and $9,000 extra from Marin County.

4 PERSONAL COMPANY CARS

We are now offering four of our company owned, almost-new 1965 Buicks that have been used during part of 1965 as personal, family cars by our department heads.

They have never been licensed thus carry the full 2-year new car General Motors guarantee. All have low mileage and you can't tell they have ever been on the road. The prices below are Kelly Blue Book average prices for used models without any guarantee. But we offer the full 2-year or 24,000 mile new car guarantee.

RIVIERA
Here's the most luxurious car on the American road today. Driven by our company president for approximately 7,000 miles. Fully equipped including factory air conditioning, power steering, brakes, seat and windows. New car window price was $5861.

WILDCAT
4-DR. HDTP.
$3295
Our sales manager drove this car 6,500 miles. Can't tell from brand new. All white with black leather seats. Full power including steering, brakes, seat and windows. New car window price was $4800.

SPECIAL
4-DR. SEDAN
$2395
Forest Green with matching upholstery. 6,000 miles. Our used car manager's personal car. Power steering, automatic trans., radio, heater, W.W. tires, V-8 and lots of other factory extras. New car window price was $3272.

SPECIAL
4-DR. SEDAN
$2195
A real economy buy here in this little V-6 Special 4-dr. Automatic trans., radio, heater and lots of Buick luxury items. You should get over 20 miles to the gallon on this little car. New car window price was $2945.

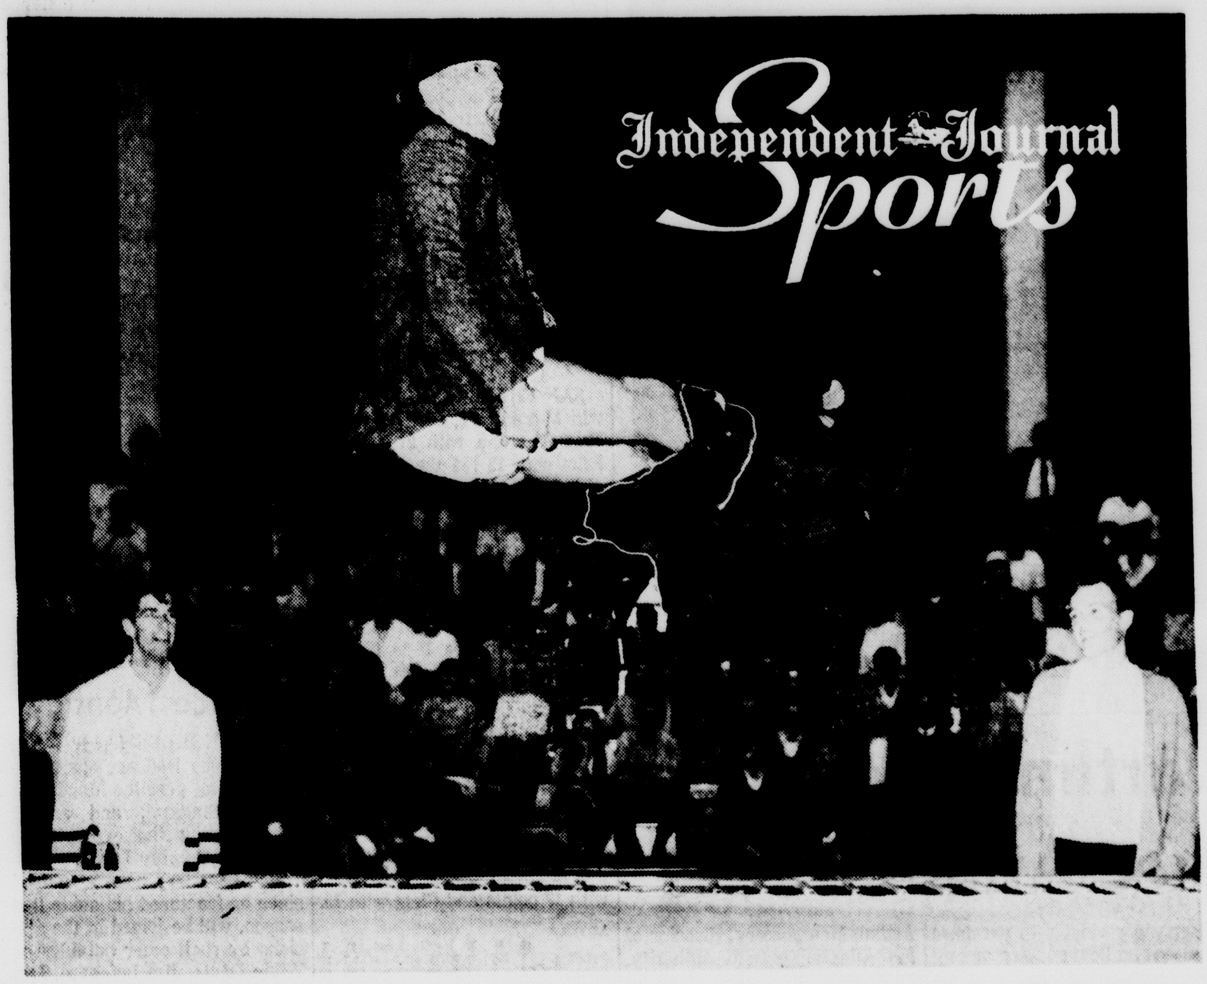
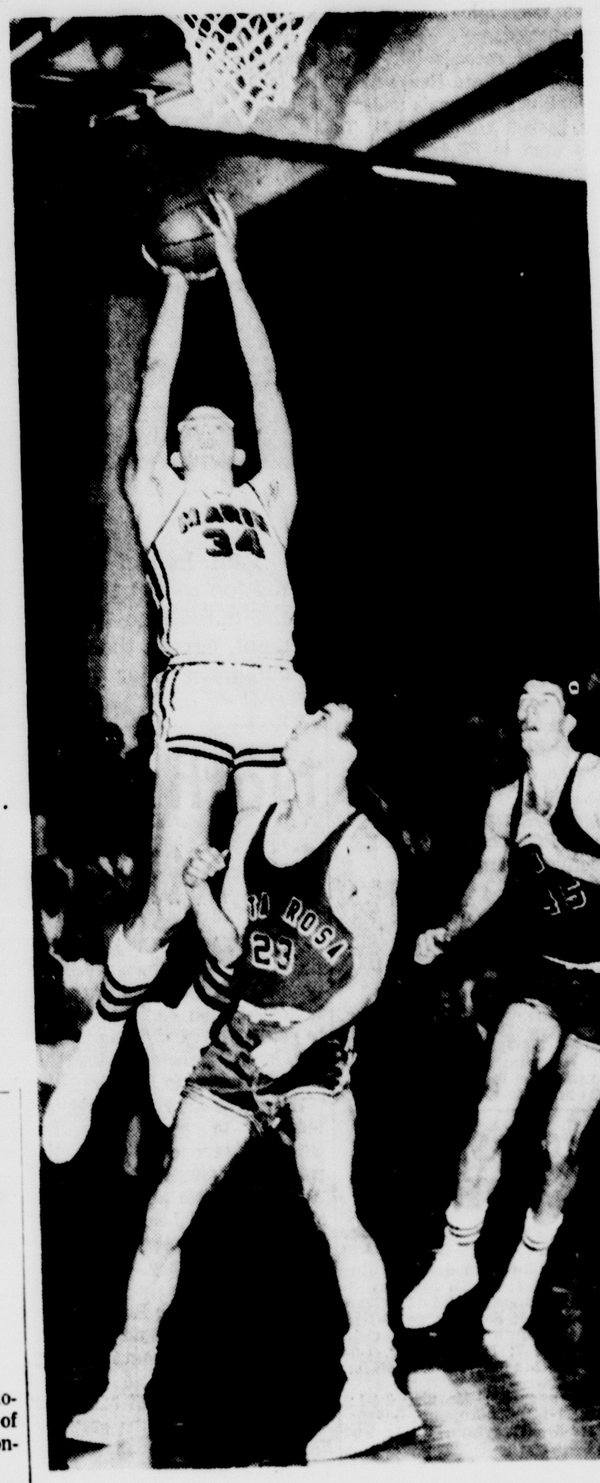
Dazzling Mariners Clobber Santa Rosa, 88-76



LOSE SOMETHING?—College of Marin physical education instructor Robert Justice does some antics on trampoline during halftime show at Marin-Santa Rosa game in Kentfield last night. (Independent-Journal photos)



UP AND IN—Marin star Fred Arnold leaps high over Santa Rosa defenders Jerry Bonfigli (23) and John Karlin (45) to sink basket in last half of last night's Golden Valley Conference game at Kentfield. Marin won, 88-76.

6 Tars Hit In Double Figures

By RALPH CHATOIAN

If College of Marin's basketball team plays in Rocklin tonight like it did last night in Kentfield, the Sierra Junior College cagers are going to be in for a shock.

The Santa Rosa Bear Cubs were the ones who got the shock last night in Kentfield when the Tars from Marin came back from a five-point deficit at half to overwhelm the visitors 88-76.

"They all were great," were the words of a happy Marin coach, Cal Riemcke. To single out any players in last night's game would be quite a chore, but Larry Wolfe, normally not a member of the starting unit, deserves a lot of credit. He started last night because of his defensive ability and did a great job under the boards both offensively and defensively.

Marin's big men in the front line, Jim Halm and Fred Arnold, were really big last night. Halm led the Tars' scoring assault with 20 points and Arnold came through with 15 more, and both of the 6-7 stars showed their muscles under the boards, repeatedly coming down with rebounds. They were two big reasons Marin outrebounded the Bear Cubs 33-26.

Riemcke's boys again showed a balanced scoring attack, with all helping to wallop Santa Rosa in the second half. Wolfe ended up with 13 points, Rod Monti came off the bench to tally 15 points, Lorry Galassi added 12 more, and Don Hanson notched 11.

That's six men in double figures for Marin. Wow!

SCORING HONORS

John Karlin, Santa Rosa's 6-5 center, tied Halm for game high scoring honors with 20 points and guard Bob Butler tallied 18.

The first half of the game was really a scrap, the lead changing hands five times before the Bear Cubs rallied late in the half to spurt out to that five-point lead at intermission, 42-37. Marin's pressing defense forced Santa Rosa to shoot from outside during most of that half, but then Butler, that former prep great from Montgomery High in Santa Rosa, found his way through the key and started hitting on layups. Then Karlin scored four points on free tosses late in the half and added a bucket to push his team to the fore.

But then came intermission—dances from song girls, a show on a trampoline, and what must have been a heck of a locker room discussion between Riemcke and his cagers.

Less than two minutes into the second half Marin erased that Santa Rosa lead and went ahead 45-44 on a basket underneath by Arnold. From there, the Tars never looked back.

IT'S A ROUT

In the first 14 minutes of the second half, Marin outscored Santa Rosa 35-12. By then, Marin was in front 72-55. What had started out as a toughie turned into a rout!

Monti scored 12 of his 15 points in that second half.

The Tars finished the game without Arnold, who fouled out with 5:12 left in the game, and Bill Pandiani, the little fireplug guard, who played a good defensive game before fouling out with 3:26 left. Karlin, Santa Rosa's big man, and Galassi finished the game playing with four fouls against them.

To illustrate the team win for Marin, one time in the second half the scoring went like this: Arnold, basket; Galassi, two free throws; Halm, a free throw; Hanson, a jump shot, and Wolfe, a free throw, as one by one, all players were hitting for points. During that spree, Santa Rosa could muster only one free throw.

DAZZLING SHOOTING

The Tars shot a dazzling 58 per cent from the floor, making 32 of 55 shots, and Santa Rosa went 25x53, 45 per cent. Marin made 24 of its 34 free throws and Santa Rosa 26 of 32.

The triumph gave the Tars a 2-0 record in conference play and was their eighth straight win. Santa Rosa is now 2-1. For Marin, it was one giant step toward the Golden Valley Conference championship.

Santa Rosa scoring: Ron McEntire, 4-4-12; John Kerlin, 6-8-20; Bob Butler, 6-6-18; Terry Bonfigli, 5-2-12; Roger Whitright, 1-4-6; John Bles, 2-2-6; Peter Waller, 1-0-2. Totals: 25-26—76.

Marin scoring: Fred Arnold, 7-1-15; Larry Wolfe, 4-5-13; Jim Halm, 8-4-20; Lorry Galassi, 3-6-12; Don Hanson, 4-3-11; Bill Pandiani, 1-0-2; Rod Monti, 5-5-15. Totals: 32-24—88.

Officials: Joe Wardlaw and Wes Mathews.

JIM MURRAY

Plenty Of Heat From Mail Bag

No column I wrote in recent weeks engendered as much heat or downright bellicosity as one I wrote decrying the whole silly business of powerful, multi-million-dollar universities lowering themselves to the position of mere proving grounds for professional football players.

The overheated mail was all all of a piece. How dare I say football players were stupid? (I didn't. I said the system was stupid.) What did I mean by suggesting that athletics weren't good for a student body? (What good does it do a 20,000-member student body to sit in a chair and yell "Rah!" for 44 virtual employees of the university to out-exercise 44 other employees of another university?)

But everyone is entitled to be heard and I will let a man who is both a high school football coach and a history teacher be surrogate for the disaffected among you. He is John T. Glore of Pattonville High School in St. Ann, Mo. who read the cognizant column in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat and deponeth as follows (with my "explanations" in parenthesis):

"DEAR MR. MURRAY:

"In regard to your column . . . you're as far off base as possible.

"You talk as if college athletes in general do not graduate or receive a diploma. (Note: I would say well over 70 per cent of the pro football players I talk to in locker rooms are always saying things like 'Well, I lack 12 units of getting my degree' or 'I hope someday to go back and finish out my education but right now I have to feed my wife and 7 kids,' etc.) You imply that physical education is a major for muscle-bound idiots. (Note: What I imply is that muscle-bound idiots use physical education for a major which I think you will agree is a different thing.)

"YOU AS much as say all football players are stupid. (Note: No, I don't. I wouldn't even say all sportswriters are stupid because generalities are dangerous. All Irishmen don't drink, all Scots aren't frugal, and all Italians can't sing. A significant percentage of all three fit the stereotype, however, or it wouldn't exist in the first place. And history has had some stupid football players elsewhere than on stage.)

"IT TAKES brains to stay in college and to be occupied with hours of practice and still stay in college. (Note: Well, then, what a waste of brains! Hours of practice, indeed! Why not train those brains for something besides carrying a football? The worst excuse for college football I ever heard is that it uses up brains as well as blood, cartilage and other human resources.)

"I will match the intelligence of any of these (football players) against that of any nonathlete. (Note: At what? If it's a spelling bee, count me in. If we're going to match wits by butting heads, I concede.)

"MOST PHYSICAL education majors take such courses as anatomy, physiology, zoology, kinesiology, plus many health classes and the same general requirements as majors in any other field. (Note: If you can get a definition of 'kinesiology' from any member of an NFL backfield — with no coaching from the audience and without giving them the answers in advance as football teams have been known to do at certain military installations — I will personally serve as tackling dummy at the opening of summer practice. If they can spell 'kinesiology,' I will serve on the Chicago Bears' kickoff squad.)

"I CAN name you many athletes that were honor roll students. (Note: I can name you more who weren't.)

"I hold a Master of Arts degree in School Administration and I will match my graduate grades (which were obtained after my eligibility was gone) with anyone you wish." (Note: Okay. Match them with Admiral Rickover, Robert Hutchins, Dr. Salk. By the way, what about your grades DURING your eligibility. Suffer, did they, because you had more important things to learn—like pass patterns?)

SERIOUSLY, COACH, it is not my function—or pleasure—to indulge in this kind of dueling where I get the choice of weapons (words). I think football has its place. If athletics gives a poor boy a chance to capitalize intellectually on his skills and save him from a shoeshine stand or a broom and apron, I am all for it. When football gives only the Chicago Bears an opportunity to capitalize on his skills, I'm just damned if I can see why the taxpayers of a state should foot the bill.

IN SHORT, taxes should not go for football players but for doctors, lawyers, scientists and statesmen. And don't tell me about Whizzer White. He's your one-man backfield. My point is, why should football teams be extensions of student bodies? Why recruit at all? Why not get back to the principles of Dink Stover and Ted Coy and Frank Merriwell? Football is fine. Hired platoons is hypocrisy.

SAN DIEGO OPEN

Youth Movement In Full Swing

By BOB MYERS

SAN DIEGO (AP)—The youth movement was in full swing today in the $40,000 San Diego Open Golf tournament as a pair of 26-year-old professionals, newcomers to prominence, Paul Bondeson and Chris Blocker, ran 1-2 into the third round.

Bondeson, from Palm Springs, led the field with a 36-hole score of 132 after rounds of 67-65.

Blocker, from Jal, N.M., was a stroke back with 65-68—133.

There is a resemblance between the two golfers: Neither has ever won an important tournament. Both are blonds, six feet or over. They are roommates this week at the tournament headquarters, the Stardust Country Club.

There is one difference. Bondeson is married and has two youngsters while Blocker is still a bachelor.

Another pair of relatively young players remained in the picture. They were Charles Coody of Fort Worth, Tex., and Harold Kneece of Aiken, S.C., who were tied at 135.

The challenge from the older fellows came from varied sources.

Tournament-wise Don January, with 68-66, was at 134. And the 136 bracket included such genuine championship threats as Bill Casper Jr., 70-66; Mason Rudolph, 67-69; Mike Souchak 68-68, and Tommy Aaron, 65-71.

Deadlocked with these four was still another youngster, Tom Weiskopf, 68-68. This 23-year-old from Columbus, Ohio, may be distinguished by the fact that he beat Ben Hogan in a practice round last summer.

ORIGINAL FIELD

The original field of more than 140 was cut to 74 for the final two rounds at the par 35-36—71 Stardust course. Cutoff score was 143.

There were several notable absentees for the final phases of the tournament. Included were Tony Lema, 149; Art Wall Jr., 147; Paul Harney, 147; Bob Goalby, 146, and the 1965 PGA Rookie of the Year, Homero Blancas, 145.

Bondeson had seven birdies and a bogey yesterday and said he feels he is playing better than he has in many months. He broke in as a pro in 1962.

Blocker, who shared the first round lead at 65 with Aaron, had four birdies and a bogey in his round yesterday.

"I think I'm in a go position now," said Blocker, who observed that he felt more relaxed after taking a bogey 5 on the eighth hole. Curiously, he knocked in a 30-foot putt for a birdie 3 on the next hole.

Unshaken Cal Bows To UCLA

BERKELEY (AP) — Mike Lynn's 25 points helped ninth-ranked UCLA remain undefeated in the Pacific Athletic Conference as the Bruins overcame an unshaken California team 75-66 last night.

The Bruins didn't pull away from the losing Bears until 1 minute and 15 seconds from the end when they widened a three-point lead to a comfortable margin of 69-62.

The famed UCLA zone press failed to rattle the Bears, who lost the ball only twice.

Bruce Steckel, the California sophomore center who spent much of this week in the hospital with a bronchial ailment, paced the Bears with 22 points.

Kenny Washington scored 19 points for the Bruins, now 3-0 in PAC play. Cal is 1-2.

Yanks, Indians Trade Players

NEW YORK (AP) — Lou Clinton, who played for three American League teams in five days last season, is heading for still another team this year.

The Cleveland Indians traded Clinton to the New York Yankees yesterday for catcher Doc Edwards, who started his major league career with the Indians.

Clinton, who played with Boston from 1960 to 1964, started the 1965 season with the California Angels but was placed on waivers in September.

Both Kansas City and Cleveland claimed him, and he played for the Athletics in one game before he was awarded to the Indians. The 28-year-old outfielder batted .233 over-all with two homers and 10 runs batted in.

Edwards, 28, started with the Indians in 1962, went to Kansas City in 1963 and moved to the Yankees last year. He batted .183 with one homer and nine RBI.

J. V. Cagers Win

Redwood's junior varsity cagers whipped Novato jayvees 51-19 yesterday. George Bertram led the Redwood team with 10 points.

Warriors Beaten In Tense Battle

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — After a tense down-to-the-wire loss to Los Angeles, the San Francisco Warriors basketball team will have a week to recoup before a return match with the Lakers.

The Warriors hope to turn the tables when they meet the Western Division leaders of the National Basketball Assn. at Los Angeles on Jan. 21.

Guard Jerry West, who suffered an eye injury in the NBA All - Star game Tuesday, bounced back with 33 points as he led Los Angeles to a 118-110 victory over San Francisco last night.

West tied for high point honors with San Francisco's Guy Rodgers.

Down 62-48 at the half, the Warriors closed the gap in the see-sawing second period by using a full-court press. They edged in front 108-107 in the waning minutes.

But then Laker guard Walt Hazzard tossed in a crucial basket which broke the San Francisco rally and put Los Angeles ahead to stay.

Midway in the fourth quarter, Los Angeles was assessed two technical fouls after Coach Freddie Schaus and members of the Laker bench complained about the officiating.

Seattle Defenders Stop Seals By 4 To 1 Margin

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The fifth-place San Francisco Seals have two encounters coming with the Portland Buckaroos, who are contending for first place in the Western Hockey League.

Seattle — in fourth place—gained a three-point lead over San Francisco by taking last night's contest 4-1 at the Cow Palace. The Seals had trailed Seattle by a single point before the game.

Portland, the Seals' opponent Wednesday and Sunday, is in second place, two points behind Victoria.

Guyle Fielder and Gerry Leonard scored two goals in the second period for the Totems last night. Then John Gravel scored for the Seals, but Larry Lund of Seattle hit with three seconds left in the period.

Totem defenseman Jim McLeod added the final goal in the third period.

Seattle's defense gave the Seals few good shots at the goal.

Flyweight Title Fight Postponed

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's Hiroyuki Ebihara has a fractured finger of his left hand and will have to postpone his Feb. 1 world flyweight title bout with Argentina's Horacio Accavallo, a Japanese newspaper said yesterday.

The sports daily Hochi Shimbun said Ebihara suffered the fracture in a sparring session Friday.

MOTOR CITY MEET

Pennel Misses Record; New Technique Blamed

DETROIT (AP) — If he hadn't been trying a new technique, U.S. Olympic pole vaulter John Pennel might hold a new American indoor record today.

Pennel, holder of the current mark of 16 feet, 7¾ inches, appeared to set the new standard when he cleared the bar at 16-9½ on his first effort in the first Motor City International Indoor Track Meet.

But officials ruled the pole followed Pennel into the pit and the effort was counted as a miss. He won the event with a vault of 16 feet.

"That's the way it goes," Pennel said. "There's no doubt the pole went across the line. If the crossbar had been there, it would have been knocked off. That's the first time it's happened to me in three years."

Pennel explained that he had been working on jerking his head back at the top of each vault to try to straighten himself out.

"But part of the job is to push the pole away with my thumb," he said. "I didn't do it right and the momentum brought the pole across the line."

The Amateur Athletic Union-sponsored meet attracted a meager crowd of some 3,500.

But there were plenty of thrills in addition to Pennel's record try.

Wyomia Tyus, whose world record time of 10.3 in the 100-yard dash was approved earlier in the day, was clocked in the indoor record time of 6.7 seconds in the women's 60-yard dash trial. The Tennessee A&I flash won the final in 6.9.

John Thomas, Olympic medalist in 1960 and 1964, finished third in the high jump in his first American appearance since his foot injury more than a year ago.

Richard Ross of Southern (La.) University won the event with a leap of 6-10.

Another disappointment was Ralph Boston, American record holder in the broad jump, who placed fourth as Norman Tate of the North Carolina track club made his best leap ever — 26-3¾.

Ann Smith of Great Britain tied the record for the women's 880-yard run with a 2:10.5 clocking while fellow Britishers John Whetton and Alan Simpson were first and second in the mile with Whetton taking it in 4:05.2.

A pair of Southern University entries set Cobo Arena records. George Anderson won the 60-yard dash in 6.0 seconds while teammate Willie Davenport won the 60-yard hurdles in 7.0.

Top Athletes To Get Awards

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Touchdown Club tosses its annual party tonight, a brilliant black tie affair honoring the top football players of 1965 along with big names of baseball and basketball.

Michigan State and its football coach, Duffy Daugherty, will be honored, along with Cleveland coach Blanton Collier and Philadelphia end Pete Retzlaff in professional ranks. Honored as college players of the year will be fullback Jim Grabowski of Illinois and linebacker Tommy Nobis of Texas.

Special awards go to Arnold (Red) Auerbach of the National Basketball Association Boston Celtics and Willie Mays, San Francisco outfielder.

Redwood Nips Novato Five In Double Overtime Game

Jack Fitzhenry's 12-foot jump shot in the second overtime period last night gave the Redwood Giants a very, very slim 66-65 victory over the Novato Hornets.

It was the second heart-breaking loss in a week for coach John Panagakis' cagers, last night's coming on their own court.

The score was tied at 55-55 at the end of regulation time, after Novato missed a shot that would have won it before it ever got a chance to get to overtime. In the first overtime period, Redwood got the ball with only 18 seconds left and the score tied, 58-all. But Novato's defense was so tenacious it didn't allow Redwood to get off a shot, so the game went into another overtime period.

With six seconds left in the second overtime, Redwood got the ball out of bounds under its own basket, trailing 65-64. The pass went to Fitzhenry on the right side and up went the ball. The almost capacity crowd went wild as the ball went in. It was one of Fitzhenry's two baskets on the night, but it was worth a dozen of 'em.

"I was very pleased with our bench strength," said winning coach Dick Hart. Al Fritz received praise from Hart for his rebounding, as Hart noted he led the team with 10. He also pointed out that little Andre Horn made 10 assists, in addition to his 18 points. Russ Smith led the Redwood scorers with 19 points.

Ev Fritz led the Novato quint in the scoring derby with 17 points, followed by John Dolinsek with 14 and Tom Owens with 13.

The teams were even in rebounds, each collecting 38. Redwood hit 35 per cent of its shots and Novato 38 per cent.

It was a costly loss for Novato, giving the Hornets a 1-2 record in Marin Athletic League action. Redwood is now 2-1.

Scoring summary:

Redwood ..... 12 12 21 10 3 8—66

Terra Linda Upsets Drake Quint, 36-33

The object of the game is to score and keep the opposition from scoring. And Terra Linda's basketballers did a pretty good job of it en route to a 36-33 upset victory over Drake High's Pirates last night.

Drake connected on just 12 of 52 from the floor for 23 per cent and "it was our fault they weren't hitting," Terra Linda coach George Starn allowed.

Drake held a 22-17 advantage at halftime, but a stern Trojan man-for-man defense thwarted the Pirate offense, giving the home team its first Marin Athletic League victory in three starts. Drake is now 1-1 in MCAL play.

And much of the credit has to go to a trio of Trojan hoopsters —two of which weren't even expected to see action because of ankle injuries.

They are Glen Olden, who held Drake's Jerry Sprout scoreless. John Ahern, who held big Chet Carlisle to just three points, all from the free throw line, and little Greg Hill, 5-7 guard, who came off the bench in the second half to stop Will Curley who was setting a torrid pace on offense until Hill came in the game. Curley led the Pirate offense with 14 points on six buckets and two free throws, scoring all of his points in the first half.

It was Hill and Olden who were doubtful starters for the Trojan cagers.

With Mike Ainslie sparking the attack, the Trojans ran off 11 points while holding the Drake quint to just 4 as the Terra Linda cagers slowed the tempo of the game with smart ball control tactics, and pulled ahead by two points at the end of the third quarter, 28-26. The home team also threw a full-court press at the Pirates in the second half, but the Drake boys broke through it rather easily. It was when they crossed over into Trojan territory that their trouble started.

The hustling Terra Linda defence forced them to take hurried shots which flew over, by and past the hoop.

Ainslie wound up with 13 points to top Trojan scorers, including four straight free throws on one-and-one situations after the Pirates had tied it 28-all, and had gone ahead 33-32.

Fred Daniele had 6 points for the winners.

The Terra Linda boys hit 11 of 36 from the floor for 31 per cent and cashed 14 of 20 free throws for a whooping 70 per cent. They also outrebounded the taller Pirates 21-16 as Ahern grabbed 6 off the boards and Ainslie and Olden 5 each.

Chet Carlisle topped rebounders with 8 followed by Pirate Bob Tobin who snared 7 rebounds and scored 10 points on three field goals and four free throws.

Marin 'Cats Surprise San Rafael

Marin Catholic's basketball team jumped out to an early lead and then held on for a thrilling 45-42 triumph over the San Rafael Bulldogs last night in the winners' gym.

The Wildcats led 13-6 at the end of the first period but the Bulldogs of San Rafael came racing back in the second period, outscoring the Marin cagers 17-11 and cutting the margin to just one point at the half 24-23.

Led by little Brian Grove, the 'Cats again surged ahead in the third period and increased their lead to five points.

Then, after 6-1 forward Mike Lasater fouled out early in the final stanza, Coach Gus Hassapakis inserted another guard, Paul Vickers, into the line-up and the Marin boys went to a stall pattern, while the eager Bulldogs fouled the 'Cats trying to regain possession of the ball.

The San Rafael boys managed to narrow the margin with a late fourth quarter burst, but with less than two minutes remaining, Vickers converted four free throws to put the Marin quint up by seven after Bulldog Joe Cunningham had twice swished the nets and closed the gap to just three points.

EFFECTIVE STALL

The Wildcats' effective stall caused Coach Mike Diaz' outfit to commit 20 fouls, while the 'Cats fouled 14 times, and canned 12 of 24 free throw attempts for 50 per cent.

The 5-7 Grove turned in another great all-around performance, and topped all scorers with 15 points on five field goals and five charities, while 6-2 forward Ches Bornia had 11 markers and Lasater had 8.

Bornia also pulled down 13 rebounds to top both teams and 6 of those were defensive rebounds in the final period. Bob Lombardi, 6-2 center, picked 12 off the boards and aided the offensive punch with 5 points.

Chip Tyson notched high point honors for the Bulldogs with 10 points, all from the field, followed by Roger Widmer who chalked up 9 markers on three buckets and three from the free throw line.

Key Games Slated For Marin Nine

Litchfield's of San Rafael will take on Ellis Brooks Chevrolet baseballers tomorrow in a semi-pro game that will decide the leadership of the San Francisco AAA Winter League.

Each team will be taking a 6-0 record into the game, scheduled for Funston's Garrigan Diamond in San Francisco at 11:30 a.m.

The two teams boast many professional and ex-pros in the lineup. Scheduled to pitch for the San Rafael team is Ron Cole, a righthander. His mound opponent will probably be southpaw Tom Del Sarto, an iron man who used to pitch for the San Francisco Seals.

Nothing Startling Produced In Milwaukee-Atlanta Case

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Three days of testimony here produced nothing startling but indicated what each side hopes to prove in Wisconsin's antitrust suit in the transfer of the Milwaukee Braves to Atlanta.

Wisconsin attorneys have attempted to prove that the Braves "were deceitful to the public" by allegedly contacting Atlanta officials about the shift of the National League baseball club several months before they said publicly they wanted to move.

Attorneys for the Braves have hammered away at alleged lack of interest in the team in recent years in Milwaukee.

Williard Stafford of Madison, special counsel for the state of Wisconsin, tried to show that the move was made only for financial reasons.

"Weren't the broadcast rights in Atlanta one of the primary reasons for moving the ball club to Atlanta?" Stafford asked William C. Bartholomay, chairman of the board for the Braves.

"No, they were not," replied Bartholomay after 16 hours of questioning, halted temporarily yesterday.

Bartholomay had testified earlier, however, that the radio and television rights had been sold for a gross of $2.5 million, with net profits expected to run between $1.2 and $1.5 million in 1966.

Net profits from broadcast rights in Milwaukee were about $500,000 in recent years, although profits dipped to $60,000 last year after the Braves played in Milwaukee after attempting to move to Atlanta for the 1965 season.

Bartholomay also denied making a commitment in March, 1964, to Atlanta officials that the team would be moved to Georgia. Wisconsin attorneys introduced several newspaper stories saying that was when the Braves decided to make the move, but Bartholomay said repeatedly he made no commitment until after the 1964 season.

A total of 105,000 words went into the record during Bartholomay's testimony, in which he said that "lack of sports interest in Milwaukee" and failure of Wisconsin residents to purchase stock in the Braves were among the reasons he decided to move the team.

Three more Braves' officials — President John McHale, Manager Bobby Bragan and Business Manager Dick Cecil — are scheduled to be questioned, probably next Thursday along with three prominent Atlanta men also ordered to testify in depositions, which probably will be taken Friday.

They are Mayor Ivan Allen, Arthur Montgomery, director of the Atlanta Stadium Authority, and Mills B. Lane, financial chairman of the authority.

Before their testimony is taken attorneys for both sides go back to Wisconsin to argue in Circuit Court Monday whether Wisconsin courts have jurisdiction in the case.

Stanford Cagers Down USC 73-64

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Sophomore guard Arthur Harris led a Stanford rally midway in the second half as the Indians went on to down the Southern California Trojans 73-64 last night in a Pacific Athletic Conference basketball game.

Harris scored six of his 22 points during a five-minute scoring spree as Stanford went in front 54-44 with 10 minutes to go and then stayed a safe distance ahead.

John Block, 6-foot-9 center, kept USC in the game with his shooting and rebounding, leading the game's scoring and rebounding with 28 points and taking 14 retrieves.

Stanford led 35-28 at the half, but five minutes into the second period the Trojans went ahead, 43-42, for their only lead of the game.

Stanford now holds a 2-1 record in PAC play and USC 1-2.

USF Dons Top Loyola By 97-66

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Erwin Mueller, with 18 points, Russ Gumina with 21 and Joe Ellis with 19 led the University of San Francisco Dons to a 97-66 victory last night over Loyola of Los Angeles in a West Coast Athletic Conference game.

The Dons, seeking their fourth straight WCAC basketball title, put on an 11-1 blitz in the first half that broke a 14-14 tie and buried the Lions for keeps. Mueller scored six of these points.

Gumina then came on strong in the second half, scoring 13 of his points after intermission as USF moved to a 2-0 conference mark.

Loyola, now 1-1, was led by the Adelman brothers, — Rich with 19 points and Clete with 15.

West Is 7-Point Pick In NFL Pro Bowl

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In the Pro Bowl — the National Football League's annual East-West post season test — it's not uncommon to be carried from the field. The question tomorrow is whether the West's All-Stars plan to come in that way.

"We're all right now," reported Green Bay Packer Coach Vince Lombardi for the West on the eve of the 16th annual classic.

He said that two starting question marks — flanker Jimmy Orr of Baltimore and defensive tackle Alex Karras of Detroit Lions had both overcome recent injuries.

Orr pulled a muscle in his left thigh during a practice Tuesday. But yesterday he was running through assignments. Karras sprained an ankle this week.

The East squad, coached by Blanton Collier of Cleveland, has had no injuries — except for tackle Dick Schafrath whose leg has not recovered from a jolt he received playing for the Cleveland Browns in the championship game against Green Bay.

The St. Louis Cardinals' Ernie McMillan will start for Schafrath.

Las Vegas bookmakers, paying respect to the West's 10-5 advantage in the classic, rate Lombardi's team a seven point favorite.

"I really can't explain it," said Cleveland Brown quarterback Frank Ryan, field boss of tee East offense.

"It can't be that West personnel are that much better, because basically we're all equal. Every team is capable of beating another. I hope we can prove it Sunday."

The game will be televised on CBS, Channel 5, starting at 1 p.m.

With Ryan in the East Backfield will be Cleveland teammate Jim Brown at fullback; Charley Taylor of Washington at halfback and another Brown, Gary Collins at flanker.

In the West backfield will be Orr, San Francisco's John Brodie at quarterback and two rookies, Chicago halfback Gale Sayers and fullback Ken Willard, also of San Francisco.

For Jimmy Brown and New York offensive tackle Roosevelt Brown, the game in Memorial Coliseum will be their ninth each.

Globetrotter Show On Tap In Richmond

Meadowlark Lemon, Freddie Neal, Connie Hawkins and the rest of the Harlem Globetrotters will be in action Tuesday night at the Richmond Auditorium.

The famed funnymen of the basketball court will be taking on the Washington Generals in an exhibition game, starting at 8 p.m.

Besides the game, there will be pre-game and halftime entertainment that includes the Bratislava Slovakian Folkloric Dancers ensemble of 40, and Satchel Paige, the granddaddy of all baseball players, who will be performing his bit when the wizards stage their takeoff on baseball.

"Showmanship is our hallmark," says owner-promoter Abe Saperstein, who put the show team on the road aboard a dilapidated model-T in 1927. "The players know exactly when to play the game seriously.

The Globetrotters make the fans laugh, chuckle and laugh again, then suddenly start playing basketball in earnest and amaze the crowd with their deft ball handling and accuracy in passing and shooting."

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

There Is Advantage In Leading Toward High Cards In Bridge

One advantage of leading toward your high cards is that you may be able to drive out a missing honor without wasting one of your own in the process.

It would have made a big difference in today's hand.

Opening lead — ♣ Q

South won the first trick with the king of clubs and led a low trump to dummy's king.

When this held, declarer returned the low trump from dummy, using his own queen to drive out West's ace.

JACK LED

West thereupon led the jack of clubs, and the slam went down the drain.

If declarer ruffed with dummy's jack of hearts, East's ten would become the top trump.

If declarer did anything else, East would ruff the club with the ten of hearts to defeat the contract at once.

North lamented long and loud, pointing out that six diamonds and six notrump were unbeatable.

South observed that six hearts was a very reasonable contract and that he was very unlucky to run into such a terrible club break.

CHOICE

South's actual play gave him some protection against A-10-x-x of trumps in the West hand but left him exposed to a bad break in clubs.

It was a poor choice because West had opened South's bid suit instead of leading through one of dummy's suits.

Whenever an opponent leads your suit, look out for a bad break.

South should make the slam by playing the trumps properly. After winning the second trick with dummy's king of hearts, South should get to his hand with the queen of spades and lead another low trump.

West takes the ace of hearts and leads a club, but dummy can ruff with the jack and then South can draw the last trump with the queen.

DAILY QUESTION

♣ Q J 9 8 7 4 2

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

Do not mike a shutout bid (of three clubs) when you have a side ace in addition to your long suit.

She Had A Hunch Twins Were Coming

READING, Pa. (AP) — Mrs. Robert W. Werner, 17, had a hunch she would have twins.

She is a twin, her mother is a twin, and there were sets of twins on her mother's side and her father had twin cousins. Mrs. Werner left a Reading hospital with Robert Arthur Jr. and Ronald Alan, twin boys born last week.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, Jan. 15, the 15th day of 1966 with 350 to follow.

The moon is approaching the new stage. No morning star. The evening stars are Venus, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

English poet William Cowper was born on this day in 1731.

In 1831 the first practical locomotive built in America made its maiden run over the Charleston and Hamburg Railroad in South Carolina.

In 1919 Polish pianist Ignace Paderewski became the first premier of the Republic of Poland.

In 1922 the Irish Free State was born.

In 1965 British Prime Minister Winston Churchill went into a coma and never regained consciousness. He died Jan. 23.

A thought for the day—The Roman poet Ovid said: "To be loved, be lovable."

The lost continent that geologists call Gondwanaland sank beneath the sea ages ago, leaving exposed the islands that form New Zealand.

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey, Western District headquarters. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

The column of heights gives the elevation in feet of each tide above or below the plane of Coast Survey chart soundings. The depths are always additive to the chart depths unless preceded by a minus sign (-), when the numbers are subtracted from the depth given in the chart. Light-face type indicates a.m. times; bold-face type indicates p.m. times.

Christopher Is An Example Of Working One's Way Up

GEORGE CHRISTOPHER, the former mayor of San Francisco who is seeking the Republican nomination for governor, is justly proud of his personal success story.

Born in a remote mountain village in Greece, he came of humble parentage.

Brought to America at the age of 2 as the son of immigrant "foreigners," he was subjected to the discriminatory practices of the time.

HUMBLE IMMIGRANTS of half a century ago were attracted to America as "the land of opportunity" where "who you were" didn't count for much of anything. Success depended on "what you were."

You didn't have to spend your life serving another; you could go into business for yourself and be your own boss.

George Christopher lived out this dream in reality. He built his own highly successful dairy business. His wife shared the heavy burden of the business operations.

It may be trite language but nonetheless true to observe that George Christopher, Greek immigrant nobody, made something of himself.

GET GEORGE CHRISTOPHER started talking about this land of opportunity and he won't stop till he has told you too his father's success story.

The senior Christopher came as a typical 19th Century immigrant to the new world, arriving with no funds, no job, and no knowledge of English. He worked his way across the country on the brand new transcontinental railroad. By the time he arrived in Sacramento he had saved enough money to buy a peanut stand and go into business for himself as a sidewalk peanut vender.

When his savings had grown sufficiently, the senior Christopher returned to Greece and married. The land of opportunity continued to beckon and George's father set out alone once more for America.

It took more than two years to accumulate enough money to send for Mrs. Christopher and infant George. Hard work and perseverance brought a modest measure of business success to the elder Christophers in San Francisco.

ALL THIS GEORGE CHRISTOPHER tells you enthusiastically and proudly.

And he relates all this to his candidacy.

"I want," he declares firmly "to preserve this kind of traditional American opportunity for all."

Trouble is, it all sounds a little old fashioned and one wonders whether today's "sophisticated" voters who are in the habit of being told that the way to solve any and all problems is to spend government millions will be much interested in the do-it-yourself approach.

WHILE THERE IS CONSIDERABLE to be said in favor of the "welfare state" trend of recent decades, it is an unfortunate fact that self-styled "socially concerned liberals" have not given full recognition to the self-help system and have not recommended it to all who have the ability to make it work.

The world is full of too much "either or" thinking. Actually, we need continued advocacy of the "old fashioned individual initiative way" for those who have what it takes to make it work and, at the same time, we need government social assistance for those who lack the capability and/or determination to "make it on their own."

It would be refreshing to have a man of George Christopher's outlook at the helm of state government, for a change.

Holiday Birds Really Stupid

Those turkeys which are so much a part of our holiday festivities may be quite tasty, but they would never win an IQ test. As bird brains go, turkeys were skimped when Nature distributed the gray matter.

They are so stupid that they must be taught to eat! Otherwise, they are apt to starve to death with food literally beneath their beaks. They often become self-hypnotized and drown in their drinking water.

In a rare lapse of common sense, Benjamin Franklin urged that Mr. Stupid be used in place of the majestic bald eagle on the Great Seal of the United States. Obviously, Franklin never was a turkey farmer.

Bouquets And Brickbats

A BOUQUET to Fairfax on its drive to prevent junk automobiles from accumulating on private property and becoming eyesores.

A BOUQUET to Sabella's Restaurant and its employees for offering time and materials for the benefit of the Cancer Society during the Society's dinner Monday night. All receipts for the evening will go to the Cancer Fund.

BRICKBATS to the rising costs of government, federal, state and local. We feel it in smaller paychecks and bigger tax bites.

BOUQUETS to Marin County supervisors for moving ahead with the much-needed Corte Madera Flood Control project.

A BOUQUET to Richard Dixon, 9, of Marinwood, whose keen sense of smell alerted Pacific Gas & Electric Co. workers to gas seeping from a crack in the sidewalk.

A BOUQUET to Mrs. C. Kenneth Denman of San Rafael, outgoing chairman of the Marin Community Blood Reserve Fund, for her 15 years of volunteer work with the Marin Blood Center.

BOUQUETS to developers who plan to convert the former American Distilling Co. property in Sausalito into a shopping and entertainment complex. Such a development should greatly enhance the appearance of the site.

DOCTORLESS ISLE SMILES AGAIN

After eight months without a doctor, the 900 residents of Tangier Island off the coast of Virginia once again have medical attention.

News broadcasts and amateur radio operators were credited with solving the small island's plight by attracting the interest of a retired doctor.

The fishing community has guaranteed to supply the doctor's annual income and build him a house.

The 54-year-old physician said as he landed: "I'm going to like it here. At first I thought it was the end of the world, but you get used to that fast."

One official described the condition of Tangier without a doctor: "You can't get in a car to drive to a physician's office when illness strikes. Twelve to 15 miles of open water lie between you and the nearest doctor or hospital."

Do not take for granted the advantages of good health, spiritual or temporal, that may be yours. As a follower of the Lord seek to extend the basic requirements of life to those less fortunate.

"Relieve the troubles of my heart, and bring me out of my distress."

(Psalms 24:17)

Inspire me, O divine Physician, to be a source of benefit to all those I can reach.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Liberty Letter Tells Of Plan

Editor, Independent-Journal:

"Liberty Letter", which is published monthly while Congress is in session, says President Johnson plans to slip that Russian consulate bill through Congress if he can. It was defeated last time.

A Russian consulate is a nest of spies anywhere. They say they plan on destroying the Free World and our way of living (and at present they are pretty well doing that.)

Liberty Letter says write your congressman regarding this bill if you're against it, and a voter's letter and ideas do help.

Anonymous Call About Hitler

Editor, Independent-Journal:

After the I-J printed a letter from me concerning our battle with the Red Nazis of Communism, I received an anonymous communication from a person obviously an adherent of the cause of our opponents. It implied that I occupy an anti-Communist stance through a hatred per se of communism; and it quoted a passage from William L. Shirer's book, "The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich", to illustrate that Adolph Hitler shared this hatred.

My anonymous communicant apparently didn't read this book very well, however. He, or she, missed, for instance, a fairly detailed story about the resistance to Hitler's "revolution" coming from the Right Wing of the German Reichstag and the conservatives of Germany. The fight between the Nazis and the Communists was an intramural one, over who would get the drumstick; never did the Communists attempt to end or even divert the anarchic developments; they merely wanted Adolph Hitler's portion (which, by now, they just about have—along with numerous others.)

On page 203 Mr. Shirer refers to the "left wing Nazis". "Nazi" is an abbreviation of the title, National Socialist—just as the "SS" in USSR is an abbreviation for 'Soviet Socialist". Communism, nazism and fascism are only slightly differentiated masks for the same face, that of face-grinding dictatorship.

The myth that communism is something else has been promoted with fair success in our country, largely through the help of a gullible class of pseudo-intellectuals. These have a curious belief that the Wave of the Future is totalitarianism, a system in which they feel they will occupy favored positions due to certain self-adjudged qualifications which they attribute to themselves. . .

On page 216 of Mr. Shirer's book we find that the right was a target for liquidation by Goering and the Gestapo. My anonymous communicant chose this field of debate; let him have the honesty to point out to himself which side he is allied with.

Crusade Drive Was Successful

Editor, Independent-Journal:

The United Crusade and the Marin United Fund are very grateful to the Independent-Journal, for the very fine coverage and excellent support you have given the United Crusade Campaign this year.

There is no question but that the Independent-Journal's strong support contributed materially to this year's successful campaign. Marin raised the greatest amount of money in its history and will show an eleven per cent gain over last year's successful campaign.

The contribution you have made will serve in many ways for people you will never know and whose words of thanks you'll never hear. However, I'm certain you will feel a real sense of satisfaction having helped in this way. . . .

School Bond Issue Stirs Woodacre

Editor, Independent-Journal:

On Feb. 15, the San Geronimo Valley will vote on a bond issue to build a neighborhood primary school in the center of Woodacre. In the usual, democratic fashion, a controversy is raging.

The master plan for the valley proposes that five neighborhood primary schools eventually shall be built and that the presently existing school on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard shall become a junior high school.

If the bond passes, the first of the neighborhood schools would be built on a site in the center of Woodacre, near the Woodacre Improvement Club. Hundreds of children would be able to walk to school and be within the familiar world of the community.

The only other possible sites, which are being considered by those who would vote against the bond in this election, are on the far edge of town, on the highway, and not within walking distance.

The complicated details of cost, etc., that sound so unsettling in a discussion, have been methodically worked out by the school board and the building program on the Woodacre site is considered most feasible.

A very few families would have to remove their homes. This is the most important negative point. But how else can you get a neighborhood school? That is what the controversy is about.

News Needed Of The South

Editor, Independent-Journal:

On Jan. 5, 1966, your paper carried a story on the shooting and killing of Sammy Young.

I have come to believe that that the white Southern bigot knows he can get away with murder, as a result of the latest court trials in Alabama. I feel that you, as a newspaper, can, through your editorials, help solve this problem. I have enclosed a copy of a letter I have sent to President Johnson concerning the Justice Department and him on this subject.

I wish you would do something to inform the public of the situation in Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana and Georgia, rather than just reprint releases from AP and UPI, etc.

Johnson Hints At More Guns, Only A Thin Spread Of Butter

By STERLING F. GREEN
(James Marlow is ill.)

WASHINGTON (AP) — Probably no president ever has avowed more firmly the policy of guns with butter.

"We will not permit those who fire on us in Viet Nam to win a victory over the desires and intentions of the American people," President Johnson promised Congress Wednesday night.

But there were strong hints in his State of the Union message that the country will get a lot more guns and only slightly more butter.

JOHNSON MADE clear his view that, while the nation can afford a record $112.8-billion budget in fiscal 1967, it cannot afford the costlier spread called inflation.

So, if it was a guns-and-butter message, it also was an anti-inflation message —, an elaborately pieced together plan for keeping prices in reasonable restraint while waging a war, without sacrificing home-front progress and without imposing a general tax increase which might precipitate a recession.

To prevent an overheating of the economy in the military buildup phase of 1966, Johnson proposed some fiscal fire extinguishers.

One is an apparently rigorous downhold on domestic spending. He said that while the outlays for Viet Nam will climb another $5.8 billion next year, all other federal spending will rise only $600 million.

JOHNSON REASSURED those who feared that his "Great Society" programs would come under the ax, saying, "I believe we can continue the Great Society while we fight in Viet Nam." But some programs, he admitted, will suffer.

Whatever his budget cuts may be, they cannot cushion the strongly inflationary pressure of an arms program on top of a boom.

So Johnson called also for three special tax actions — to cool the spending fever of industry and consumers during the build-up period.

THEY ARE:

Rescind temporarily the telephone and auto excise tax cuts that took effect 13 days ago.

Alter the income tax withholding system. Instead of withholding 14 per cent from all paychecks, scale the rate up to, say 20 per cent, for higher-paid taxpayers.

Speed up corporation tax payments—not increasing the amount to be paid, but collecting more of it in 1966.

Net result: $4.3 billion removed from the spending stream.

Eventually, the military spending will ease off. Well before the end of fiscal 1967, the government will be in the deflationary posture of taking more money out of the public's pockets than it puts in.

The plan will work, Johnson told Congress, "if you approve every program I recommend."

THERE'S THE catch. Will Congress be willing to revamp the whole tax withholding system for a negligible and temporary revenue gain? Will it renege on the excise cuts and change the tax rules for industry?

Probably not. But Johnson has served notice: If his plan doesn't work, he'll come back for something more drastic — more military appropriations and a real tax increase.

Civil Rights Action Dramatized Struggle

By WHITNEY M. YOUNG JR.

Since a bit of the past is always found in the present and, to some degree, influences the future, it is well to reflect on some of the significant events of 1965 in civil rights—now well-established as America's most serious domestic problem.

On the negative side, there was the unfortunate need for continued demonstrations throughout the South, to dramatize still-entrenched resistance to a new national morality and consensus expressed in the 1964 civil rights law. These demonstrations pointed up continuing reluctance to grant the Negro equal opportunity in voting, and called attention to wanton murders of both white and Negro civil rights workers —murders that revealed congenital cruelty and animal-like behavior on the part of a few citizens.

THE ENTRENCHED resistance was evident also in the tragic lack of courage and conscience on the part of many persons who remained silent.

Still on the negative side, we witnessed a growing tendency in the North to ignore or rationalize overcrowded, unspeakable, segregated housing conditions which inevitably give rise to segregated and inferior schools and inferior community services. Too many people use the riots of '64 and "Watts '65" as excuses to avoid involvement in the struggle, to withdraw from it, and to indict 19-million Negro citizens for the desperate actions of a few.

SERIOUS AS these negatives are, the positive developments of 1965 are more significant and justify the optimism we should feel for the future. Passage of the voting rights bill, I predict, will be the most telling blow against intolerance and bigotry. Since public officials conceive it their first duty to be elected, the greatly increased Negro vote will go far toward discovering decent, moral qualities among present and prospective officeholders.

Affirmative administration actions, supported by the words and deeds of President Johnson, have given a new respectability and urgency to the civil rights issue. The various poverty programs, however unjustly maligned and inadequate, have been meaningful and offer ample evidence of what can be achieved with more experience and resources.

INCREASED CONCERN and positive action by many of the country's leading businesses, though still far from adequate, reflects a turn in the road, not only in employment and training policies, but in the important influence this sector has on community attitudes and institutions.

Most encouraging in 1965 was the desire of Negro citizen to play a constructive role in his own destiny. Evidence showed that ghetto youth, given the opportunity, would rather build than burn, rather work than loaf. Negro adults demonstrated ability and capacity to participate intelligently in policy-making and administration of remedial, corrective, self-help programs.

UNFORTUNATELY, we heard too much of tragedies and cruelties, of the hopeless and the angry. We heard too little of cooperation and successes, of barriers that had been removed, and doors that had been opened.

The past year had its negatives and its positives—which simply means the year had bad people and good people.

Looking to 1966, we have hopes that those who do bad, and those who do nothing—will be outnumbered by the many who do something. This is an opportunity for individuals and for the entire nation.

Unity Period Aims At Understanding

Christian congregations in San Rafael, Terra Linda, Marinwood and Lucas Valley will observe Church Unity Octave beginning Tuesday.

The word "octave" refers to the eight days of the project, a nationwide program aimed at fostering better understanding between Protestants and Catholics and between different Protestant faiths.

In San Rafael, five churches will take part in a series of discussions of their faiths.

The San Rafael unit observation will begin at 8 p.m. Tuesday with a meeting at Angelico Hall, Dominican College, of members from Trinity Lutheran, First Presbyterian, First Methodist, St. Paul's Episcopal and St. Raphael's Roman Catholic churches.

Rev. John Riley, rector of St. Paul's Church will speak on "Our Common Christian Heritage and Our Common Mission in the World."

During the week, 24 informal discussion programs have been scheduled in the San Rafael homes of members of the five congregations at which differences and similiarities of the faiths will be discussed. A minister from one of the churches will be present during the latter part of each discussion.

The closing program will be 8 p.m. Jan. 25 at St. Raphael's auditorium and include a panel discussion with Rev. Miles Riley of St. Raphael's church, Rev. Fred Braunschweiger of Trinity Lutheran Church, laymen Vincent Boyle of St. Raphael's congregation and Richard G. Henika of St. Paul's congregational. The theme will be "Our Common Mission in the World—How to Implement It." Small group discussion periods will follow the panel conference.

Seven churches in the Terra Linda-Marinwood-Lucas Valley area have scheduled services to commemorate the unity period.

The period will open at 8 p.m. Tuesday with a service at St. Isabella's Roman Catholic Church, Terra Linda, with Rev. Edward J. Dingberg, pastor, speaking.

The octave observation will conclude with a service at 8 p.m. Jau. 25 at Christ Presbyterian Church, Terra Linda. Rev. Stuart Anderson, president of the Pacific School of Religion, Berkeley, who was an official observer at the Second Vatican Council in Rome, will be the speaker.

Chruches participating in the observance are Lucas Valley Community Baptist, First Congregational, Episcopal Church of the Nativity; Faith Lutheran, Aldersgate Methodist, St. Isabella's and Christ Presbyterian.

Presbyterian Men of Marin, consisting of men from 11 Presbyterian churches in the county who work in the county, will observe the unity period at a joint meeting with the Serra Club, Catholic men's group, at noon Friday at San Francisco Theological Seminary, San Anselmo.

The program will consist of a panel discussion with Rev. Thomas Kennedy of St. Raphael's Church and Rev. Wesley C. Baker, of the First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael and a member of the Commission on Ecumenical Missions and Relations of the Presbyterian Church.

VINCE GUARALDI
Jazz Master

Trio To Play Jazz Mass

The second performance of the "modern setting for Holy Communion" composed and played by Vince Guaraldi, will be at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 23 at the newly completed Church in Ignacio.

The first performance was in May in Grace Cathedral, San Francisco, with the Guaraldi trio and 65 young singers from San Rafael's St. Paul's Episcopal Church, in a choir conducted by Barry Mineah.

The same combination will perform at the Ignacio Episcopal Church which was completed at the end of the year at what will become the Pacheco Plaza shopping center, 400 Ignacio Boulevard.

Victor of the church, Rev. Charles Gompertz, was the person who suggested to Guaraldi, a Mill Valley resident, that he compose music in the jazz style as counterpoint to the liturgical sound of the choir.

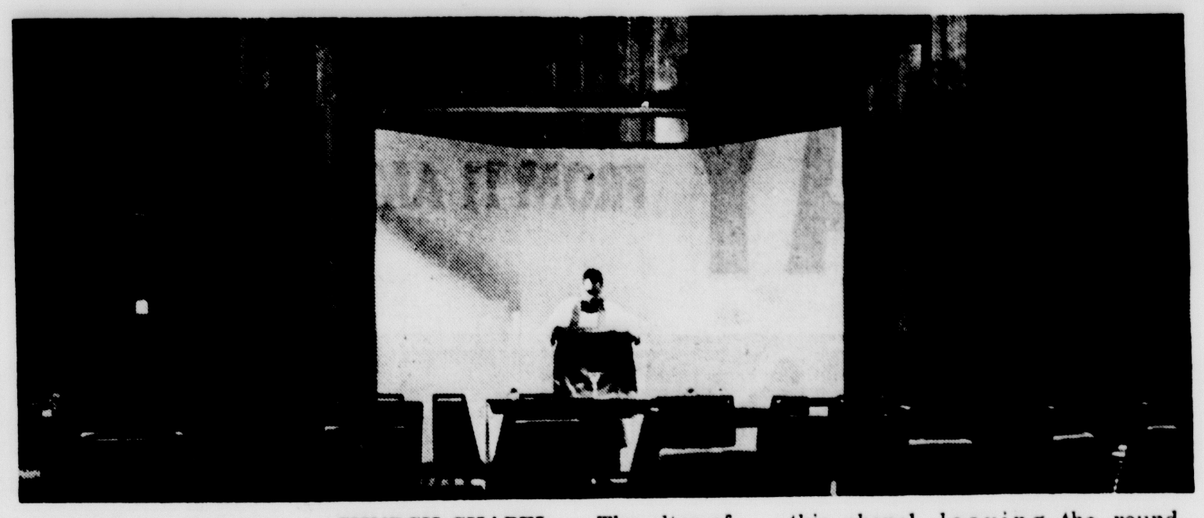
Adherent To Speak On Baha'i Belief

Mrs. Florence V. Mayberry, a traveling teacher for the Baha'i Faith, will be in Marin Wednesday through Sunday to speak on the faith at meetings in members' homes.

Mrs. Mayberry is the auther of children's short stories. She has spoken on the faith in the United States, Canada, Mexico, Latin America and Europe and has held various high posts in the organization.

Slide Show

Slides of the Far East will be shown at a "family night" dinner tomorrow evening at Community Congregational Church, Tiburon.



CHURCH CHAPEL — The alter of the Episcopal Church in Ignacio can be placed behind the closed door of this chapel, leaving the round-shaped interior free for community activities. Rev. Charles Gompertz is at the alter.

Church Built For Community

A church designed for worship and for a variety of uses by the community has opened its doors in Ignacio.

Named just the Church in Ignacio, the Episcopal church on February 1 also will become a nursery school. A portion of the building was constructed to meet state school specifications and a meeting outlining plans of the non-denominational school will be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the church, 400 Ignacio Boulevard. Mrs. Robert Bastain of Belvedere will be acting director of the school.

The building now is surrounded by bare land which is the site of Pacheo Plaza shopping center. The location in the shopping center in an attempt to return the church to the center of community life, church authorities explain.

The building is leased from shopping center developer Walter Kieckhefer of San Rafael, another inovation, as most churches are owned by their congregations with the aid of church governing bodies.

The church designed by Kaya Apaydin, Berkeley architect, has a movable altar which can be placed within a closed chapel, freeing the center of the church for such activities as community meetings, teen-age or adult dances and cultural activities, Rev. Charles Gompertz, rector, explained.

The building is constructed of redwood and of tilt-up concrete slabs with concrete and inlaid stone surfacing in interior and exterior.

READY FOR SERVICE—When the alter (a teak dining room table being used temporarily until "someone gives us an alter," said Rev. Gompertz) is placed in front of the tapestry, the church is ready for a service. The altar can be placed behind the doors at right. The tapestry is from the same looming as those made for the coronation of Queen Elizabeth II.

Clergyman Hopes To Teach, Start A Church In Africa

Rev. Wesley C. Baker of the First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael probably will be teaching in a seminary in Kenya for three months beginning this spring.

Baker, a member of the Presbyerian Church's national commission on Ecumenical Missons and Relations, has been asked Latin America and Europe and terian seminary at Limuru, Kenya.

He is expected to teach practical theology, a church administration at St. Paul's Theological College. He now teaches the same courses at San Francisco Theological Seminary, San Anselmo.

Baker plans to travel to Kenya with his wife and three teenage children if he can finance the trip. "I'll save, scrimp and borrow what is not given," he said. The work under the commission, coordinated with the National Conference of Churches, is financed by donations.

Rev. Baker, if he gets enough money for the trip, also would help establish a bilingual Negro-white congregation in Nairobi. He would be in the country from April 20 to July 15.

Benefit Dinner

The San Rafael Ward of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints will sponsor a public crab dinner from 7-9 p.m. next Saturday at the church at Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Bon Aire Road. Proceeds will go toward construction of a new church on San Pedro Road, San Rafael.

PRIEST FINDS THUMBS UP WAY TO MASS

NEW YORK (AP)—A Seattle Roman Catholic priest found a way of getting to Mass on time last Sunday in traffic tangled New York City.

Rev. Francis J. Greene, S. J., had to hitch-hike 20 miles to St. Mary's Church in the Bronx, where he says Mass weekly. He is doing graduate work at New York University.

Around his neck he hung a hand-lettered sign:

"Get me to the church on time."

Someone did.

Assembly Of God Has Junior Church

The Southern Marin Assembly of God in Mill Valley has established a junior church for boys and girls aged seven to 13.

Junior church services are held Sundays from 11 a.m. to noon at the church at East Blithedale and Sycamore avenues.

Mission Becomes Episcopal Parish

St. Francis ogf Assisi Episcopal Church in Novato was organized as a parish, raising it from mission status, at a congregation meeting this week.

Incumbent Rev. Lloyd F. Gebhart was elected first rector of the parish and will be installed following a diocesan convention in February, where the parish will be officially approved.

M. Dunn Knight III was elected senior warden of the vestry at the congregation meeting. St. Francis Mission was organized in 1948 and its first services were held in the Novato Community House. The congregation has constructed a church at Fifth Street and Grant Avenue.

SEMINARY POST — Stanton H. Nash (above) will become temporary director of public relations at Golden Gate Baptist Seminary, Strawberry, after the resignation last week of Carl M. Halvarson effective in March. Halvarson, of Mill Valley, gave family medical problems as his reason for leaving. Nash, of San Rafael, has been Halvarson's assistant for development at the seminary since March of last year.

Guest Preacher

Rev. Randolph C. Miller, professor of Christian education at Yale Divinity School, will preach at the 11 a.m. service tomorrow at St. John's Episcopal Church, Ross.

Evangelists

The Hutchison Evangelistic Party will hold their final evangelistic services at1 1 a.m. and 7 p.m. tomorrow at the San Rafael Assembly of God Church, 517 D Street.

Archbishop To Confer With Pope

LONDON (AP) — The archbishop of Canterbury, primate of the Church of England, will visit Pope Paul VI in Rome March 23.

The archbishop, Dr. Michael Ramsey, will talk with the Pope about matters arising from the recent Vatican Council. Among these is the new attitude of the Roman Catholic Church toward other Christian churches, which it calls the "separated Brethren."

Dr. Ramsey will be the second archbishop of Canterbury to visit the headquarters of Roman Catholicism since the Church of England broke with Rome in the 16th century. The first was Archbishop Geoffrey Fisher, who was received by Pope John XXIII in 1960.

The Church of England broke away from Rome in the 16th century during the reign of King Henry VIII.

Ecumenical Moves Gaining Impetus

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Progress is being achieved in a task that once appeared hopeless, the task of reuniting the church.

Next week is "a week of prayer for Christian unity." Millions of Protestants and Catholics will participate in joint prayer services, Bible study, discussions and other activities in which they'll get to know one another not as "those people" but as fellow Christians.

When this annual week of prayer was initiated 20 years ago, it was regarded as a far-fetched idea. Why should Catholics and Protestants pray for unity when they couldn't even deal civilly with one another?

Today it seems so natural for Catholics and Protestants to be praying together that one is surprised to learn that this will be the first year in which they've had a common prayer booklet to use at Unity Week services.

Last month, Pope Paul VI participated in a joint worship service with Protestant leaders who attended the Vatican Ecumenical Council as observers. No Pope had done such a thing since the Reformation.

A few days later, at simultaneous ceremonies in Rome and Istanbul, the Pope and the ecumenical Patriarch of the Orthodox communion rescinded the exchange of excommunications which separated the eastern half of the church from the western half in the great schism of 1054 A. D.

In the United States during the past year, high-level theological discussions were started, on a continuing basis, between Catholics and Episcopalians, Catholics and Lutherans, Catholics and Presbyterians, Catholics and Orthodox.

Within the Protestant fold, six major denominations made so much progress in their "consultation on church union" that they instructed a drafting committee to present a formal merger plan for consideration at a meetiug in Dallas in April.

Less dramatic but possibly even more important in the long run were ecumenical movements on the local level. In hundreds of U.S. communities, Protestants and Catholics worked together on civic projects, cooperated in a common fight against racial sat down together to talk over their differences.

One of the most successful experiments in bringing the ecumenical movement down to the grass roots was carried out in Worcester, Mass., where more than 100 small groups of Catholics and Protestants,numbering 12 to 15 perosns each, met in the living rooms of private homes to discover from frank and friendly conversation not only where they differ but also what they have in common as Christians.

(This is the plan which some San Rafael churches will follow.)

The "Worcester plan" worked so well that a major effort will be made during the coming year to extend it to other communities across the country.

Organic reunion in one great church still looks like a distant goal. Pope Paul acknowledged this in his talk to Protestant observers last month.

"A great stretch of the road remains ahead of us," he said.

But, the Pope added:

"We have begun to love one another."

WITH THEIR KEEN interest in and knowledge of the Orient and Japanese gardening, it is not surprising that bonsai has been a specialty of Sylvia and Samuel Newsom in their The Greenwood Tree nursery in Mill Valley. Mill Valley's Sam'l And Sylvia Newsom

Busy Pair Do Everything From Tour Guiding To Book Writing

By CONNIE RICHARDSON

The next time you stroll through the famed Japanese Tea Garden in San Francisco's Golden Gate Park, take a special look at its most recently completed addition—an impressive new waterfall.

It is the work of a Marinite, Samuel Newsom, landscape designer, author and proprietor of The Greenwood Tree in Mill Valley.

Newsom was selected to supervise the construction of the waterfall by its donor, Dr. Hugh Fraser of Oakland, and in April it will be formally dedicated to the memory of the doctor's late wife.

NEWSOM SAYS the tea garden project involved the bringing in of some 20 rocks that weighed about two tons each.

"So when we talk about rockwork here, we are talking about walls of rocks."

To his friends, Samuel Newsom is known as Sam'l.

He explains: "My dad signed his name that way, so after he died, mother asked me to do the same."

HIGHLY knowledgeable about the culture and the people of the Far East, Newsom was introduced to people of Oriental ancestry at an early age because his mother taught English classes for them in her home.

The senior Newsom was a Bay Area architect who designed some of the older churches of Berkeley and Oakland as well as the San Francisco homes of such families as the De Youngs and the Spreckels.

He also built the famed "gingerbread house" in Eureka, which cost $5,000 for paint alone, and is now a lumbermen's club.

DESPITE ALL this activity, the Newsoms did not attain riches. "It was either feast or famine in the architecture business," says Newsom.

"My grandfather was a pioneer nurseryman in Oakland and I worked for him until the depression of the 1930s sunk us," Samuel Newsom says. "Then I went to Japan in 1934 because there was no adequate publication on Japanese gardens; and the Society for International Cultural Relations was so pleased at my interest in landscaping from the viewpoint of a dirt gardener, they subsidized five years' study there. I ended up writing a book."

This volume, "Japanese Garden Construction," retailed for $100 when published in Tokyo in 1939. It is now out of print and the remaining copies are not for sale.

UPON COMPLETION of World War II service as an intelligence officer, Newsom began landscaping in Marin under his own name.

"It was complicated and horribly expensive," he recalls. "For example, one naturalistic garden I designed in Belvedere took a year and a half to complete."

Samuel Newsom met his wife, the former Sylvia Bowditch of Boston, in 1947, and they started a bonsai nursery in Mill Valley at El Paseo in 1951.

"WE WERE about to name it the Green Bay Tree, as there was a magnificent one there," says Newsom. "Only someone pointed out a mention in the Bible of evil associated with bay trees. So we chose the name from Shakespeare's 'As You Like It.' A song in the second act begins: 'Under the greenwood tree, who loves to lie with me.'

"Quite another feeling," smiles Newsom.

The Greenwood Tree has been located in Mill Valley Plaza for five years.

Newsom offers his opinion of one aspect of the Japanese philosophy: "In the Orient, particularly Japan, Nature is stronger than Man. We, on the other hand, try to fight Nature. They believe in relaxing with Nature."

SAMUEL NEWSOM admits his nursery and gift shop are off the main tourist track. "This is a store for home folks. Only good eggs come in here," he smiles.

The sensation upon entering through the green coolness of the nursery is one of controlled orderliness. All objects are beautiful and effectively displayed, and something of the mystery associated with faraway places seems to cling to the air.

An important shipment of ceramics from the island port of Imari was being unpacked. Representative selections of Iro-Nabeshima were also arrived.

"THE DIFFERENCE between the Nabeshima and Imari types is mainly that the latter is covered with designs and the Nabeshima usually has uncovered areas," explains Newsom. "The Japan Tourist Library No. 8 contains good descriptions of these ceramics, which are still made in the old 17th century manner. In fact, we met the twelfth generation of artisans on our last trip."

"Trip" refers to the Garden and Festival Tour conducted by the Newsoms annually, alternating between spring and fall.

"The 1965 tour was in May, to see the azaleas, which are perfect at that time."

"BRADEN TOUREAST, of San Francisco, first asked me to take groups to Japan and the Far East in 1961," Newsom relates. "Fundamentally, they are garden tours, with visits to old architecture, castles, folk art museums, etc., staying in modern hotels and Japanese Inns—to get the flavor of country life. We crossed the Inland Sea to Shikoku Island to see The Garden of the Squirrel Forest, in the center of which is a huge pond surrounded by hills covered with masses of multicolored azaleas."

A brochure mentions such destinations as Tokyo, Hong Kong, Bangkok, Kyoto, Nikko, Kamakura and Hakone. The schedule for fall, '66, is now being compiled.

"Last year, our children and home were cared for by the Al Klyces."

"Al is a builder," says Newsom. "He went to Japan to learn carpentering, met a beautiful Japanese girl in Kyoto and they married and now have a young son."

THE NEWSOMS' children are Sylvia (Chips), 13, and Sam, 10. The parents speak Japanese; he fluently.

"My wife is the expert on grammar," says Newsom. "And the children can get by pretty well. So this year, we will take them along, leaving them with Japanese friends while Sylvia and I continue touring. Sylvia is the tour photographer," he adds.

Samuel Newsom met his wife after she became a frequent visitor to Mill Valley. After graduation from Bryn Mawr College, Sylvia came to California to visit. She was persuaded by friends to stay and began work at the University of California Hospital in San Francisco.

HER JOB was operating a then new diagnostic tool, the electro-encephalograph, a technique she mastered in Boston. Sylvia's San Francisco home was the residence of Mrs. Valborg Gravander.

Asked what attracted him to Sylvia, Samuel speaks thoughtfully: "My wife has a quality, very rare in people. She goes out of her way for everybody."

Her friends say that when Sylvia's around, everyone feels good.

THE M. P. Dillinghams of Mill Valley chose the Newsom trip as their first guided tour and labeled it "stupendous"; not the least reason for this feeling being the "simply delightful tour directors."

Others are pleased to recall their pleasure in traveling with the Newsoms. Mrs. Harriette Lewis of Belvedere was particularly happy.

"Having traveled for 30 years, I had been to Japan," she says, "but never to spend so much time. They are perfectly delightful people and the tour well above average. Mr. Newsom knows such a lot of old legends and has a charming way of telling them. The places were very well chosen, with much variety."

FRANCESCA LIVERMORE, also of Mill Valley, found it a tour which contrasted with her tours to Europe: "I enjoyed the country and places where we stayed. Europe was all so noisy; it was difficult to sleep."

"The Newsoms made the whole thing just live," says Mrs. Rodney E. Boone of Belvedere. "He loves the country and made it mean much to all of us. He was so delightful when he told the old legends on the bus; then, when we got to the places he talked about, it really meant something. He would show us a garden pond, kneel down, and, by splashing water over the stones, make them come alive."

Sylvia tells how she met Sam'l: "Friends invited me to go to Yosemite for a weekend. Sam'l was in the party."

CONTINUING, Sylvia recalls how Mama Gravender accompanied Sam'l by auto cross-country to New Hampshire where the wedding took place. "I'm not sure he would have made it, were it not for Mama," Sylvia laughs.

What made her decide he was the one? "His intelligence, his imagination. And he is far more knowledgeable than I in all sorts of things," she answers.

The Newsom family lived in an attractive converted barn on Eugene Avenue in Mill Valley which Samuel persuaded "Grandpa" Klyce to part with.

"After the war, there was no housing and not much building either," he explains. "I asked Grandpa if he had any barns and he said: 'You and everyone else around here wants a barn.' After I got him to sell one to me, his son Mel and I worked on it for six months. It had nice lines and we have added a Japanese garden."

SAMUEL NEWSOM'S latest book was recently published in Tokyo by the Tokyo News Service Ltd. Entitled "A Japanese Garden Manual for Westerners—Basic Design and Construction," it is a follow-up to his "Dwarf Trees Manual for Westerners," now in its fifth edition.

The new book contains many color plates by Sylvia Newsom as well as over 80 drawings and diagrams by the author.

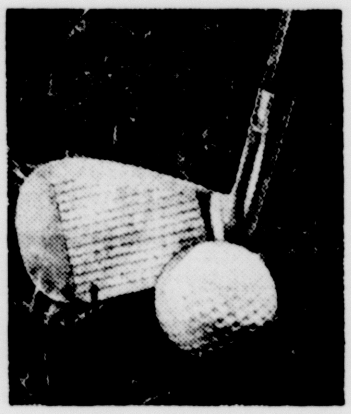
THE STORY OF the two dons and the bear has become a Marin County classic. When the bruin began mauling the big Irishman, Don Timoteo Murphy, his slighter friend of Spanish ancestry, Don Domingo Sais, went to his assistance. The intervention perhaps saved the life of Murphy, a prominent figure in Marin history. But it won Don Domingo, also a member of one of Marin's leading early-day families, no thanks from the Irish don. The drawing is by Paul Miller. Independent-Journal Historian Florence Donnelly tells the story of the Sais family in the article that begins below.



Marinspiration is a lot of things.

San Rafael Park among them.

It's rolling green hills, the bay, sandy beaches, quaint little towns, exciting restaurants, intriguing shops, fine golf courses, challenging hiking trails, incomparable sailing, renowned state parks, groves of towering redwoods and some of the finest homes anywhere including those of San Rafael Park, 20 minutes from downtown San Francisco. THE SAIS STORY

They Ruled Valley In Which Fairfax, San Anselmo Lie

(Editor's Note: This is another in a series of articles written especially for the Marin Magazine by Independent-Journal Historian Florence Donnelly on the pioneer residents and early-day events of Marin County. This week she writes of the Sais family.)

By FLORENCE DONNELLY
Independent-Journal Historian

As my introduction to the Sais family of Marin, let me re-tell a "bear story" as it was originally related by Steve Richardson, son of Capt. William A. Richardson, grantee of Rancho Saucelito.

Principals in the story were two famous early-day Marin dons — men who were as unlike in racial background, disposition and physique as could be imagined, and yet were close friends.

ONE OF THE figures in this story was Don Domingo Sais, grantee of Canada de Herrera, a slightly built man whose ancestors came from Castile, Spain. The other was Don Timoteo Murphy, a huge fellow and a native of Ireland.

Don Timoteo's land grant, Santa Margarite, Las Gallinas and San Pedro, adjoined Don Domingo's.

On with the bear story: Don Domingo and Don Timoteo were riding their horses one day in San Anselmo Valley when they saw a bear on the hillside. Don Timoteo, a great hunter, decided to bag the bear. Don Domingo, more cautious and wiser, pointed out the extreme danger, but the enthusiasm of his friend won him over.

A METHOD OF attack was agreed upon. They approached the bear from opposite sides. Don Timoteo first tried to throw his riata over the animal's head, but missed. Don Domingo, however, succeeded in getting his rope around the hind leg of the bear.

Then Don Timoteo's horse, frightened, reared and fell backwards, throwing its rider.

Don Timoteo had barely regained his feet when the infuriated bear was on him, clawing at his back, then attempting to crush him. Bravely, Don Domingo jumped from his horse and lashed the bear across the head with his quirt.

NOW, DISTRACTED, the bear turned to attack Don Domingo. And then Don Timoteo clamped his large hands over the bear's muzzle. Man and bear rolled down the hill, sometimes with the bruin on top, sometimes with the don on top. Finally the two crashed into a boulder, and the bear took off for the hills.

Don Timoteo's wounds were dressed by his friend. Huge pieces of skin had been ripped from his back. Only quick action by Don Domingo, plus the heavy leather coat the Irishman was wearing, saved his life.

And what thanks did the smaller man get from his Irish friend?

STEVE RICHARDSON used to chuckle as he recalled Don Timoteo's remark to his friend after all the excitement was over.

"Domingo," admonished Timoteo, "you Spanish are well-meaning people. But never again, as long as you live, mix in an Irishman's fight."

Another article later will deal with the story of Don Timoteo and his nephew, John Lucas.

THE SAIS name has been a proud and important one in Marin County. Among those who carried it were Dominga Sais, pictured here with her husband Joseph Bresson. She was the youngest daughter of Don Domingo Sais, grantee of Canada de Herrera where San Anselmo and Fairfax are now located.

But this is the story of the Saises.

The distinguished name of Sais has been perpetuated by a large family.

THE GENEALOGY is difficult to follow because of the variations in the spelling of the surname. Sais also appears in legal documents as Saez, Sainz and Saenz.

Justo Nazario Saez and his wife, the former Maria Micaela Sotelo, came to California from Mexico and settled in Monterey. This was sometime after 1772.

One of their several sons, Juan, was born in Monterey in 1779. Juan married Dominga Valenzuela. This information is given in the Vallejo documents, Volume 15, Bancroft Collection, at the University of California. Justo Nazario Saez and his wife are both entered in the padron of 1790 as Espanoles — that is, they were of pure Spanish blood.

JUSTO NAZARIO Saenz was listed as a soldado de cuerpo in Monterey in 1782. After his army service was over, Justo and his family lived at the pueblo in San Jose. The surname was changed to Sais to make it more easily pronounced.

For much of this information I am indebted to Mrs. J. E. (Elsie) Mazzini of San Rafael, a direct descendant of Justo, Juan and Domingo Sais, and to Helen Van Cleave Park, like Mrs. Mazzini a member of Marin County Historical Society.

Juan and Dominga Sais were parents of many children, among them Domingo, who was born in 1805. He was a soldier at the presidio at Yerba Buena San Francisco from 1826 to 1833, and later a member of the militia. From 1837 to 1839 he was an elector and regidor at the pueblo. His wife was the former Manuella Augustina Miranda.

LEGEND HAS it that Domingo first came to the Marin shore on a raft which floated from the presidio to Big Rock off Punta Quentin (San Quentin). When

The Sais Family Of Marin

the tide turned, Domingo freed the raft and it floated on to the point.

He was not harmed by the Indians who had a rancheria near the point nor by those who lived on the rancheria, which he decided to own. His own first dwelling was built of tules gathered from a pond where the section later known as Lansdale was located.

Domingo was delighted with the land. The hillsides were covered with redwoods and oaks and the valley was fertile. Domingo's second house to which he brought his wife and family, was a large hacienda on a knoll in what is now San Anselmo along the south side of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

IN RETURN FOR his services in the military and as a public official, on Aug. 10, 1839, Domingo Sais was granted two square leagues. This included what is now San Anselmo and Fairfax. He called the grant Canada de Herrera (Vale of the Blacksmiths).

The eldest daughter, Vincenta, (Vicci) was born in Yerba Buena in 1837. Soon there were many other sons and daughters to fill the hacienda with music and laughter.

Don Domingo devoted his time to improving his ranch and his hacienda of adobe (which was named La Pavidion), to stocking his rancho with cattle, horses and sheep, to tilling the valley to raise food for his family and his stock, and to hunting and fishing to fill the larder.

AS HIS SONS grew older, they assisted him. The girls and their mother carded wool after the sheep shearing, knitted and beautified their dresses with delicate Spanish lace. Often the gowns were silk brought by ships from the Orient.

Don Domingo and his family entertained in the Hispanic manner, opening their hacienda for fiestas to which were invited not only family and friends but also strangers who came to Marin.

One of these, J. E. Flatt, wrote to George McQuigg of Barton, N.Y., on Jan. 2, 1851:

"In San Rafael (probably at the hacienda of Don Timoteo Murphy) we had a fat calf for dinner and at night such a fandango. I must tell you about it. After dinner Domingo Sais told us there would be a general gathering at his casa, saying his senoritas wanted to dance.

"WE ALL WENT out to the rancho in the evening and sure enough the senoritas were there. Who would not fall in love with the California girls, even though he knew the girls in Barton? Here the dear creatures with their raven locks and round, beautiful faces meet you at the door with a buenos dias, senor, and oh—what smiles.

"We found the company seated around the room, most of them on the floor. It would enchant the ladies of New York to see one of our belles step out on the floor, throw her head back, spread her gown out on each side to show her pretty feet and ankles, and dance."

The writer also told of the lovely "forms" of the senoritas and concluded with an account of the feast served, saying: "Thus passed the first day of the New Year."

THE HAPPY, carefree days at the Sais hacienda were over when Don Domingo was killed by a fall from a horse in 1853.

Don Domingo's widow owned the original park in Fairfax, 65 acres of which she rented for picnics. After the railroad was built thousands of people came by train to dance and picnic in the park during the summer and early fall. Mrs. Sais held that property until she died Sept. 6, 1891.

The first division of the Sais

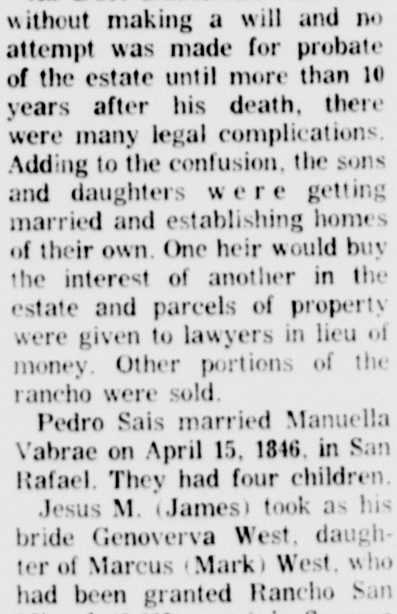
KATARINA SAIS Andrews, known as Cassie, was yet an-

W. Taliaferro, a Virginian, bought from Don Domingo Sais 45 acres on which he built a hunting lodge. The good doctor, who served as the first physican at San Quentin Prison, had a house and office in San Rafael and cared for the sick in all parts of Marin. He had come to California in 1849 and was one of 75 members of the Virginia Company which had sailed from the James River in Virginia on the ship Glenmore.

ANOTHER MEMBER of the Virginia Company, which had come to California to seek a fortune in the gold fields, and the doctor's long-time friend, was Charles Snowden Fairfax (Lord Fairfax). Soon after arrival in California, the company disbanded, selling the ship and cargo at a great loss. Dr. Taliaferro came to Marin soon after his arrival in California.

After Charlie Fairfax married Ada Benham in January of 1855, the property, which now belongs to the Marin Town and Country Club, was transferred by Dr.

ALBERT SAIS was a son of Genoverva West Sais and her second husband,



Taliaferro to Lord and Lady Fairfax.

Don Domingo and his wife had six children—Vicenta (Vicci), Pedro, Jesus M. (James), Mana Dolores (Laula), Mana de la Luce (Lucinda) and Dominga. The latter was the only one of minor age at the time of her father's death.

AS DON DOMINGO had died without making a will and no attempt was made for probate of the estate until more than 10 years after his death, there were many legal complications. Adding to the confusion, the sons and daughters were getting married and establishing homes of their own. One heir would buy the interest of another in the estate and parcels of property were given to lawyers in lieu of money. Other portions of the rancho were sold.

Pedro Sais married Manuella Vabrae on April 15, 1846, in San Rafael. They had four children.

Jesus M. (James) took as his bride Genoverva West, daughter of Marcus (Mark) West, who had been granted Rancho San Miguel (6,663 acres) in Sonoma by Governor Alvarado in 1855. His wife was the former Guadalupe Vasquez. They were the parents of Frances, Domingo, Eva, Genoverva, Katarina (Cassie) and Felix.

Mana Dolores (Laula) became the bride of Juan Peralta, whose family had been granted Rancho Buaccocha in North Marin.

THE ELDEST daughter, Vicenta (Vicci) had married Salvador Pacheco, also born in Yerba Buena. He and his wife made their home on the Pacheco Ranch. They had three children.

Crane, uncle of Warren and William Crane of San Rafael.

Mana de Luce (Lucinda) Sais became the bride of Gregorio Ocana at a ceremony in San Rafael.

Dominga, the youngest daughter of Don Domingo, was married to Joseph Bresson, who had a ranch of 775 acres in San Geronimo Valley. A daughter, Louise, makes her home in San Gabriel.

BECAUSE OF various land transactions involving Canada de Herrera and the resulting confusion, the heirs of the estate petitioned for a survey. This was made by Hiram Austin, Marin County surveyor, in 1868.

Deeds and quit claim indentures were drawn for all the heirs. Also included were others who had bought portions of the property. As had happened in so many other ranchos, squatters had moved onto the land without any legal right.

A drought plagued Marin. Crops dried in the field and there was no feed for the livestock. As a result, land values dropped, sometimes to as low as a dollar or four bits an acre. It was almost a miracle that Don Domingo's widow managed to hold onto her small parcel of land from the original grant.

RETURNING TO the family history of Jesus (James Sais):

Frances was married to John H. Clark of San Rafael. They had 10 children, and surviving are Henrietta, George, Maud, Pauline and Arline.

Domingo married a cousin, Cosmos Sais.

Eva married Adolph Koenig. Their son, Adolph Koenig, lives in the family home in San Rafael.

Genoverva became Mrs. Garcia. A son, Leslie Garcia, is a resident of Santa Cruz.

In 1896, Katharina (Cassie) became the wife of George R. Phillipas. After his death, she married Richard Andrews. The only surviving member of their family is Mrs. J. E. Mazzini of San Rafael.

FELIX SAIS, for many years a San Rafael resident and member of its volunteer fire department, was married to Anna Gagliardi. Their daughters are Grace Sais Fisher of Albany and Gertrude Sais Heim of Southern California.

To further complicate the genealogy, after the death of Jesus (James) Sais, his widow, Genoverva, married another Sais, William, a nephew of Don Domingo. One of their three sons, Edward Sais, married Anna Carlson. Their daughter, Violet Sais Haller, is a San Rafael resident. Her brother, Albin Sais, makes his home in El Cerrito.

It is sad to realize that all that remains of the vast land grant awarded to Don Domingo Sais are the names of three avenues, Dominga in Fairfax, named for the youngest daughter, and Sais Avenue and Camino de Herrera Avenue, formerly Canada de Herrera, in San Anselmo.

The family, itself, however, has left its imprint indelibly upon Marin County history. The name Sais is one of those that must be considered first and foremost among those hardy and farsighted people who built Marin into what it is today.

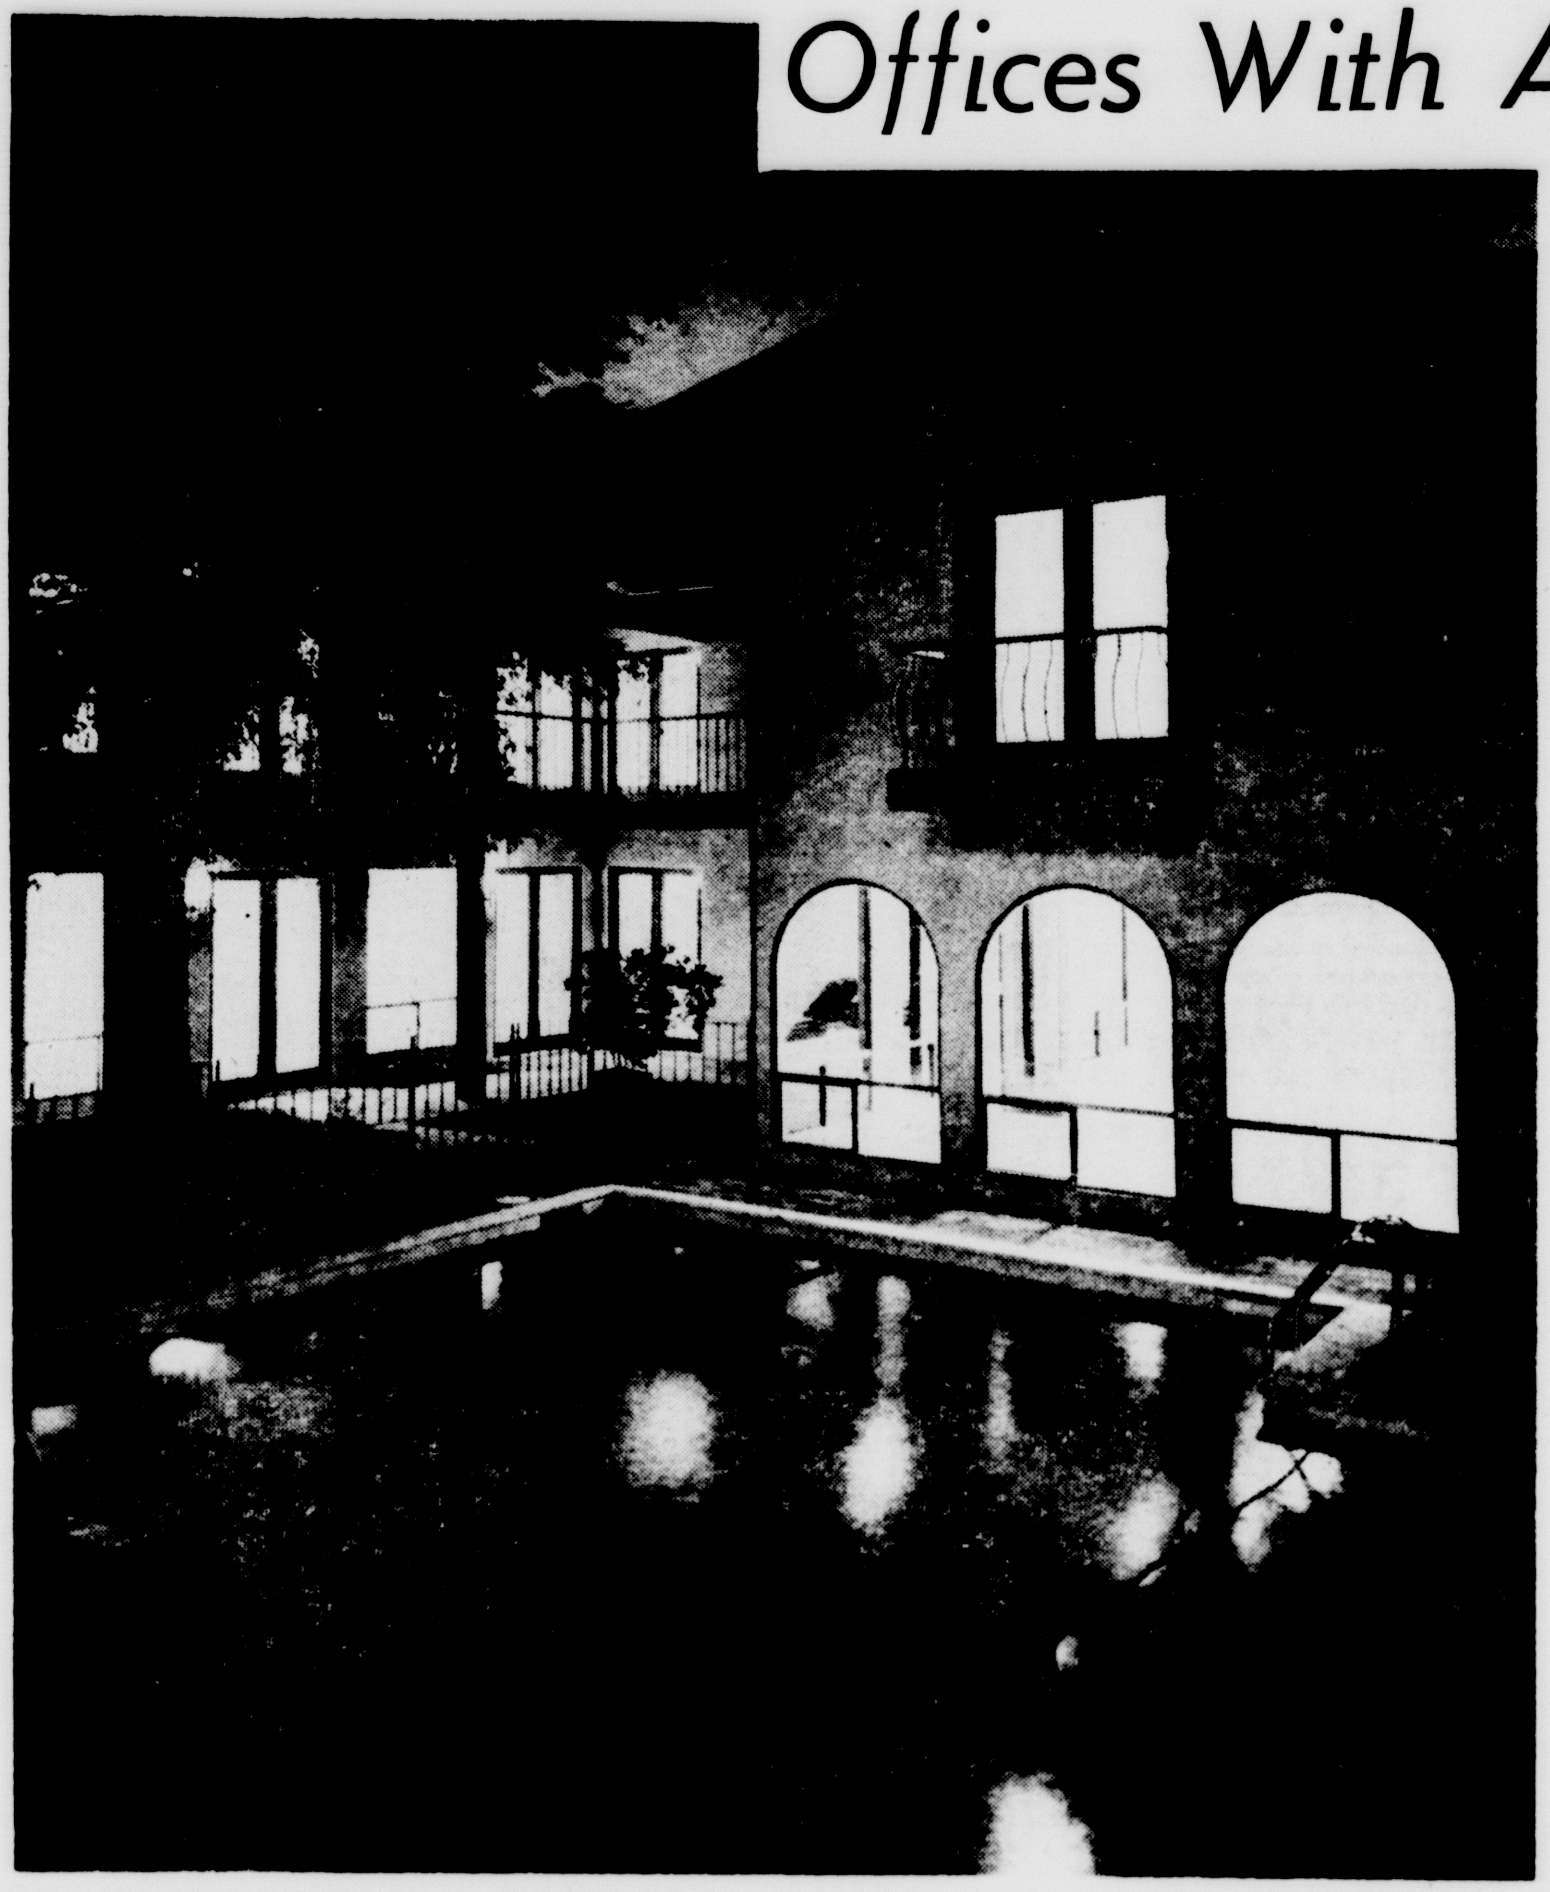
Offices With A Pool—

There's A Spanish Air To Complex



HOW MANY office buildings do you find with full-size swimming pools? But, as this photo shows, the pool and its courtyard setting fits in well with the Mediterranean design of San Anselmo's new Essex Square. Dressing room and shower facilities are also provided for tenants.
(Photos by Dandelet)

Real estate broker Phyllis Steckel says the new Essex Square, which she co-owns with builder Bruce Wolper, at 412 Redhill, San Anselmo, "is the only commercial building of its kind in Marin County that offers its tenants a full-sized, heated and filtered swimming pool."

For the further pleasure of the occupants, dressing rooms and showers are located near the pool.

SWIMMING facilities, however, are not the only unusual feature of the new office complex of three buildings.

Attracting equal attention is the Mediterranean manner in which the complex is laid out and designed.

Marin Living

The buildings surround a brick courtyard in which is located the aforementioned pool.

Curved arches, wrought-iron railings, balconies, gaslight fixtures, heavy beam ceilings are other features that add to the Mediterranean or Spanish feeling.

THE UNUSUAL concept for business office housing is described by its real estate broker-co-owner as "my dream come true."

She explains: "I have always loved old California history, and have wanted to construct a building that would be in keeping with the history and traditions of the picturesque past of Marin County."

Essex Square is that, she feels.

Mrs. Steckel deplores "the lack of imagination" that has, she feels, been displayed in many other commercial structures throughout the county.

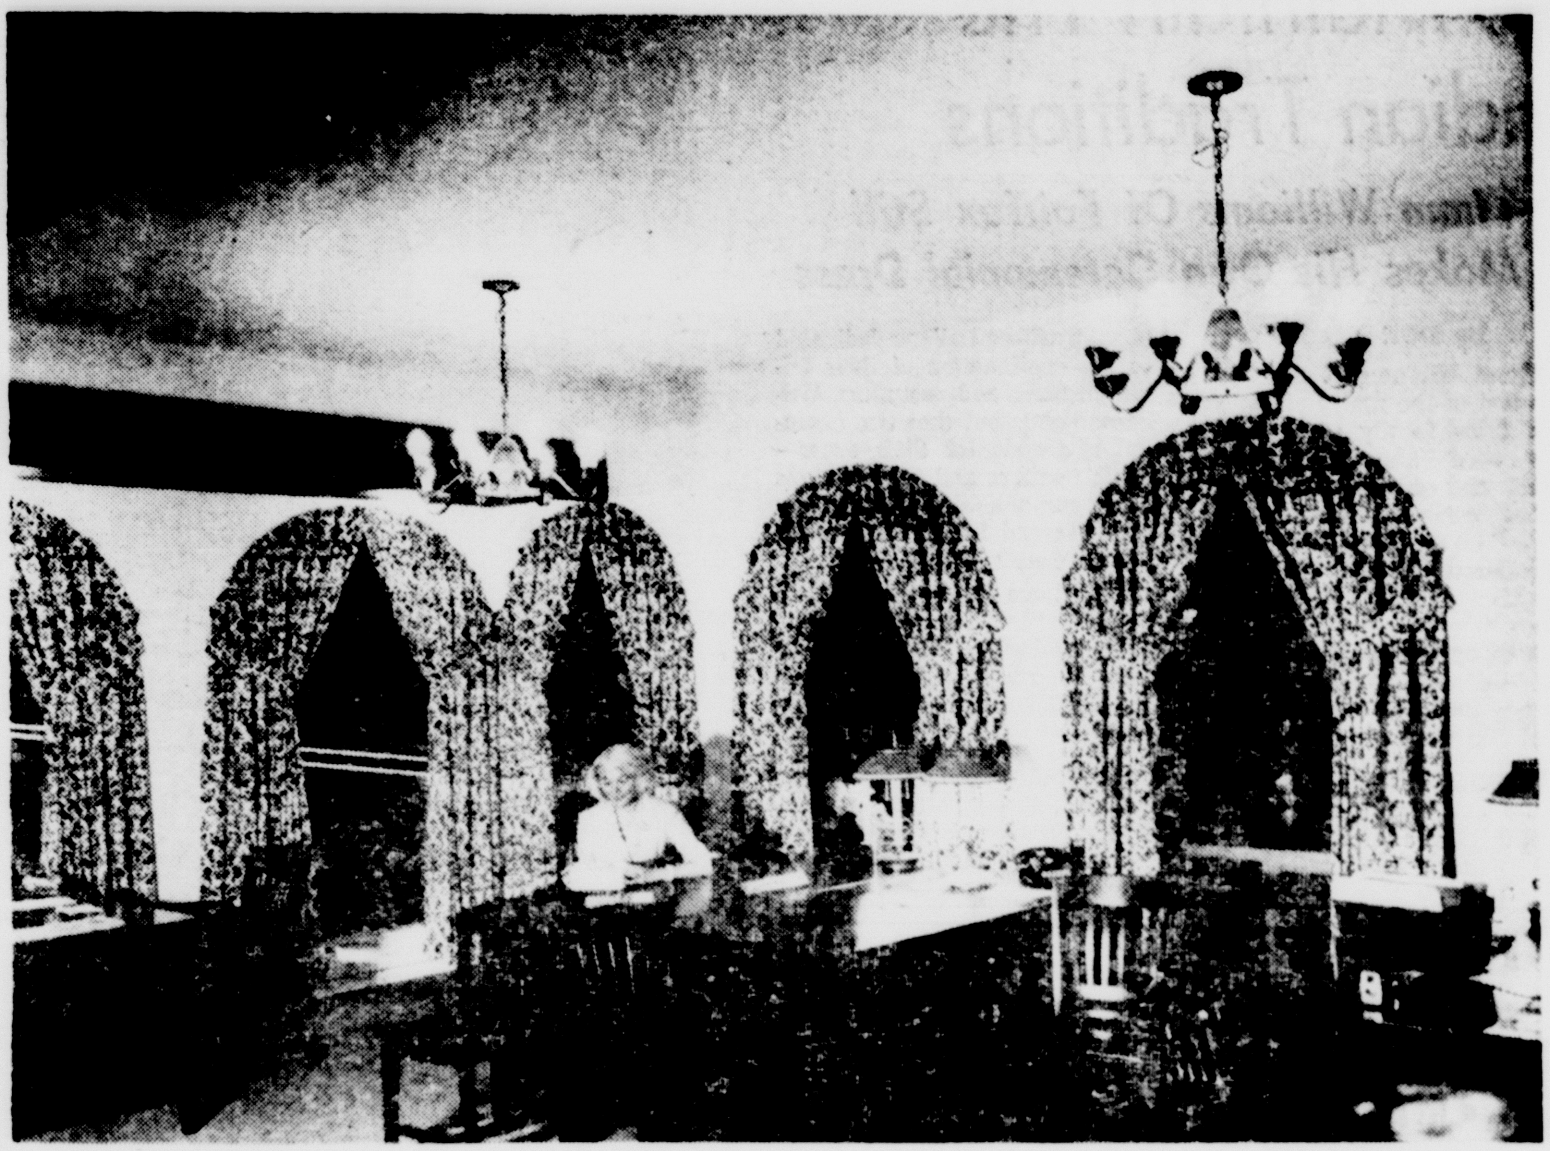
IN KEEPING with the design of the complex, Mrs. Steckel has decorated her own realty offices located there in Spanish decor.

Wall-to-wall carpeting is crimson. Decks and furniture are ebony, with bright red lamps. Chandeliers are pewter. The draperies, curved to fit the windows, are black and white printed, handloomed fabric.

Displayed on the white wall is a large antique world map. On another wall is a large old brass clock.

MRS. STECKEL describes her office suite as "pleasant and homelike."

And she takes pride in the wedding of modern convenience with the charm of California's proud, early heritage that she and builder Wolper have accomplished.



IN KEEPING with the Mediterranean design of the complex, real estate broker Phyllis Steckel has decorated her offices in Essex Square which she co-owns in Spanish decor. Whites, blacks and bright reds predominate. The building design and her office decoration, she says, reflect her long interest in early California history and traditions.

BALCONIES, wrought iron rails and appropriate plantings are among the techniques that have been used to give San Anselmo's Essex Square its distinctive Old California flavor.

One Man's Efforts To Maintain The Indian Traditions

Timm Williams Of Fairfax Still Makes His Own Ceremonial Dress

By DON KEOWN

Timm Williams of Fairfax is the last of the males of his Yurok Tribe family to engage in the once almost mandatory craft and custom of making tribal ceremonial costumes.

He does so, Williams says, "in an effort to maintain some recognition of our status as Indians."

Such an effort is not an easy one, he says, in the face of a society that "is based almost entirely on the American dollar."

"THERE ISN'T much money to be made in the keeping of traditions," he says sadly.

As examples of the obstacles faced by those Indians dedicated to the continuation of their tribal customs and costumes, Williams points out that two essential materials for their dress—eagle feathers and otters — are no longer available to them except "second hand," as the result of conservation laws.

"I believe in conservation," he says. "But I believe the Indians' religious rights should also be recognized. And our ceremonial dress is part of our religion."

WILLIAMS, widely known as Prince Lightfoot, official mascot of the Stanford University athletic teams, has three costumes, all made by him.

FAWN MORRIS of San Anselmo models a Yurok Indian costume that took her mother, Ethel Williams of Crescent City, shown with her, about three years to complete with the help of her late husband, Harry Williams. This elaborate dress is for the ceremonial brush dance, and is valued at between $1,500 and $2,000. The blouse with beaded necklace is of leather; the wrap-around buckskin skirt is decorated with abalone shells and with smaller shells and pine cone seeds that rattle as the wearer dances. All shells had to be matched, hand drilled, cut for size and polished for an even pattern. Mrs. Williams is one of the few women of her tribe still practicing the ancient crafts necessary in the making of such garments.

"One is my Stanford Indian costume, a kind of combination of dress customs from many tribes," he says. "The other two are authentic Yurok dress."

His sister, Fawn Morris of San Anselmo, has available to her two full costumes made by their mother, Mrs. Ethel Williams of Crescent City.

"ACTUALLY," Timm Williams explains, "the ceremonial costumes are regarded as the property of the entire family."

COVER PHOTO

TIMM WILLIAMS of Fairfax, Yurok Indian, puts on the finishing touches on a magnificent headdress by fixing the band. The feathers are simulated eagle, since eagles can no longer be hunted. White swan or white goose plumes are substituted reluctantly when used eagle feathers cannot be found by the costume-makers.

(Independent-Journal photos by Jim Kean)

The Williamses also own 28 sets of beads. A dancer may wear several sets, and the Williams' possessions are enough to equip 10 to 15 men for the traditional three-day brush dance.

"Such a dance is as much an opportuniy to display your treasures such as costumes, beads and headdresses as it is an opportunity to exhibit your dancing ability," Williams explains.

IT IS A special honor, he adds, when one family lets other members of the tribe wear its possessions for a dance.

"It is through his ceremonial clothing and decoration that the Indian shows his affluence, his good taste, his good training," Williams says. "If you don't have costumes, you are regarded as not being very ambitious."

The Yuroks, now numbering between 2,800 and 3,000, are part of the Hoopa Valley Indian Reservation in Northern California. The Williams homeplace was once part on the reservation and is now located nearby. Williams has many relatives still living on the reservation.

THERE ARE three or four family groups within the Yurok tribe that still own authentic ceremonial costumes such as his own, Williams says.

Financial difficulties of the Indians have contributed toward the decline in costume ownership.

"Sometimes the Indians have to sell their costumes so that they can eat," Williams says. "Collectors buy them. I think it is a crying shame. But you can't watch your family starve."

BIG TRIBAL dances are held two or three times a year. For the Yuroks, the biggest is the one held on Fourth of July at the Hoopa Valley Reservation.

"Dances are held at traditional spots that to the Indians are very much like a church," Williams explains.

There is, he adds, a certain element of uncertainty about the dates of the ceremonial dances.

"Should My Fur-Trimmed Coat Be Drycleaned?"

Yes, all garments should be drycleaned. However, garments trimmed with fur should have the fur removed before the garment is cleaned. It has been established that drycleaning a fur - trimmed garment shortens the life of the fur. Certain oils and dressings are removed from the pelt by drycleaning and the fur deteriorates more rapidly than if the fur was cleaned by the furrier method. In many cases the fur damage is not noticed at once. But after several drycleanings, the fur trim may disintegrate.

In some instances the fur trim is so stitched on the garment that it cannot be removed. In that event, drycleaning is the only method practical. The fur should be glazed after drycleaning to improve its appearance. Your drycleaner will be glad to drycleaning your fur-trimmed coat for you, but you should be aware of the hazzard if the fur cannot be removed before drycleaning.

AT LEFT, Fawn Morris of San Anselmo gives you a close look at the intricate work performed by her mother, Ethel Williams, in the making of this Yurok ceremonial costume. The long, tubular white shells are dentalium or Indian money, used by the Yuroks and neighboring tribes in their business transaction. Mrs. Morris' hair is wrapped with mink strips in the traditional Yurok fashion. Above, you look down on the top of the hat worn by Mrs. Morris. The black in the pattern is the bark of the Maidenhair Fern, picked only in the spring. The white is ham-mau, a prairie grass similar to Pampas grass that must be burned the year before it is picked if the desired white is to be achieved. Hazel sticks and willow root make up the foundation of the hat. The hazel sticks, too, must be burned and then picked the following spring while the sap is running. The bird beaks are woodpecker scalps for decorations.

TIMM WILLIAMS IS a full-blooded Yurok, but this costume which he wears as Stanford University's official athletic mascot he describes as "sort of an All-American Indian dress," since it represents many tribal cultures and customs. Many of the materials and articles are gifts from other tribes. Williams has been Stanford's Prince Lightfoot for 15 years.

THE FRONT BREECH or apron of a Yurok costume is decorated with glass beads by Timm Williams. The Indians formerly used real seeds for this fancy work, then began trading for beads which they then called seed beads.

AN ARM GUARD is held by Williams as he studies where to place the decorative beads. Later, there will also be some ermine, mink and shells as further ornamentation for this part of his ceremonial costume.

ership of the dance dress has a death in the family, no dance will be held that year in tribute to the deceased," he says. "On the other hand, the others might make a payment to the family of the deceased as recognition of the death. Then the dance can proceed."

Williams, an office employee of Matson Terminals in San Francisco, does his costume-making in his Fairfax home, utilizing crafts and skills that are traditional with his tribe.

"Sometimes it gets to be work," he admits, "but on the whole, it is a change and relief from my other activities, and usually I hate to lay it down. Sometimes I will work until 2 or 3 in the morning if I get involved in a certain piece."

WILLIAMS lectures frequently on Indian subjects — on the tribal forms of government for college political science classes, on Indian religions for church organizations, on Indian lore for youth groups.

His dancing is confined to the Yurok tribal gatherings.

"If I go to the dances of other tribes, it is as a guest and spectator," he says, "simply to learn what they are doing."

His widowed mother, 65, is thinking about beginning yet another women's costume — a three or four year undertaking.

THIS TIME, her son says, she hopes to use more of the original clam shells of Yurok tradition instead of so many seed beads.

Mrs. Williams is a frequent visitor in Marin in the homes of her son and daughter.

Williams is not overly optimistic about the chances for success of those like himself who strive to perpetuate the old tribal traditions.

"The flow of time is against us," he says.

But he adds: "I, for one, intend to keep on trying. I think it is important."

THE YUROKS first wore buckskin leggings as protection for the shin against the brush through which they ran and walked. Later they developed fancier models such as this one for their ceremonial dancing.

Yoga For The Westerner, And Some Old-Fashioned Virtues

By DON KEOWN

Yoga continues to hold a fascination for many Americans.

That fascination, however, sometimes turns to disillusionment when Westerners attempt to master these Eastern disciplines on a teach-yourself basis with the help only of a book.

This, experienced practitioners say, is usually the result of one of two things:

1. The novice may have expected too much from yoga, regarding it as some mystical program that produces magical results.

2. Or the new devotee while following the physical regimen is unable to produce the necessary attendant climate of tranquility under the adverse conditions of a noisy, hurry-up Western society.

It would seem that the full realization of yoga philosophy and procedures by a Westerner with a book as his only instructor would be a most unlikely accomplishment. Some more personal guidance would be required. But, say instructors such as Frenchman J.-M. Dechanet, there is still no reason why an American or European cannot glean valuable advantages from a study of the subject.

In his "Christian Yoga," Monsieur Dechanet presented the modified form of yoga disciplines that he developed for his own students.

Now, in "Yoga in Ten Lessons," he offers that program in a more specific format. The emphasis is upon those physical exercises or postures that are fundamental. These are demonstrated through drawings. While there is no great effort to indoctrinate the Westerner with the attendant Oriental philosophy, there is a presentation of the general conditions of the mind and emotions that must be effected if the inner harmony that is the objective of yoga is to be achieved.

Dechanet's point is that Americans and Europeans can extract many of the therapeutic advantages such as good health, a contemplative approach to life and the ability to relax both mind and body without embracing in its totality a philosophy that requires many years of dedication for real mastery. That is not to say that Dechanet's course is one that can be taken lightly or absorbed with ease. But it is one that he presents as offering maximum benefits from an investment of time and concentration that is within the limits of practicality for most busy Westerners.

NORVELL'S DYNAMIC MENTAL LAWS FOR SUCCESSFUL LIVING by Anthony Norvell, Parker Publishing Co., 231 pages, $4.98.

A DOCTOR'S SECRETS OF YOUTH, HEALTH AND LONG LIFE by Dr. John E. Eichenlaub, Prentice-Hall, 213 pages, $4.95.

ANOTHER source to which many Americans have looked for decades for help with their physical, mental and spiritual problems is the so-called positive thinking or self-improvement field.

What its exponents, such as the lecturer and writer Anthony Norvell, usually offer is a common-sense program of homely old-fashioned values all wrapped up in some rather fancy trappings such as being the distilled wisdom of the ancient East.

There can be no serious quarrel with the attributes that Norvell advocates in his "Norvell's Dynamic Mental Laws for Successful Living." Such traits as self-assurance, ambition, religious faith, dedication, persistence, charity, thrift, etc., have pretty well proven themselves. And if it helps for some that these virtues be served up as some kind of a mystical philosophy or religion, there is no great objection to that.

What is hazardous is that these teachers and writers are too often prone to exaggerate and oversell their wares. The pupil who expects miracles may not be willing to settle for less spectacular gains, and may sink into apathy and discouragement.

It is not so much the product they offer as the promises they make that leave the "positive thinkers" open to criticism. Our moralists and philosophers for centuries have preached many of these same ideas, but with better perspective. The reader who can retain his in the face of the sometimes flamboyant pledges of authors and their publishers can still benefit from reading—and following, at least in part—programs such as Anthony Norvell's.

A THIRD field in which book publishers have found a large and eager audience among Americans with their personal well-being is that of traditional and folk medicine.

A number of writers have specialized in this kind of information and advice, one of the better known being John E. Eichenlaub, Johns Hopkins educated M.D. who has practiced in three states and taught at the University of Minnesota.

His "A Doctor's Secrets of Youth, Health and Long Life" is his fourth book, and he is also a prolific writer of magazine articles.

Eichenlaub covers the usual subjects—eating, exercise, recreation, grooming, clothing, posture, sleep, breathing, bathing, home remedies, mental outlook, etc.

The doctor, however, has some twists of his own. For instance, to satisfy the appetite with fewer calories, always begin with appetizers. To ease and loosen stiff fingers, try a paraffin bath. If you cannot sleep well on your back, there's a special pillow that will help. To prevent skin wrinkles and other signs of aging, wear broad-brimmed hats as a protection against the sun's rays.

Books such as Dr. Eichenlaub's are no substitute for close, continuing contact with the family doctor. He does not offer it as such. But he does contend that his advice will, if followed, lessen the urgency of such contacts, and delay the aches, pains and wrinkles that come with age.

ARRIVING too late for pre-Christmas review were two attractive "novelties" from the busy and clever little San Francisco publishing firm of Determined Productions Inc.

"Good Times Scrap Book" features Marin comic strip cartoonist Marty Links and her popular United Features Syndicate character Emmy Lou. Words are by Jerry Bundsen, for years columnist Herb Caen's righthand man.

Aimed at the young girl, the big book offers not only Emmy Lou's humorous teen-age trials and tribulations, but also ample space for autographs, snapshots, clippings, etc.

"Christmas Is Together Time" is the work of Charles M. Shulz of "Peanuts" fame and presents Charlie Brown and friends telling you just what Christmas means to them. It is both funny and warmly sensitive. Too bad the review mailings were so tardy.

AIMED AT a specific and very limited audience but containing some material of more general interest is "Profitable Private Campground Construction and Operation," available from Rajo Publications Inc. of 215 Park Avenue South, New York, N.Y., for $2. In magazine format, it is a guide prepared by outdoor writer Rea Agnew on campsite planning, development, upkeep and administration. But campers, vacation-home owners and handymen generally may find the directions for such construction projects as cabin, toilets, showers, benches and tables useful.

TRUMAN Capote's "In Cold Blood," a factual account of a multiple murder in Kansas in 1959, has been selected as the Book-of-the-Month Club choice for Feburary.

TEN LAVISHLY ILLUSTRATED books including the one reviewed below make up the new "Landmarks of the World's Art" series, published by McGraw-Hill Book Co. Publishers in the Orient and in Europe are also cooperating in the international venture. The books will be released over a two-year period.

THE CLASSICAL WORLD by Donald E. Strong, McGraw-Hill, 166 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Apparently king-sized gift books have replaced the proverbial necktie when it comes to Christmas presents, at least among the ranks of the intellectuals.

Review desks were swamped with these large and lavishly illustrated volumes in the pre-holiday weeks this year. So much so that only a trickle among the torrent could be accorded review space.

Among those buried in our deluge was this entry in McGraw-Hill's scholarly "Landmarks of the World's Art" series under the editorship of Bernard S. Myers, American, and Trewin Copplestone, Briton. This international venture is a most ambitious one — an attempt to present through outstanding authorities a complete visual survey of man's artistic achievements through the ages.

For this account of the Greco - Roman contributions over a period of 2,000 years, Donald E. Strong, assistant keeper of the Department of Greek and Roman Antiquities of the British Museum in London, was selected.

There is no quarreling with the impressive knowledge of his subject that Strong displays. But his method of presentation is something else again. The approach is that of a professor addressing his students, and this tone becomes wearisome in time. Strong also pre-supposes a great deal of advanced knowledge on the part of his readers, thus limiting much of the value of his text to those who are already well indoctrinated into Greek and Latin cultures.

For such scholars, full-grown or fledgling, however, the book must be a marvelous find.

And the photos are something else again. The novice can well appreciate the astonishing civilizations that flourished along the Mediterranean after viewing the magnificent 128 full-color plates and 109 black and white photos of some of the world's greatest treasures.

There are frontispiece maps of the classical world, plus a helpful chronological table in the back. Also a suggested reading list and glossary.

Despite our difficulty with Strong's weighty text, we found the book a dazzling display of scholarship. And the price is remarkably modest for this kind of a book.

Sleuths & Suspense

THE PATCHWORK OF DEATH by Peter Nichols, Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 191 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Here is an exciting suspense novel with an out-of-the-ordinary plot.

During World War II a German agent is landed on the British coast. But instead of taking up his intelligence work for the Reich, he seizes the opportunity to cut his old ties and to establish a new identity and life as Charles Stephenson, London shopkeeper.

Now, 20 years later, his secret has apparently been uncovered. And his life is in jeopardy. Stephenson suspects fanatical Nazi remnants from the past.

In an effort to protect his daughter from the anonymous peril, Stephenson flees to South America. And it is there that the story comes to a conclusion that is not quite on par with the remainder of the yarn, but still quite acceptable.

Peter Nichols is said to be the pseudonym of a "well-known English author," and why he should wish to disguise his identity in connection with such a commendable effort as this, we do not understand.

For Pup Owners

D IS FOR DOG by Frank Manolson, foreword by Cleveland Armory, Basic Books, 240 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Jeff Greer.

Until this book came along, the best primer for novice dog owners in the United States was the American Kennel Club's handbook. Following that were only fragmentary bits of dog husbandry in the hundreds of American books on individual breeds.

Now, veterinarian Manolson has put together a book that everyone who buys a puppy should buy along with dog license, leash and grooming tools.

Organized in alphabetical form, the book answers almost any question a beginning dog owner could have, and opens the eyes of the veteran dog fancier once in a while, too. It's not entirely consistent in thoroughness of treatment of all topics, but will certainly stand as the best for some time to come.

Dr. Manolson now practices in London, after training and experience in the United States, Canada and British Honduras. He modestly credits "all the real work in this book" to Joan Drummond-Hay of London, without mentioning that she is a titled Lady, and one of the peers of British dog breeders and exhibitors. He also gets a delightful assist from Bostonian society scribe Amory—who is a moving force in the Humane Society of the United States.

But now to quibble—Dr. Manolson frequently jibes about nervous, badly-bred pets, but occasionally tries to say that, really, not all dogs are this way. His evaluations of breeds' characteristics will sound a bit far-out to some American breeders. And, an American publishing house should have helped him add information about American feeding practices and veterinary capabilities that are unknown to the Briton for whom Dr. Manolson apparently basically writes.

The Little Boy

HALLIBURTON: The Magnificent Myth, by Jonathan Root, Coward-McCann, 278 pages, $5.50. Reviewed by Alan Cunningham.

Even if one had never heard the name Richard Halliburton before reading this biography by San Francisco reporter Jonathan Root, one would know from it that his name was a household word to millions of Americans in the 1930s.

As much of a legend in his own time as the glamorous motion picture personalities of the same period, Halliburton became the subject of many bits of folklore which were far from the truth. Root seems to have done a good job of picking out fact from fiction and presenting it in a straight, unemotional manner.

In a decade when hard times made people all the more aware of the drabness of their lives, Halliburton filled a void, just as the movies did. He provided vicarious romance for those who knew they would never leave Peoria, Des Moines or Kalamazoo.

While it might make a better fairy tale to say that Richard Halliburton was the happiest man on earth, laughing off the jibes of critics who called his books superficial nonsence, Root shows this was not the case.

Never really a scholar, he was exposed to enough scholasticism to pursue in vain the dream that his romanticized travel books would give way to more enduring works. Root leaves one feeling that he probably would never have accomplished this, although he did leave a huge file of notes on poet Rupert Brooke from which novelist Arthur Springer was able to write a serious biography.

Root also shows the contrast between Halliburton's exploits and the way he portrayed them. Climbing the Matterhorn, taking an elephant across the Alps like Hannibal, or swimming the Panama Canal, he often was too sick, tired or frightened to gain any spiritual or esthetic benefit until he invented some at the typewriter.

On the other hand, the book clearly credits Halliburton with more sensitivity—and in at least two instances, more journalistic acumen — than his detractors ever did.

A curious mixture of daring and cowardice, of nonconformity and insecurity, Halliburton is shown here to be at least partially the victim of his own sudden fame. By the time he realized his journeys had ceased to be carefree adventures, he was committed to them as his readers in Peoria were to their time clocks.

If Root comes to any sure conclusion, it is mainly that Halliburton was really a little boy who never grew up. This theory would seem to explain why he was in so many ways unable to cope with his own success.

ANOTHER Harry Titcombe illustration from "D Is For Dog" shows the Pekingese, the product of Chinese breeding of the toughest of litters to each other through centuries.

A Hero's Story

OUTPOST OF FREEDOM by Roger H. C. Donlon and Warren Rogers, McGraw-Hill, 202 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Alan Cunningham.

When a soldier wins the national Medal of Honor in battle it is only a matter of time until he can be expected to write his autobiography, regardless of whether he has any ability to write, or whether he has that much of a story to tell.

Thus it is no surprise to see this book, by Army Captain Donlon "as told to" Warren Rogers, appear a few months after Donlon was awarded the medal for his actions during a Viet Cong attack on the quarters of his Special Forces team at Nam Dong, South Viet Nam in July, 1964.

The book starts with a chapter about the White House ceremony in which President Lyndon B. Johnson hung the medal on Donlon's uniform. It then jumps back to his childhood and continues through what the jacket liner notes call "years of Huckleberry Finn adventures."

It ultimately tells how he achieved his desire to be an Army officer (through Officer Candidate School when he enlisted after two periods at West Point), joined the elite Special Forces and was sent to Viet Nam.

Liberal quotations from Army literature, a red, white and blue dust jacket and a foreword by Sen. Robert F. Kennedy all add to the feeling that this is the type of book the Johnson administration would like to see as the required reading for everyone in its quest for a "consensus" about Viet Nam.

No doubt many people whose principal reading diet comes from men's magazines might find this type of book right down their alley. But it can hardly be termed a work of any real significance, either as biography, war story or plain storytelling.

Readers seeking something more will soon become aware that Donlon's boyhood adventures were no more Huck Finnish, or interesting, than those of millions of other American youths who never will have a book written about them.

One of the most obvious examples of the book's lack of depth, however, is the terse sentence which ends Chapter Five. After 10 pages on his days at West Point, Donlon suddenly dismisses it all with the statement that he "resigned for personal reasons and took a stab at civilian life."

Buried beneath such a sentence in a ghost-writen autobiography probably lies enough of a man's life to fill an entire chapter, were it a meaningful book dealing with someone about whom thoughtful people would have any wish to read.

A Salty Story

THE TALL VOYAGERS by Claire Rankin, Ward Ritchie Press (distributed by Lane Publishing Co.), 224 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Jeff Greer.

This is the life story of a man who grew up in the dying days of the globe-girdling sailing vessels and the tiny, hard-bitten coasters that still eked out a living against competition from the boiler-powered "stinkpots" around the Great War era.

It is the story, told in first person, of Capt. Barney Burnett. The book doesn't say so, but apparently author Rankin must have spent many, many hours taking down the old seaman's reminiscences.

No great man's autobiography, nor yet a romanticized sea story, this; Capt. Burnett leads us through the storms and doldrums of an individualistic, somewhat stubborn and contrary human being's life, groaning not overmuch about his failures, nor boasting overloud about his successes.

For about 178 pages we thought this was a rather ordinary, unusually authentic sailor's-eye look at life with some fien old photographs. Then, by golly, up pops a genuine love story, with a good spicing of suspense.

Some popular novelist, television scripter or Hollywood hack could get a thousand pages out of the book's last 50 pages, or an entire season on the network shows.

We won't tell you how it ends. It's true to life, though.

On Civil Rights

THE NEGRO MOOD by Lerone Bennett Jr., Ballantine Books, paperback, 158 pages, 60 cents. Reviewed by Alan P. Cunningham.

Anyone who cares at all about the problem of civil rights in this country should read this well-written, thoughtful book by a man who is, himself, part of the "black establishment." He analyzes this establishment along with the white power structure and the various phases of the Negro rebellion—not yet, he maintains, a full revolution.

Particularly interesting—if the reader falls remotely under the "white liberal" category—is the last chapter, titled "Tea and Sympathy; Liberals and other White Hopes." In it, Abraham Lincoln topples with a host of other (white) sacred cows. Only the most thick-skinned Anglo-Saxon reader will be able to read it without squirming a bit.

THE BASENJI, not barkless as some claim, but just a good deal quieter than most canines, is among the illustrations included in "D Is For Dog," Basic Books' new compact encyclopedia for dog owners, prepared by the British authority Frank Manolson.

Readable Reissue

THE CASE AGAINST TOMORROW by Frederick Pohl, Ballentine Books, 150 pages, paperback, 50 cents. Reviewed by Jeff Greer.

The reissue of Pohl's alum-coated 1957 short story collection still rings just as wryly true as it did then.

Pohl has a vivid insight to the future; his message here is that Utopia is likely to flit always just out of reach, Great Society or no. No solution of any problem in life is even final; the ripples create further problems.

So be it. We like reading Pohl's warnings about it.

Art Society Has International Flavor

There's a strong international flavor to the Marin Society of Artists, reflected in its new member roster taking part in the organization's annual New Members Show that opens tomorrow in the Frances Young Gallery at the Marin Art and Garden Center, Ross.

Indicative of the varied backgrounds of the members of the Marin society are two participants in the new show.

FRANK GUSDORF of Terra Linda left Germany in 1939 after his father had died in a concentration camp. He is a senior instructor with the San Francisco Air Defense School in radar and computer electronics.

A 20-year army man, he has an impressive record of accomplishment in art. Last year three of his works were accepted for the important San Francisco Annual—a painting, a sculpture and a woodcut.

Further demonstrating his versatility, he does portraits, figure paintings, woodcarvings and is currently working in etching and lithograph techniques.

His army travels have taken him to Europe, Central America, the Far East and most recently to Korea.

HANNA MERIANS of Sausalito is Israeli-born. Her travels have taken her to London and Paris, to the Far East where she lived in Thailand and Saigon, and in Venezuela and Colombia.

Her work, she feels, reflects the spirit of Israel, but she also sees expressions of the other lands where she has lived and peoples she has met.

Both permanent and temporary residents of the Bay Area are welcomed into the membership of the Marin Society of Artists, its officers say.

And with each addition, the society grows in the scope and variety of backgrounds of that roster.

The New Members Show will continue through Jan. 30.

Gallery hours are 2 to 4 p.m. daily, plus 7 to 9 p.m. on Thursdays only.

On The Stereo Scene

By JOHN SUNIER

WOODY HERMAN AND HIS SWINGING HERD—"My Kind of Broadway"—Columbia Stereo CS 9157:

The hottest and swinging-est band Woody Herman has ever had is now on the Columbia label, and this first new lp is a resounding success for them.

Surely most jazz fans have by now heard at last a track or two from the several discs released since 1963 by Philips Records. This one surpasses even those as far as ensemble sound, infectious rhythmic drive, and smashing stereo sound go.

The tunes are from the most popular musicals, but Woody seems to be much more successful in making big band vehicles out of them than other band leaders have been. If you only buy one big band jazz lp this year, make it this one.

BUD SHANK & HIS BRAZILIAN FRIENDS—Pacific Jazz Stereo 89:

Here is another nova release of more bossa.

The first thing that Marinites will notice about this lp is the very first tune is titled "Sausalito."

The Brazilian Friends include one of the original bossa novaists, Joao Donato, on piano and guitarist Rosinha de Valenca from Brazil '65. A bit on the bloodless side, but relaxing background music for the many uses of background music in today's society.

IN PERSON AT EL MATADOR — Sergio Mendes & Brasil '65— Atlantic Stereo 8112:

This album was recorded in San Francisco at Barnaby Conrad's nightclub in North Beach last year. It strikes me as the best of the Brasil '65 lp's that have been issued thus far.

Undoubtedly the responsive audience helped the group toward new heights.

Longest and finest item on the record: "Black Orpheus Medley," with a wonderful vocal by Wanda de Sah. This six-minute sequence sounds more like the original film score than anything else so far produced in the Black Orpheus re-discovery on discs, only it's even better. Also fascinating is the haunting African prayer a la bossa nova, "Reza," which Jon Hendricks used so beautifully at the Monterey Jazz Festival.

This is a don't-miss album.

CHILES & PETTIFORD — "Live at Jilly's" — Atlantic Stereo 8111:

Jilly's is a new "in" place in New York, or at least was at the time this lp was cut.

Walter Chiles is a pianist and vocalist, Clarence Pettiford a bass player and vocalist and a distant relative of the late great Oscar Pettiford. The two have an unusual variety in their song bag, including pop and Broadway tunes and traditional blues like "C. C. Rider."

Their own arrangements are interesting, and their duet work has the same quality of good swinging fun about it that Jackie and Roy demonstrate so well.

As with Jackie & Roy, perhaps technically they miss the mark a bit, but that doesn't detract from them at all. "School Days," the old Dizzy Gillespie novelty, comes in for an hilarious treatment by Chiles & Pettiford.

A natural for stereo too, these duets.

RHYTHM CRAZY — JIMMY CLEVELAND—Emarcy Stereo SRE-66003:

Jimmy Cleveland is an excellent trombonist who somehow lacks a very distinctive style of playing, but remains enjoyable anyway.

Arrangements of the seven tunes on this album were by Benny Golson, who also plays in the group, and by Gigi Gryce. Other fine sidemen heard at Hank Jones on piano, Art Farmer on trumpet, and the drums of Osie Johnson.

STEREO HI-FI

By C. J. Catania
Audio Engineer

A NEW STEREO cartridge was recently introduced by Euphonics. The cartridge is manufactured at their factory in Guaynabo, Puerto Rico, U.S.A. The Euphonics "Miniconic" cartridge, as it is called, is an entirely new type of cartridge. Most current cartridges operate by either a magnetic generation of voltage or a piezoelectric generation of voltage (crystal or ceramic types) due to the deflection of a stylus. The Miniconic cartridge operates as a strain gage. Although the strain gage principle has been used before, it has never been notably successful.

The cartridge uses two silicon elements, the same as material used in transistors, of minutely small dimensions. These tiny semi-conductors are mounted so that the stylus assembly strains the elements as it follows the record groove. Unlike other cartridges, the Miniconic requires a power supply. The power supply passes a small amount of current through each of the silicon elements. As the elements are stressed due to the record modulations, the current through each element varies proportionately. The varying current is amplified through two transistors mounted within the power supply case and comes out as a relatively strong audio voltage.

Because of the extremely small and light parts in the make-up of the cartridge, the overall mass is less than most cartridges, and it will track at pressures as low as ¾ of a gram. The cartridge is insensitive to magnetic hum pickup as are the magnetic type cartridges, and unlike crystal and ceramic cartridges it does not pick up hum due to electrostatic fields. The Miniconic is virtually humless.

How about frequency response? Absolutely amazing. It produces equal response from almost zero cycles to 20,000 cycles. Stereo separation is better than 25 db throughout most of the audio spectrum. The stylus is of the 15 degree tracking angle type and is a bi-radial elliptical whole diamond precision ground and polished.

The Miniconic can be used through the regular magnetic input of an amplifier, or by moving a switch on the cartridge power supply can be used in an auxiliary input without equalization. I have been testing one in my system since Thanksgiving, and it is the best sound I've heard from any cartridge.

Let Flowering Plant Drive Winter Gloom From Living Room

Colorful Blooms Will Brighten Your Indoor Decor On Dull Days

There is nothing like a brightly flowered plant to liven up the living room on a dull winter day.

And the choice at this time of the year is exceptional.

Thanks to the growers of potted chrysanthemums, you can buy a plant in perfect flower any day of the year—and winter is no exception. There is a wide range of colors to choose from, so matching your decor is a joy instead of a chore.

THE THRIFTY gardener will use the four or five plants in the pot for his garden after the flowers are spent indoors—but be sure they go in full sun outdoors.

Winter days can be blessed by the bright flowers of cyclamen. They can be obtained in many sizes from your nurseryman or florist, beginning with four-inch pots and ranging up to big plants in six-inch pots.

The four or five flowers carried jauntily above the interesting rounded leaves are only a preview of what is to come. Part the leaves and see the little buds rising from the "bulb." They will keep a succession of blooms coming for weeks.

Important thing is to never let your cyclamen get thirsty. Water daily.

LATER, YOU will want to set the plant in the shady part of your garden. Cyclamen drops its leaves and becomes dormant in summer, comes out fresh in fall, blooms again in winter.

The Belgian Indica azaleas like to flower when days are short. Their large, semi-double blooms are massed on flat-topped plants with dark green foliage, in shades of white, pink, pink and white and red.

Plunge the pot in deep water for a few minutes after purchase, then water daily to keep in tip-top condition.

NOW'S THE time for planting trees. Most of them are available now in the bare-root form, while others are sold in containers. But either way, if planted now, they will have ample time to establish themselves well before they leaf out in the spring. The sooner you get them in the ground, the sooner you can enjoy their beauty and their shade. So don't delay. The one pictured here, the Flowering Plum, is one of many excellent choices. They grow fast, bloom heavily and do not become very large. The purple and red-leafed varieties are grown as much for their burnished foliage as they are for their clouds of pink or white flowers in the spring.

WISTERIA AND CLEMATIS

Two Vines That Beautify The Garden

Two of the most strikingly beautiful vines in California gardens are wisteria and clematis.

Wisteria, with its picturesque, Oriental manner of growth, is a classic garden symbol. It flowers in spring in breathtakingly lovely cascades of bloom and its lacy, ornamental leaves provide coolness as well as shadow pattern in the summer months.

In winter when the leaves are gone, the bare, twisted trunk and stems add character to the landscape.

CHINESE WISTERIA, with its fragrant violet blue or white flower clusters in early spring, is the most familar variety. However, nurserymen suggest that you ask them about the Japanese variety too. Japanese Wisteria has impressively long clusters of flower spikes in pure white, pink or violet purple.

Although wisteria requires nothing special except sun and good drainage to do its beautiful best, it does need a strong support.

To promote blooming at an early age, do most of your pruning by pinching the first year or so. Don't cut back heavily until it has developed a strong blooming habit. If you would like to train your wisteria as a free-standing tree, tie it to a stake and keep side shoots removed as they appear. Head back when dormant.

WISTERIA, BECAUSE of its vigorous growth and strong trunks and stems, should not be used directly on the walls of a house, but trained to climb over an arbor, a fence a porch or pergola.

Clematis, on the other hand, is ideal for enriching architecture. Easily controlled by cutting back when dormant, it is a beautiful choice for outlining roof gables or accenting an entrance.

The deciduous clematis is grown for its magnificent flowers over a long season.

ONE OF THE newest improved varieties is the Anemone clematis called "Tetrarose". This one is a strong grower with large, pink flowers in early summer and handsome, deeply etched dark green foliage. Henryi (white) Ramona (sky blue) and Jackmanii (regal purple) are other excellent varieties to consider.

In planting clematis, try to give it a shady spot for its roots and protect brittle lower stems from breaking with a circle of wire or stakes around the plant.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Violas and pansies can still be set out over a bulb bed. Primula Malacoides, the Fairy Primrose, can go in for an early spring border in shaded beds.
- The greens will be greener if you spend a day spreading manure around your shrubbery beds and spring planting areas. The rains will leach the nutrients down into the soil to the root zone where you want them.
- Many choice camellias are in bloom now. Browse the nurseries for your favorites. They make nice companions for azaleas in late winter. Set out rhododendrons for a big show later on. Give them all filtered shade and rich, peaty soil.
- This is an important time for dormant spraying of fruit trees. Ask you nurseryman what to use and the easiest way to apply it.
- The perennial vegetables—artichokes, asparagus and rhubarb—are not only good eating, but are attractive in the ornamental garden. They can go in now.

HERE'S a close-up view of the Apricot Nectar blooms, the floribunda representative among the 1966 All-America Rose Selections. It is causing widespread interest among rosarians, with its firm, fragrant flowers in a gentle apricot hue that measure four and three quarters to five inches across at times. It is a vigorous, profuse bloomer with a clean, healthy foliage.

Foam Rubber Has Eased Upholstery Jobs In The Home

Reupholstering jobs that no home or apartment dweller would think of tackling some years ago are now possible with a relatively new type of latex foam rubber called pincore foam.

Because of the numerous pencil-thick holes running all the way through it, pincore foam is fully reversible, eliminating much of the gluing that was necessary with the old stock. It comes flat or crowned to make thick, rounded, extra-plump cushions.

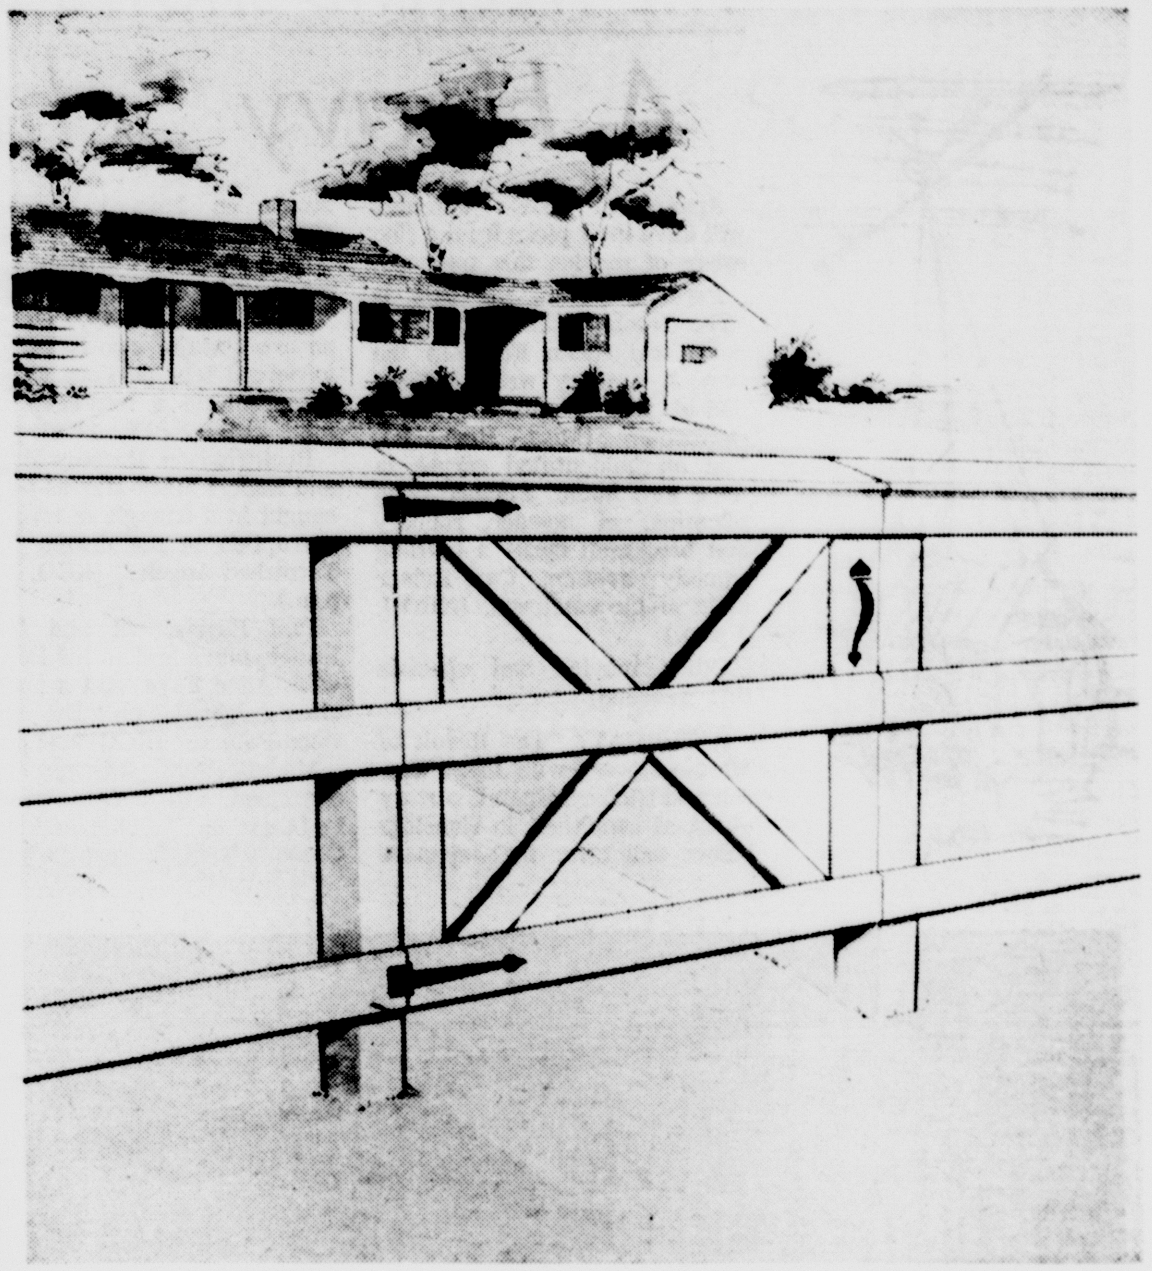
WHILE PINCORE foam is only one of a number of kinds of foam rubber available, the only other type the do-it-yourselfer need concern himself with is the solid sheet or slab without holes or cores.

This latter type is sold in thicknesses from one-fourth inch to two inches and is used primarily where thin padding is required, such as on the arms and backs of straight chairs or as window seat cushions for projects which require thicknesses of less than two inches. But from two inches through six inches the pincore foam is the answer.

ONE OF THE important things to remember in using foam rubber is that it always should be cut about a half inch larger than the size of whatever you are making. This extra margin later will be compressed, serving to keep the fabric covering tightly in place.

To make an accurate cut, use a paper pattern. Lay out a piece of brown wrapping paper on the object and trace the outline. At this point, add the vital half inch on all sides of the pattern, then transfer it to the foam itself with a marking pen or crayon.

The paper pattern is not necessary where the object, such as a kitchen seat, can be removed. In that case, simply trace the outline directly on the foam.



AN ATTRACTIVE rail fence with matching gate will not only beautify your premises, but also give you added privacy in your yard and "protect your prized plants against trespassers tempted to take shortcuts" through your grounds. For the Easi-Bild pattern, send 50 cents to Independent-Journal, Post Office 215, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., 10510, and ask for Rail Fence and Matching Gate Post Pattern 941. Step-by-step directions including an explanation on how to locate and set the posts are included.

You Can Turn Plain Chest Into Elegant Furniture Piece

You can transform a starkly plain pine chest of drawers into a much more elegant piece of furniture with a handyman's ingenuity and materials costing $5 or less.

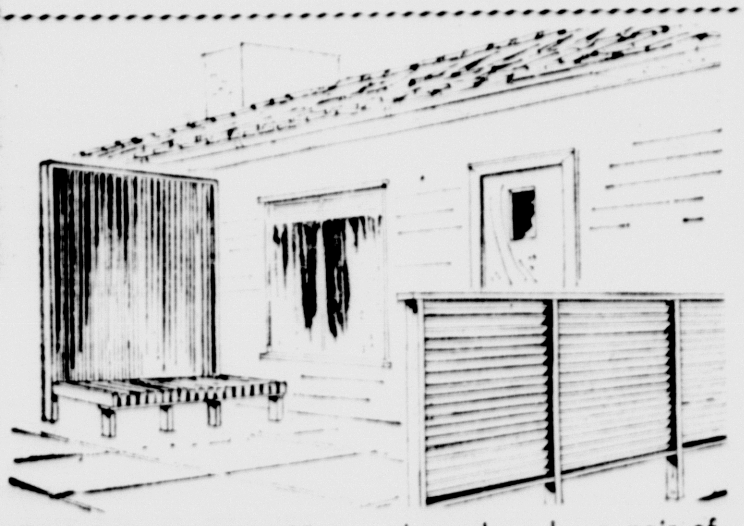
Stock western wood mouldings—the kind carried by most lumberyards—make this an uncomplicated project. The key point is selecting a suitable set of mouldings, but the building supply dealer can help you choose from the 30 or more patterns he keeps on hand.

To apply a traditional styling, for example, fasten the moulding to the front of each drawer in a picture frame pattern. Cap moulding WP-163 is usually a good choice.

Corners should be carefully sawn in a miterbox, and the outside edge of each frame should be about one and a half inches inside the edge of the drawer face all around. White woodworking glue and brads will hold securely.

The base of the chest should be embellished, too, and a combination of base and base shoe moulding will turn this trick nicely. Note that mitering for the base corners must be at a different angle than that for the drawer face frames.

Finishing the surface with stain or paint, and installing the right style of metal drawer pulls completes this do-it-yourself project. The result is a chest closely resembling period pieces costing several times more.



THIS BACK ENTRANCE was dressed up by a pair of Douglas fir garden screens and a bench. One screen is tall, built of one-by-fours set edge out between top and bottom stringers. The other is low and long, designed with horizontal louvers. Both protect the back door from weather exposure while converting entrance to a pleasant outdoor sitting room.

Bonanza For The Home Owner

It is doubtful whether even the manuafacturers of resilient floor tiles realized the full potential of their product some years ago.

When this type of floor covering was introduced, it seemed likely that its use would be confined to special rooms in the house, such as the kitchen and recreation area.

TODAY, THANKS to a wide variety of tile ingredients and adhesives, resilient floor tiles are being used everywhere in the house, above and below grade, and even in such formal locations as living rooms.

In addition to the many brilliant colors and designs on individual tiles, there are numerous decorative patterns that can be worked out by placement of the tiles according to a previously prepared layout. Some of these patterns lean towards the sophisticated side for luxury homes; some accentuate gaiety for brightening up playrooms; and some are in the form of games that can be played by children and adults alike.

The growing popularity of floor tiles over the years can be attributed as much to the ease of application as to any other cause.

HOME OWNERS who wouldn't think of wrestling with large rolls of flooring found themselves taking a chance with tiles because they were so much easier to handle. And with good reason.

If certain fundamentals are observed, a good job can be done by anyone—even a person completely lacking in do-it-yourself abilities.

It is wise to buy the adhesive for installations from the same dealer from whom you purchase the tiles. He then can give you the proper type of cement for the tiles you have selected.

THIS IS important, since the kind which works well with asphalt and vinyl asbestos, for example, is not suitable for such tiles as rubber, solid vinyl cork and linoleum.

It is always smart, too, to tell the dealer whether the tiles are being installed on concrete on grade or concrete below grade, as some projects call for special adhesives to suit special conditions.

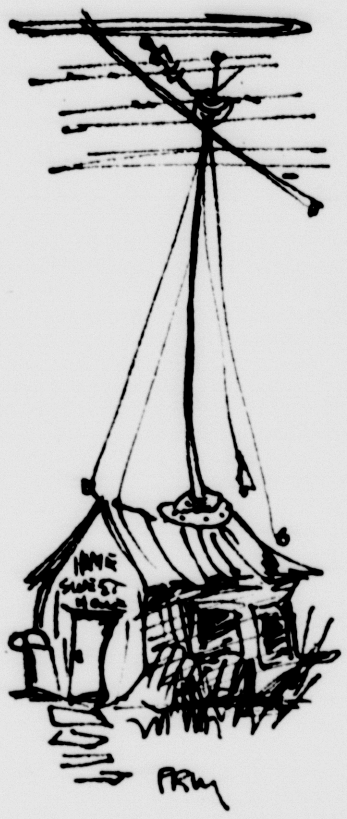
THE WEEKEND SHOWS

A Heavy Schedule Of Movies



Arm chair movie watchers will have their picks from a fine array of movies this weekend.

Perhaps one of the best is "The Gazebo" with Debbie Reynolds and Glenn Ford. In the film, a mystery writer (Ford) and his wife, a musical comedy performer (Miss Reynolds), find an unidentified corpse in their new home. Further complications of murder, robbery and blackmail ensue a baffling comedy situation. Carl Reiner adds to the confusion. (KRON, 9 p.m.)

Other movies and specials this weekend:

SATURDAY: "The Revolt of Mamie Stover" with Jayne Russell and Richard Egan is a story of social conditions in Honolulu before and after the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. (KRON, 11:15 p.m.)

Kirk Douglas, Christine Kaufmann and Frank Dutton star in "Town Wiithout Pity," story of an army major who is assigned to defend four soldiers accused of assaulting a teen-aged German girl. (KPIX, 11:20 p.m.)

Rock Hudson, Dorothy Malone and Robert Stack star as people caught in a triangle of love and corruption in the drama "The Tarnished Angels." (KGO, 11:15 p.m.)

Phil Harris, wit and bandleader, plays host to his famous wife, Alice Faye, and a host of other celebrities on "The Hollywood Palace." (KGO, 9:30 p.m.)

Mikhail Tahl, Russian chess champion, will demonstrate his talent on "Koltanowski on Chess." Tahl is such a rapid player that he once forced his opponent to complete 15 moves in one minute. (KQED, 6:30 p.m.)

The 14-year-old favorite, "The Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet," will be switching days, and wlil now be seen on Saturday nights. (KGO, 7:30 p.m.)

"Vietnam: The Questions America Is Asking," a discussion by ABC news correspondents of the United States' involvement in the war there and efforts to bring about peace, will be presented by "ABC Scope." (KGO, 7 p.m.)

For sports fans, Cal is taking on University of Southern California in college basketball. (KTVU, 8 p.m.)

Jeanne Dixon, the much publicized seer, subject of Ruth Montgomery's book "A Gift of Prophecy," will be interviewed on "Book Beat." (KQED, 7:30 p.m.)

Jean Ritchie, known in the trade as an "authentic" folk singer, will be heard on "Performance." She specializes in Cumberland Mountain folk songs, and accompanies herself on the dulcimer and guitar. (KQED, 10 p.m.)

SUNDAY: Duke Ellington and his orchestra will present a concert of religious music as a one-hour special entitled "In the Beginning, God . . ." The concert was staged the day after Christmas, with religious leaders of many denominations in attendance. (KPIX, 8 a.m.)

Donald O'Connor will be host to Anthony Newley, Janet Blair, Nancy Dussault, the Nicholas Brothers and Shani Wallis in a program devoted to the song-and-dance man of show business fame on the "Bell Telephone Hour." (KRON, 6:30 p.m.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey will be the guest on "Face the Nation." (KPIX, 9:30 a.m.)

For the sports enthusiasts, the Philadelphia 76ers will meet the world champion Boston Celtics in a National Basketball Assn. game. (KGO, 11 a.m.)

The best of the East meet the best of the West in the 16th annual National Football League Pro Bowl game, to be played at the Los Angeles Coliseum. (KPIX, 1 p.m.)

"CBS Sports Spectacular" returns for its seventh season, featuring the world-famed Harlem Globetrotters in a display of their unique basketball skills and court antics as they meet the Washington Generals. (KPIX, 4 p.m.)

A tough killer plots escape from Dannemora Prison in upstate New York after his wife tells him she's leaving him on "Convicts 4," a movie with Rod Steiger, Sammy Davis Jr., Ray Walston, Broderick Crawford and Vincent Price heading up the all-star cast. (KTVU, 7 p.m.)

Kenneth More and Dana Wynter star in the movie version of C. S. Forester's human dramatic true adventure, "Sink the Bismarck!" (KGO, 9 p.m.)

The first in a new series on drama from Greek tragedy to the contemporary theatre of the absurd will be presented on "The Play's the Thing." (KPIX, 7 a.m.)

A report on the activities of the U.S. Military Assistance Advisory Group in training the soldiers of the government of the Republic of China will be given on "Assignment Taiwan" on "The Big Picture." (KPIX, 10:30 a.m.)

Presidential assistant McGeorge Bundy discusses Viet Nam peace prospects on "Issues and Answers." (KGO, 1:30 p.m.)

The University of California symposium on overpopulation will be covered with sessions starting at 9 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. on KQED.

Moliere's "Scapin," a 17th century farce about a charming rascal, is offered as a drama special. (KQED, 9 p.m.)

MARY MARTIN will fly again as the star of "Peter Pan" when the two-hour television version of Sir James M. Barrie's immortal story of the boy who refused to grow up is repeated on KRON Friday at 7:30 p.m. The musical show with Cyril Ritchard as co-star is a TV classic.

WILLIE MAYS, often seen on television performing on the baseball diamond, turns up in a different capacity tonight when he appears with Donna Reed and Paul Peterson on "The Donna Reed Show." The program shifts to a new time and day, and will be seen this evening at 8 o'clock on KGO.

Goodrich Schedules Specials

A series of eight special, hour-long programs — with subject matter ranging from the life of Beethoven to life on other planets — and rebroadcasts of the programs, will be sponsored by the B. F. Goodrich Co. on the ABC Television Network during 1966, it has been announced by Elmer W. Lower, president of ABC news, special events and public affairs.

The presentations, four of which will be televised in color, will be repeated by the network from two weeks to three months following their initial showings, Lower said. All repeats will be shown on Sunday afternoons.

THE SERIES will include documentaries by John H. Secondari, executive producer of the ABC news special projects division, Stephen Fleischman, producer of special documentaries for ABC news, Thomas H. Wolf, executive producer of ABC-TV's weekly half-hour documentary series, "ABC Scope," and Robert Drew, executive producer of Robert Drew Associates.

Of the four specials to be presented in color, two will be segments of ABC News' award-winning "Saga of Western Man" series produced and written by Secondari and his wife, Helen Jean Rogers.

The B. F. Goodrich series of special programs will premiere on ABC-TV Tuesday, Feb. 15, with "Anatomy of Pop: The Music Explosion," a study of the history and origins of America's musical tastes from Dixieland jazz to rock 'n' roll. Produced by Stephen Fleischman, this black-and-white presentation will be televised 10 to 11 p.m. The program will be repeated by the network on Sunday, Feb. 27, 5 to 6 p.m.

IN EARLY March, Goodrich will present a one-hour color documentary about U.S. naval action in the Viet Nam war. Titled "Viet Nam: Operation Sea War," the special is being produced by Thomas H. Wolf. It is scheduled for repeat in early April.

"Beethoven," the first of two "Saga of Western Man" specials to be seen on ABC-TV in 1966, will be shown in late March. The telecast will highlight the music and life of Ludwig von Beethoven. It is scheduled for repeat in late April.

An intriguing study of a professional heavyweight boxer will be the subject of a Robert Drew-produced special in mid-April. Titled "The Big Guy," the documentary follows the rigorous training schedule of Jim Beattie, a heavyweight fighter being groomed for an eventual title shot. Filmed in black-and-white, the program will be repeated on ABC-TV in late May.

THE DRIVES and ambitions of America's modern career military man will be the theme of "To Be a Soldier," another Secondari and Rogers production, scheduled for showing in early May. In this color presentation, the life of a young career soldier will be traced from his professional training at West Point to his first command in South Viet Nam. It is slated for repeat in early June.

8 Specials Are Slated By Goodrich

One of two B. F. Goodrich specials being produced by Stephen Fleischman is "The Baffling World of ESP," an absorbing probe of the little-known world of extrasensory perception. Filmed in black-and-white, the telecast will be shown on ABC-TV in mid-June and will be repeated in early September.

"We Are Not Alone," a television adaptation of Walter Sullivan's best-selling book of the same name, is being readied by Fleischmann, planned for showing in mid-October. The program, to be shown in black-and-white, will explore the possibilities of life in outer space. It will be repeated at a later date.

The eighth Goodrich documentary to be shown on ABC-TV during 1966 will be "The First Christmas," the second and final "Saga of eWstern Man" presentation in 1966. Produced by the award-winning Secondari-Rogers team, the special will be filmed in color for showing during the 1966 Christmas season. The telecast will be repeated at a time and date to be announced.
